More Join Wildcat Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the CNR said Friday night the effects of a wildcat strike by non-operating employees of the railway should "fizzle out," at least for the weekend.

Many of the estimated 3,700 men who were on strike Friday against both the CNR and the CPR would have been off the job anyway during the weekend, the CNR spokesman said.

Train services were reported continuing as usual along CNR and CPR routes.

In Montreal, Friday saw 2,400 men out at the CNR yard in Pointe St. Charles, while some truckers were persuaded not to cross picket lines at the Bonaventure express freight depot.

There were 115 electricians out at the CPR's Angus yard at Montreal and 273 repairmen and carmen off the job at the company's St. Luc diesel yard.

DRIVERS WALK OFF

In Toronto, 300 CNR express drivers were off their jobs, 50 office workers were out at the Concord freight yard and 165 in other yards.

A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said Friday night about 300 clerical workers in Toronto have voted to join the express drivers. No date was set.

A group of 30 drivers and warehousemen were off their railway jobs at London Friday and another 120 non-ops were out in Windsor.

A second strike erupted in Windsor as 100 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen went out at 12:01 a.m. today.

The BRT membership, yard crews and their foremen denied their walkout was in sympathy with that of the non ops.

Allen Lemon, chairman of the BRT's Windsor lodge, said there were no plans to try to stop trains or prevent passengers boarding them.

Sydney, N.S., reported 138 CNR men out with 90 more expected to strike today.

STRIKE NOT OFFICIAL

In Ottawa, a special eight-member cabinet committee set up Thursday to study the strike broke up for the weekend. Prime Minister Pearson has said it would not be proper for the cabinet to intervene in the walkout until all pre-strike procedures have been exhausted and an official strike date set.

The workers involved in the unofficial strikes up to Friday were a handful of the 98,000 non-operative rail workers belonging to 18 unions who have been disappointed in their bid for wage increases ranging from 55 cents to more than $1 an hour. Their present average wage is $2.22 an hour.

Bodies, Red Weapons Litter Viet Plantation

SAIGON (Reuters) Australian forces piled on the pressure against the Viet Cong today after killing 214 Communist troops Friday in a bloody-four-hour battle, their fiercest of the Viet Nam war.

About 150 Australians, outnumbered eight to one, were down to their last rounds of ammunition when reinforcements reached the battle area—a rain-soaked rubber plantation 42 miles southeast of Saigon.

The operation continued today as a full-scale drive against the Viet Cong, a military spokesman said here.

(Australian headquarters in Canberra said 17 Australians were killed and 26 wounded in the engagement in Ba Ria in Phuoc Tuy province—easily the country's biggest loss in a single day in Viet Nam.)

Crumpled bodies and piles of Chinese and Russian - made weapons littered the rubber plantation today where the Australians repelled an onslaught from an estimated 900 enemy troops.

Dawn after the battle showed the extent of the carnage. Bodies — some appeared to be youths of about 17—lay everywhere, even inside the Australian lines.

Australian troops found the latest Chinese automatic rifles in perfect condition and packs made in North Viet Nam or China which were nearly new.

Many of the Viet Cong appeared to have died under shell fire. The surviving guerrillas withdrew after Australian and New Zealand artillery units moved in under cover of a tropical storm and U.S. jets dropped 35 tons of explosives and napalm firebombs.

TERRORISTS TOSS GRENADES INTO CLUB

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two Viet Cong terrorists exploded three hand grenades at the entrance of an American non-commissioned officers' club here tonight and a spokesman said 12 persons were wounded, one seriously.

The spokesman said six of the wounded were known to be U.S. servicemen. Some Vietnamese women were among a crowd within the Take Ten Club, operated by the U.S. Army for non-commissioned officers of all the services, when the explosion went off.

Earthquake Toll Could Top 3,000

THREATS AGAINST BENNETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett's scheduled appearance in today's Pacific National Exhibition parade in downtown Vancouver was cancelled at the last minute.

No official reason was given, but there were a number of anonymous telephone calls earlier to police and news media threatening Mr. Bennett's life.

The caller said an attempt would be made to kill the premier as the parade moved along Hastings Street.

The parade went ahead without Mr. Bennett.

U.S. Airlines Get Planes Back in Skies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five major airlines, shut down for 43 days by a machinists union strike, smoothly resumed air service today with the walkout at an end.

There was little crowding at airports across the United States as Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United began booking passengers and sending their planes skyward.

The biggest airline strike in history ended Friday when members of the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, voted 17,727 to 8,235 to accept a three-year contract union leaders had negotiated with the airlines Monday. An earlier settlement proposal had been rejected July 31.

"The strike is now over," said union president P. L. (Roy) Siemiller as he announced the ratification vote.

The contract approval sending 35,400 strikers back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had lined up solidly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House guidelines designed to limit wage increases to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paycheques.

The airlines settlement is estimated to average slightly more than six per cent annually.

New Tremors Rock Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — More than 100 new earth shocks rolled across eastern Turkey today in the wake of a village-wrecking earthquake whose toll rose into thousands of dead and injured.

One sharp new tremor brought down 50 already damaged ancient buildings in Erzurum City, centre of the disaster area, killing two persons.

By nightfall rescue workers reported finding the bodies of nearly 1,500 victims of the catastrophic earthquake that hit Friday. In the Varto area alone, workers counted 1,042 bodies and worked feverishly clearing debris from where the schoolhouse once stood.

Muffled cries of children came from beneath it.

A multi-nation rescue operation was under way.

In early afternoon today a sharp earth shock hit Erzurum, centre of the earthquake disaster area. Fifty already damaged buildings fell in heaps of dust and broken stone.

Rescuers Struggle In Rugged Country

The number of known and estimated dead rose by the hour as army and civilian rescue teams fought through the rugged, mountainous back country of the quake-stunned area to reach destroyed villages and towns.

The full fury of the quake Friday afternoon hit the town of Varto, a community of 3,000 inhabitants. "It can be said that nothing remained of Varto," a Turkish army officer reported from the scene.

The Turkish interior ministry earlier had expressed belief the quake, which levelled dozens of other villages, might have taken 1,500 lives.

Civilian officials at Varto said 816 bodies had been recovered in that area alone and they estimated that at least 3,000 persons had died in the surrounding desert of rubble left by the killer quake.

They said scores of villages around Varto had been wiped out.

A Turkish radio report said many inhabitants were buried under the wreckage, including some pupils at the Varto school, who could be fainty heard crying for help.

24 Villages Levelled to Ground

The quake struck mountain villages in four provinces near the Iranian frontier, about 650 miles east of Istanbul.

The governor of Erzuram province reported in a radio broadcast that all dwellings were levelled in 24 villages in the province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 55,000, were destroyed, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces—Erzuram, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis—rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force mounted a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzuram, largest urban centre in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks out into the surrounding mountainous country side to reach residents of ruined villages.

The quakes began at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) Friday. The newspaper Milliyet reported the tremors were "very strong" for 20 seconds and were felt in Armenia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Erzuram weather bureau said the tremors lasted five minutes.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale.

Government and army authorities in the afflicted areas said it might take weeks to get a compete picture of the death and destruction.

Communications were practically non-existent and reports filtering in from the hundreds of villages and small communities in the predominantly agricultural region were fragmentary and conflicting.

But the quake already appeared one of the worst in recent years. The last major quake in Europe practically razed the Yugoslav city of Skopje July 26, 1963, with a final death toll of 1,100.

Officials said there was no way to tell how many residents had fled into the open countryside.

Turkish Premier Suleiman Demirel cancelled his appointments today to make an inspection flight over the stricken area. Music was banned from the Turkish radio and newspapers appeared with black borders.

There were no reports of foreign casualties. The remote area is not popular with tourists.

It was Turkey's worst earthquake since 1943 when 4,016 persons died. The biggest in 1939 killed 32,372 persons.

Gov. Mustafa Urgur Taled of Mus province said more than 2,000,000 people in the earthquake area slept outdoors on the ground Friday night.

Turkish Army units hastily put up five field hospitals and rescue teams brought in 10,000 tents.

American C-118 cargo planes flew three field hospitals, doctors, nurses and medicine to the area.

Japan Town Hit Again

TOKYO (AP) — Two fairly strong earthquakes shook the quake-ridden town of Matsushiro in central Japan tonight but no casualties were reported.

At least seven houses were damaged, railway traffic was halted and about 6,000 homes were left without electricity because of damage to power lines.

Matsushiro has been hit by quakes daily since the summer of 1965.

Bomb Explodes In Vienna

VIENNA (Reuters)—A bomb exploded in the centre of Vienna early today, but first reports said there were no casualties.

The explosion, which shattered hundreds of windows, occurred in front of the Alitalia Airline office opposite the state opera building.

The bomb was linked with the revival of terrorism in South Tyrol, but it was the first such attack in the Austrian capital.

South Tyrol, called Alto Adige by the Italians, was formerly part of the Austro-Hungarian empire but was ceded to Italy after the First World War. The bulk of its population speaks German.

Demands by German-speaking extremists for autonomy for Alto Adige or incorporation into Austria have been accompanied by frequent bomb explosions and outbreaks of violence.

Tory Leader Taken Sick

VANCOUVER (CP)—Illness of Stuart A. Fleming, 46, president of the British Columbia Progressive Conservatives, forced cancellation of a press conference scheduled for today.

The nature of Mr. Fleming's illness was not disclosed. A party spokesman said he is under a doctor's supervision.

FOUR OTHER MAJOR INVESTIGATIONS LAUNCHED IN BRITAIN

'God's Sake, Help!' Pleads Suspect

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP) — While hundreds of armed policemen renewed a massive manhunt around London for scar-faced Harry Roberts—wanted in the killing of three Scotland Yard policemen—four other big investigations were under way in widely separated areas of Britain.

- A headless body was found hidden on a rocky hill in Sussex. Police said: "It's murder."
- Two young girls, aged 10 and 7, were missing in suspicious circumstances from their homes in Yorkshire and Cheshire.
- A man was charged with two sensational murders in the northern town of Stockport.
- In addition, police combed wild moorland for two convicts who escaped Wednesday from a working party outside Dartmoor Jail.

The search for 30 - year - old Roberts, described by Scotland Yard as a "vicious" character who may be carrying three guns, went into its second week with police convinced he is holed up in the capital.

SOUGHT HELP

A woman friend told Scotland Yard Roberts telephoned her Friday night saying: "For God's sake, help."

Police put an armed guard at the woman's flat. "I'm sure the call came from the London area," she was quoted as saying. "Harry sounded desperate. He wanted money and food."

Friday night police ended a two-day search of Epping Forest, where Roberts had been reported hiding out, and concentrated on his old London haunts.

Roberts' estranged wife Margaret, a professional stripper who lives in the north of England, appealed to him to surrender in a published statement.

Two other men already have been charged with killing the three policemen.

The headless body was found near the Sussex town of Uckfield late Friday night after two boy scouts had reported finding a human skull in a rocky crevice nearby.

"Scotland Yard has been called in to direct the murder inquiry," said a local police spokesman.

A big search by detectives for 10-year-old Jane Taylor, missing from her Cheshire home since last Sunday, took a sinister turn with the discovery of a note pinned on some barbed wire.

It said: "To the police. Walk 50 yards north of this tree and dig. You will find something very interesting about four feet under."

Police said they found nothing at the spot indicated, but the search was intensified.

In the Yorkshire town of Darlington, house-by-house inquiries were being made in efforts to trace seven - year - old Linda Faulkes, who vanished from a wood near her home Thursday.

In Stockport, a crowd of 300 screaming women tried to attack Robert Leonard Whalley, 24, as police brought him into

Strangling Suspect Arrested

MONTREAL (CP) — A Halifax native was arrested early today in Hawkesbury, Ont., and was being returned to Montreal for questioning in connection with the strangling of two young women.

The man, said to be in his mid-30s, will be questioned by both Montreal and St. Laurent police.

The first victim was Ginette Martineau, 20-year-old waitress, whose body was found last Tuesday in a mid-town Montreal rooming house.

The second was Charlotte Shirley Doucette, 21, a secretary. She was found slain Thursday in a suburban St. Laurent motel.

Police said the girls accompanied the man, who gave his address as Halifax, to the rooming house and motel.

Both girls were said to have been assaulted.

ASK PLACE TO SLEEP

Hawkesbury police notified St. Laurent police of the arrest. They said the man came to the Hawkesbury police station and asked for a place to sleep, saying he had no money.

A key was found in his pockets to a room at the St. Laurent motel, Hawkesbury police reported. The man's car was confiscated.

Before the arrest police had visited scores of motels and rooming houses in the Montreal area, checking on one-night couples, in case the man had another prospective victim.

In addition several men had already been taken into custody for questioning.

Two Trapped Climbers Still Alive

CHAMONIX, France (Reuters) — Two West German mountain climbers, trapped for almost a week on a rockface in the Alps, greeted the sun today huddled in their sleeping bags but still sufficiently fit to move about.

A rescue party seeking to work its way down to them from the summit of the 12,300-foot Aiguille du Dru set out again at dawn today but turned back because of snow and glazed frost on the rock wall.

The operation to rescue the two Germans—whose names are being withheld—was one of the biggest ever undertaken. It involves more than 50 Alpine guides and mountain-climbing experts.

court Friday, to face two chargs of murder.

Whalley was guarded by 30 policemen, but one woman got through the cordon and hit him on the head with her handbag.

Whalley was charged with the stabbing of Mrs. Marjoie Hill, 42, in August last year and John Crossland, 44, last Monday. Both were found dying in woodland frequented by courting couples.

Before Whalley's arrest, a note was found on the doorstep of police headquarters confessing the two murders and saying "My next victim will be a teen-ager. Ha Ha."

In Devon County, police joined prison warders searching over the heather-covered moors for the two escapees—Clarence Twist, 30, and George Brailey, 32. Both were serving six-year sentences for robbery.

ST. PASCAL, Que. (CP)—At least four persons were killed and about 10 injured today in a traffic accident involving a tractor-trailer and four cars.

Robichaud Greets Pearsons

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A transport department Jetstar aircraft carrying Prime Minister and Mrs. Pearson touched down at the Saint John municipal airport today after a trip from Ottawa.

The prime minister and his wife are en route to Campobello Island, off the southwestern New Brunswick coast, to meet President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson Sunday.

The Pearsons were met at the airport by Premier Louis J. Robichaud of New Brunswick before leaving on an air force helicopter for a 70-mile trip to St. Andrews, N.B.

The prime minister's party will fly by helicopter Sunday morning to Campobello, where former president Franklin D. Roosevelt made his summer home.

President and Mrs. Johnson are to join the Pearsons at the 10 a.m. service at St. Ann's Anglican Church at Campobello.

After the service, a helicopter will carry them to St. Andrews for a private luncheon and three hours of talks.

WILL LAY CORNERSTONE

They return to Campobello about 3:45 p.m. when President Johnson will place the cornerstone for a visitors' centre in the Roosevelt Campobello international park, established by Canada and the United States two years ago.

The centre is dedicated to the late president and close relations between the two countries.

A customs official at Lubec, Me., said today there has been an influx of tourists passing across the international bridge connecting Lubec with Campobello and three times the usual number is expected to crowd the island Sunday.

Both RCMP and U.S. secret service officers have set up strict security measures throughout the area of Charlotte County and at the Welchpool Pier, where the cruiser U.S.S. Northhampton carrying the presidential party will dock if weather is bad.

'Will Never Resign,' Erhard Tells Critics

FRANKFURT (CP) — West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard today advised a growing group of domestic critics that he will never resign his post voluntarily. But he made plain that he is considering a reshuffle of his cabinet.

ERHARD
. . . considers shuffle

"I will not go under coercion," Erhard told a correspondent of the usually pro-government Die Welt. "I will not give up. There is only one way to remove me from office, that is the constructive no - confidence vote."

Under the German constitution that vote requires simultaneous election of a successor by the Bonn parliament.

"It remains to be seen whether there is somebody who does a better job than I," Erhard added.

He indicated that he was thinking of a drastic reform of his cabinet, the newspaper reported.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The weather disturbance which has kept the southeastern Kootenays the only place in B.C. with unsettled weather for the past few days moved eastward and dumped an inch and a half of rain over southern Alberta in the past 24 hours. The ridge of high pressure which has dominated the weather picture for the past couple of days is gradually weakening over northern B.C. but most regions will continue sunny and warm for the next two days. Only the north coast will see an increase in cloud today and receive a few showers overnight as a Pacific weather disturbance moves over the Alaskan Panhandle.

Harmac Rebels Asking Support At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Friday took its petition for public support to Port Alberni, seat of a 750-member local of the rival international union.

Supporters of Harmac Local 8 of the Canadian union sought signatures for a public petition demanding the right for 1,000 Harmac workers near Nanaimo to a secret vote to determine the union of their choice.

Similar petitions are being circulated in other parts of the province.

"This is primarily to bring our case to the attention of the public," said Local 8 president Gordon Wickham.

The union was not attempting to organize pulp workers at Port Alberni, who are members of Local 592, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

A man and two women stood outside the gates of Alberni Pulp and Paper Limited Friday as shifts changed in late afternoon.

'GO CANADIAN'

Mr. Wickham said he would like to see Port Alberni workers "go Canadian" but the new union did not anticipate any move in this direction at this time.

There has been no organization work by the Canadian union, although he knew some of the workers were interested.

"We are waiting for the Labour Relations Board to give us an answer on the Harmac decertification application," he said.

He expected to hear from the board next week, although the application didn't arrive at the board office in Victoria until last Thursday.

"We are not going to wait too long before we do something else," he said.

DEMONSTRATION

Tentative plans are being made for a demonstration on Labor Day in either Victoria or Nanaimo. Last Saturday there was a march to the Legislative Buildings in Victoria.

"Our plans depend on what happens to the decertification application," he said.

"If we get the vote we'll probably have a big celebration instead of a demonstration."

Bargaining rights at Harmac are held by tht international union. If the Canadian union succeeds in decertification of the international it will then be free to apply for the bargaining rights itself.

Judgment Reserved On Bylaw

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan reserved judgment in Victoria Law Courts Friday night on an application to quash a bylaw passed by North Cowichan municipal council last May 4.

In Supreme Court chambers, North Cowichan resident Joseph Haddock asked that the bylaw be quashed as legally invalid. It would permit the building of a $300,000 ice arena at the north end of the municipality at Fullers Lake.

Victoria lawyer, Cecil O. D. Branson, appearing for Mr. Haddock, said the bylaw failed to comply with various sections of the Municipal Act.

He argued that the financing of the bylaw, in terms of borrowing for the ice arena, was not properly specified.

David Williams, municipal solicitor for North Cowichan, opposed the application to quash the bylaw. He held that a new section of the Municipal Act did away with the need for specifying the terms of borrowing.

AND RAFTERS RANG

Mart Took Up His Clarinet

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What is Mart Kenney's appeal?

Early this morning, in the Sanscha Hall at Sidney, I was still asking a question first asked in the Spanish Grill of the old Hotel Vancouver 28 years ago!

Kenney is a quiet undemonstrative leader. He has little or no showmanship. He plays a good sax, doubling on clarinet, and he produces what is usually a good, competent but not scintillating dance orchestra.

What is it, then, which has retained our loyalty for so long? I think it is integrity — the maintenance of an unfailing standard of good workmanship over a number of years, and the consciousness of a likeable, solid citizen behind it.

Whatever it is, Mr. Kenney and the new Western Gentlemen he has recruited out West kept us dancing continuously until past one this morning.

EXCLUSIVE GROUP

There were 350 dancers, ages ranging from about 25 to 83, and we were a very exclusive gathering. This was indicated by the electric sign outside the Sanscha Hall:

MART KENNEY DANCE SOLD OUT.

"We could have sold half as many tickets again," said Frank Minns, chairman of the Sidney and North Saanich Community Hall Association, which lured Mr. Kenney to Sidney, with the assistance of publisher Gray Campbell.

Mr. Kenney, his nine supporting musicians and his vocalist wife, Norma Locke, gave us a generous helping of favorites, old and new.

They ranged from Dancing in the Dark, Charmaine, Ramona, Tea for Two and September in the Rain to the more modern San Francisco and The Beatles' favorite, Michelle.

But the enthusiasm boiled over when Mr. Kenney, in his smart white tuxedo, picked up the clarinet and began to play his old familiar signature, The West, A Nest and You.

The mellow tones caught everyone's ear and soon the rafters rang with song.

In a sparkling blue dress, Norma Locke sang a number of favorites, and cleverly adapted the song My Kind of Town to include Sidney and Sanscha.

Mr. Kenney welcomed visitors from Vancouver, Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Renfrew and — Saskatchewan. Oldest couple on the floor were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mollison of Sidney.

"We used to dance to Mr. Kenney's band in Winnipeg," said white-haired Mrs. Mollison.

A cold supper was served by Mrs. Claude Whipple and the Sanscha Suzies — an organization of women volunteers.

Don Smith To Manage SC Campaign

Bumped Victoria Social Credit candidate J. Donald Smith has agreed to act as campaign manager for the men who beat him to the nomination.

Mr. Smith was caught in the redistribution squeeze at a Thursday night Social Credit nominating convention called to choose two candidates from among three former MLAs.

He lost a closely contested battle to William N. Chant, minister of public works, and Waldo Skillings.

In the face of speculation that he was upset by the outcome, Mr. Smith announced he will be campaign manager for the successful candidates.

"It is important that we present a strongly united front," he said.

Mr. Chant added, "We are looking forward to a very good election and expect to win with a bigger majority than ever before."

Mr. Skillings said "We are glad Mr. Smith is going to be on our team."

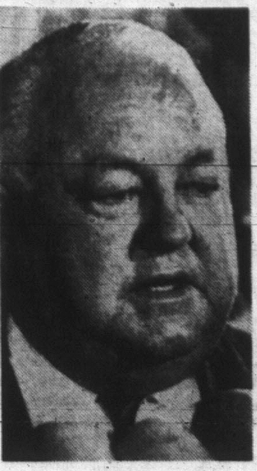
UN-AMERICAN COMMITTEE — FACES NEW ROADBLOCK

Bill Unnecessary Charges Justice Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States house committee on un-American activities, stung for a week with the shouts and tumult of hostile witnesses, now faces justice department opposition to its bill to prohibit American citizens from giving direct aid to the Viet Cong.

It was learned today that the department is against the measure on several grounds, among them concern that the bill amounts to an infringement on the constitutional right of free speech and assembly.

In addition, the department feels that the bill is unnecessary. It claims existing laws cover the type of activity which prompted Rep. Koe R.R Pool (R—Tex.) and other committee members to introduce it.



POOL
. . . hard-core Reds

The department outlined its position in a letter to the committee. Deputy Attorney-General Ramsey Clark is scheduled to present it verbally when he appears before the committee Tuesday.

Friday marked the end of fact-finding hearings by the committee, among the most tumultuous in its 21-year history. The Tuesday session has been scheduled to gather opinions on the proposal.

Unless the department can persuade it otherwise, the committee plans to conclude its hearing Tuesday and if possible vote to approve the bill on the same day.

Pool, who conducted the hearings, said he hoped the legislation could then be speeded through the House and Senate. At present, there is no activity in the Senate on the subject.

The bill would make it a criminal offence for any American citizen to give, attempt to give or advise others to give "any money, property, or thing" to any country, group or person "acting in hostile opposition to the armed forces of the United States."

It would also apply to any American who gives or collects money for such a purpose.

Another section of the bill would prohibit Americans from obstructing military personnel or transportation. Those found guilty of either section could be sentenced to prison for up to 20 years and fined $20,000.

KINOY
. . . convicted

Pool was prompted to draft the bill after reading that some anti-war groups collected blood and money, for medical supplies, to be sent to North Viet Nam.

He was also roused by an unsuccessful attempt by protesters to stop a troop train at the Oakland, Calif., army terminal.

Leaders of the groups charged with these activities were subpoenaed witnesses before the committee this week.

The house panel wound up four days of hearings Friday with another stormy session at which 12 more persons were arrested for disorderly conduct.

"The leadership of these groups are made up of individuals who are voluntary hard-core Communists who are acting in behalf of foreign interests," Pool declared.

During the four days of hearings, more than 50 persons were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Others were thrown out of the hearing room for disrupting the proceedings with shouts or derogatory remarks.

Attorney Arthur Kinoy of New York, who was arrested Wednesday after a clash with Pool, was convicted of disorderly conduct in District of Columbia General Sessions Court Friday and drew a suspended $50 fine. He said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The last person arrested Friday was Jerry Rubin, 28, of Berkeley, Calif., who had sat through the entire four days wearing a wool American revolutionary war uniform he rented for $20 a week.

When Pool announced it was all over, Rubin shouted, "I object, I want to make a statement about Viet Nam." U.S. Deputy Marshals hustled him out and charged him with disorderly conduct.

Before Rubin's outburst, 11 others were charged with disorderly conduct, including six who yelled "murderer" when a retired U.S. Marine Corps general began to testify.

Negroes Ready to Defy Court Curb on Marches

CHICAGO (UPI) — U.S. civil rights leaders ordered by a judge to lay down their biggest weapon — the mass, many pronged marches into white neighborhoods — will decide today whether to risk going to jail.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. gave every indication he would rather go to jail than to stop the open housing marches which have been met by bloody violence cause by whites who do not want negroes living next door.

"I have been in dozens of jails all over the south," said King, "and I'm not afraid to go to jail in Chicago."

King called the court action "unjust . . . illegal and unconstitutional"

If the veteran civil rights campaigner followed the course of action he pioneered in the south, his next step would be an appeal to federal courts.

It was learned that U.S District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry would be on hand today for an emergency appeal.

CRIME INCREASE

Mayor Richard J. Daley ordered the suit for the temporary injunction, saying the thousands of police diverted from crime details to protect the open housing marchers resulted in a 25 per cent increase in crime in the city this summer.

King and his "freedom movement" leaders held a five-hour strategy meeting that lasted into this morning but the meeting broke up with no decision reached. They were meeting again today.

There was no indication that mass demonstrations planned for Sunday would be called off.

Mayor Daley went on city wide radio and television late Friday night to ask for an end to the violence which has resulted in hundreds injured or arrested.

He said he ordered the suit to "end that kind of street demonstrations which have adversely affected the rights of all people by making it impossible for the police department to adequately protect the lives and property of every citizen."

"This lawsuit does not in any way seek to prohibit or interfere with the constitutional rights of all citizens to petition for redress of grievances and to conduct reasonable demonstrations. We have never done this in Chicago," Daley said.

Circuit Court Judge Cornelius Harrington ordered King and his top associates to limit demonstrations to one a day with no more than 500 persons involved, and held only during periods of non rush-hour traffic.

King said "if the city of Chicago cannot protect non-violent marchers with their police force then the national guard should be called in — as they do when Negroes do bad things."

TERMING the court injunction curbing Negro civil rights marches in Chicago "a tragic expression of bad faith on the part of the city," Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., addresses an impromptu press conference in the windy city. King said the marchers may defy the court order. (AP Wirephoto.)

Summerland Couple Dies In Banff Crash

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Two British Columbia residents were killed Friday when their car left the Trans-Canada Highway in Banff National Park.

RCMP said Philip Nelson, 70, who moved with his wife to Summerland, B.C., after he retired, died almost immediately and his wife, Mary, died later in hospital here.

The car left the road about noon near Taylor Creek in the Lake Louise district about 20 miles west of Banff and 100 miles west of Calgary.

Possibility of a heart attack was under investigation.

The retired couple were returning to visit relatives at Wetaskiwin and Edmonton.

NAMU PROVED COSTLY

SEATTLE (AP)—Aquarium owner Ted Griffin says he lost money on Namu, the killer whale.

"I owe $50,000 right now, plus a certain amount of other personal money," Griffin said Friday.

Namu, captured in Canadian waters in June, 1965, died at Griffin's aquarium July 9.

Griffin said it cost him $100,000 to keep Namu for the winter and "I didn't even begin to get that back."

Egyptian Spy Given Life Term

CAIRO (CP) — A former Egyptian publisher was sentenced today to life imprisonment for passing information harmful to Egypt to a U.S. embassy official.

Mustapha Amin, 54, former publisher of the Cairo daily Al Akhbar, insisted he was innocent.

Amin was arrested in July, 1965, and charged with passing the information to Bruce Taylor-Odell, U.S. embassy political affairs officer whom Egyptian authorities call an agent of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Taylor-Odell also was arrested in connection with the case, but later was released. He since has left Egypt.

In another case the court also announced sentences of life imprisonment at hard labor for Hussein Tawfik, former chief personnel manager of Misr Petroleum (previously Shell), and three others.

They and 10 others were charged with plotting to overthrow President Nasser and his regime by force.

Your Money to Buy Your Vote

MR. BENNETT HAS STARTED on the campaign trail with an unvarnished statement of the appeal he is making to the public for election on September 12.

"As long as I am premier," he told his Campbell River audience, "I'll continue to give more money back to the people, and if you don't like it, vote against us."

In this unblushing avowal of his willingness to give cash for votes, the premier perhaps assumes a hard-headed recognition by the voters of the fact that he is giving "back" to them part of the funds he has taken from them in the first instance — though he seeks also to make the point that the accumulated funds are the fruits of exploitation and development of British Columbia's resources.

He makes the further point that his distribution of "largesse" will be accomplished without raising taxes. A brief glimpse at the government's "Green Book" released last month provides adequate evidence to justify that pledge.

It shows that Mr. Bennett so far under-estimated revenue last year that his government was able to spend $133.2 million more than it had budgetted for and still emerge with a $52 million surplus. This practice of under-estimating was not unique last year. It has been followed by the premier-minister of finance on other occasions to tax more from the people than was needed to handle their business — and to provide rich sweetening to the administration's election appeals.

The accumulation of surpluses has not, however, inspired Mr. Bennett to institute compensating cuts in taxation.

So at Campbell River he promised to increase the current $30 monthly provincial allowances to needy old age pensioners, to boost social assistance rates, to encourage construction of chronic care hospitals, to expand the number of beneficiaries under the aid-for-fees program for top and good students entering university.

These are all commendable gestures in what some people — though perhaps not Mr. Bennett — see as one means of following the Socialistic principle of redistributing the wealth. But in the redistribution, the voter will be naive who does not recognize the source of the money, be it for home-owners' or home-buyers' grants ("goodies" denied some of our taxpayers) or expansion of the frequently praised ferry fleet.

But if some electors are inclined to see in the record of the Social Credit government the implementation of some Socialistic principles, Mr. Bennett wishes to make his position very clear. He proclaims, perhaps with too much vehemence, that "The number one issue in B.C. is whether we will have the free enterprise system as opposed to straight Socialism."

For a very obvious reason he does not note the fact that Social Credit has no monopoly on championship of the free enterprise system.

At all events, Mr. Bennett is on the campaign trail saying "I'll continue to give more money back to the people (who, of course, supplied it in the first place) and if you don't like it, vote against us."

The appeal seems somewhat cynical, but it has worked before.

Whose Logs?

DUNCAN'S CHAMBER OF COMMERCE is the most recent agency to protest the presence of "deadheads" in the water and on the beach of regions popular with fishermen, pleasure boatmen and recreationists.

The "deadheads" causing concern are logs which have broken away from booms or otherwise strayed after they have been hauled to the water for towing or barging to a mill. Under present legislation these are the property of some specific company, or its clients, whose mark the log carries. They are no longer considered unclaimed property which can be taken by anyone for indiscriminate sale to any market. The convention of "finders-keepers" does not prevail.

The decision to protect ownership of the timber is understandable. Logs cost money and it is reasonable to recognize the investment of those who have harvested them in the woods or who have bought them for a mill.

But surely this ownership also carries with it an explicit responsibility. If they break from a boom or stray for any of a number of reasons — rough seas or waterlogginess — and if, as strays, they cause hazard, damage or unsightliness, the interests which stand to benefit from their recovery seem to have an obligation to compensate anyone who might suffer.

The boatman who hits a "deadhead" all but unseen in choppy water, the beach recreationist, whose enjoyment of the public shore is destroyed or reduced by the presence of huge piles of apparently abandoned raw timber, or — as is the case in Victoria — the civic department which has paid out hard cash to clear beaches and then finds its work frustrated by the return of logs, would appear to have at least an ethical case against the owner.

In British Columbia we have strict laws against litter. But a beach full of logs and drift is, in its own way, also a beach full of litter. Should not the authorities protecting the investment of log buyers or harvesters also extend a measure of protection to the public?

Time To Check the Maps

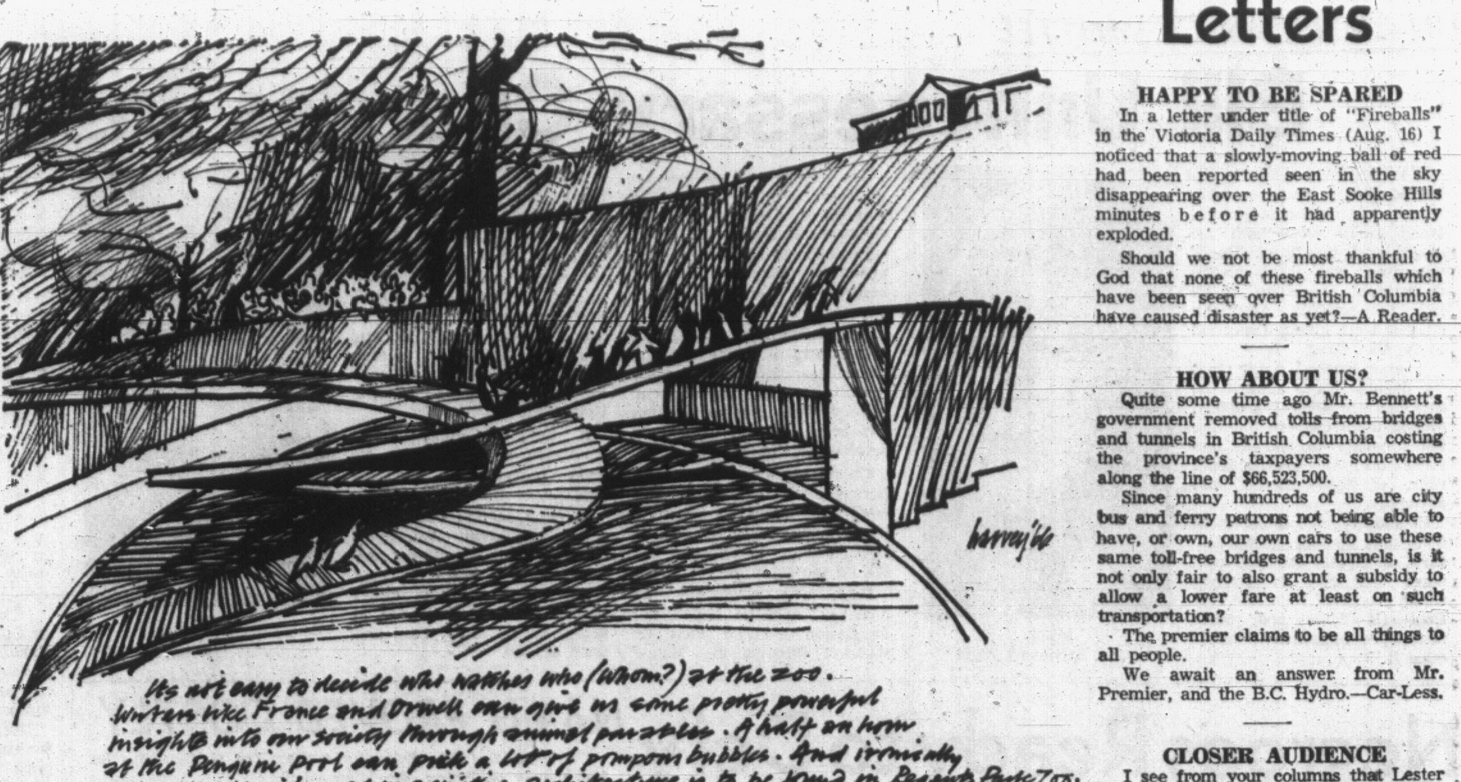
THE TWO AIR ATTACKS ON A Cambodian village by American forces on July 31 and August 2, the latter of which was observed by members of the International Control Commission, appear to have ended hopes for an improvement in relations between Cambodia and the United States.

On the day of the second attack Washington announced that roving Ambassador Averell W. Harriman would visit the neutral state in September following a formal visit by French President de Gaulle. At the same time American headquarters in Saigon was claiming that the village hit by its aircraft was clearly shown on its maps as Vietnamese and that it was a Viet Cong strongpoint. Subsequently the State Department apologized for the raids, offered compensation, admitted that the village was Cambodian — but reiterated that the available maps showed it to be Vietnamese.

Cambodian Premier Prince Sihanouk, who broke off relations with the United States in 1964 as a result of persistent American pressure in Cambodian politics, has passed the word that Mr. Harriman will not now be welcome in the country.

The incident is another reminder that air warfare carried on near national boundaries involves serious hazards.

The affair has had the effect of showing that the ICC still performs a useful function in the Indo-China area, and perhaps can be used as a further argument for strengthening the commission in order to keep the war limited at least geographically.



Its not easy to decide who watches who (whom?) at the zoo.
Writers like France and Orwell can give us some pretty powerful insights into our society through animal parables. A half an hour at the Penguin Pool can prick a lot of pompous bubbles. And ironically some of Britain's most imaginative architecture is to be found in Regents Park Zoo.
harvey'66

Victoria artist Donald Harvey, now studying in England on a Canada grant, records a visit to Regents Park.

Letters

HAPPY TO BE SPARED

In a letter under title of "Fireballs" in the Victoria Daily Times (Aug. 16) I noticed that a slowly-moving ball of red had been reported seen in the sky disappearing over the East Sooke Hills minutes before it had apparently exploded.

Should we not be most thankful to God that none of these fireballs which have been seen over British Columbia have caused disaster as yet?—A Reader.

HOW ABOUT US?

Quite some time ago Mr. Bennett's government removed tolls from bridges and tunnels in British Columbia costing the province's taxpayers somewhere along the line of $66,523,500.

Since many hundreds of us are city bus and ferry patrons not being able to have, or own, our own cars to use these same toll-free bridges and tunnels, is it not only fair to also grant a subsidy to allow a lower fare at least on such transportation?

The premier claims to be all things to all people.

We await an answer from Mr. Premier, and the B.C. Hydro.—Car-Less.

CLOSER AUDIENCE

I see from your columns that Lester Pearson is planning to discuss the Viet Nam war with President Johnson.

This naturally raises the question: When is he planning to discuss the Viet Nam war with the Canadian people?—Derek Pethick, Alderley.

Political Swing From Settlement at Any Price

ALTHOUGH Parliament is still on holiday, the railway crisis is already precipitating a heavy political fallout over the national capital. The government has now had the advice of both Mr. Douglas and Mr. Diefenbaker, combined in the latter case with some of the most scathing prose that ministers have endured in recent months.

Western

As one would expect, the admonitions of the Conservative and New Democratic leaders are somewhat contradictory. Mr. Douglas is insistent that the government should mediate; in fact he wants the prime minister to intervene personally for this purpose. Mr. Diefenbaker, recalling Mr. Pearson's role in the seaway dispute, thinks this course would be fatal.

In his statement of Tuesday, Mr. Douglas insisted that it would be an "abdication of leadership" for the government to wait until strike action occurs and then to impose compulsory arbitration through a special session of Parliament. Mr. Diefenbaker, though making the usual bow to rights of collective bargaining, was clearly in favor of a parliamentary settlement and for calling Parliament now.

Excessively Cautious

Generalized admonitions are not particularly helpful. What would be the nature of the mediation that Mr. Douglas envisages? His statement is excessively cautious. It contains not the slightest indication of his views on the wage dispute; whether, for example, he favors the durable goods standard—as did Mr. Justice Craig Munroe—or some other measure such as a productivity yardstick or the seaway settlement. All it says is that there should be legislation to implement recommendations of the Freedman report on methods of implementing technological changes on the railroads.

Mr. Diefenbaker offered at least the outline of a program. The government, in his view, should summon Parliament at once, implement an ad hoc settlement and then bring in general railway legislation based on the Macpherson report, so that the companies would be in a position to meet higher wage costs.

By inference, the Conservative leader also placed himself in opposition to a seaway-style settlement. Castigating the prime minister for his diplomatic action in the earlier dispute, Mr. Diefenbaker predicted that if the 30 per cent formula was followed the country would suffer the "most galloping inflation" ever known.

It is to be noted that there was no such warning from the Conservatives when the government was blundering into the St. Lawrence settlements. At that time the opposition appeared to be concerned almost solely, even obsessively, with the economic consequences to the country of every day that passed with ships idle in the ports.

Political Position

In respect to general railway legislation, Mr. Diefenbeker seemed, however, to be almost as intent as Mr. Douglas on safeguarding his political position. He was for implementing the Macpherson recommendations, or some unspecified Macpherson recommendations, "insofar as they are in keeping with changing conditions" since the government gave notice of its original bill in September, 1964.

This commits the Conservatives to nothing. Conditions have certainly changed partly because the Pearson government, following in the steps of the Diefenbaker government, has permitted one of the companies to reverse completely the Macpherson policies. Conservative policy, in the light of Tuesday's qualification, is thus a complete enigma.

Prospective Earnings

Mr. Diefenbaker did, of course, base his argument upon the assumption that a policy based on the report would provide the companies with the financial resources to meet the costs of the wage settlement. There were to be declining subsidies which the railways were to earn by carrying through their program of rationalization. But the country has been the victim of a deception because subsidies "related" to the Macpherson report have already been paid.

This practice began under the Conservative government. What allowance would Mr. Diefenbaker make for these? To what extent must the country pay twice for railway reforms?

In his sojourn in the country, Mr. Diefenbaker has certainly sensed the general concern about surging inflation. His warnings about a rail settlement were in the context of a general attack on government policies in this respect. But the most obvious characteristic of Conservative policy, as he explained it, is a general incoherence.

Contradictions

Thus the Conservative leader very properly called on the government to curb its lavish expenditures, but at the same time he attacked tight money as if this was a cause and not a symptom of our present problem. Prices are rising because the country is trying to do much enonomically. Mr. Diefenbaker would cure the situation by having it do more. In the face of warnings that the investment program is already too large; that it is causing bottlenecks, scarcities, postponements and, of course, higher prices; he would increase credit and encourage even more investment.

Mr. Diefenbaker's secret anti-inflationary weapon, it seems, would be exhortation. He wants the prime minister to issue a call to arms to rally all Canadians against the enemy. There would be guide-lines for the country and a federal-provincial conference to enlist the various governments in the common battle.

Vocal Cure

But no amount of exhortation is likely to keep the economy within acceptable guidelines so long as people sense a contradiction between the government's words and actions. Mr. Diefenbaker is for even more inflationary actions to be offset in some inexplicable fashion by stirring anti-inflationary words.

Nevertheless, in the particular case of the railway disputes, the Conservative leader has taken a position against extreme claims based on the seaway development. This is a useful development, more important than his contradictory advice to ministers on the general subject of inflation. Politically speaking, it means that the pressure is not all for settlement at any price as it was earlier in the Quebec longshoremen and seaway disputes.

The Hazard Behind the Wheel

The Ottawa Citizen

MR. H. K. MACDONALD, president of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, has rightly reminded the motoring public that human failure is the biggest single factor contributing to traffic deaths.

The current campaign to have manufacturers build safer cars is undoubtedly warranted. But it would be unfortunate indeed if this action detracted from long-standing efforts to make the driver aware of his responsibilities. Said Mr. Macdonald in a Montreal interview the other day: "Although we favor the use of techniques which would assure greater safety in automobiles, we believe that the biggest effort must be made to avoid the first accident, the one involving the vehicle and an outside element."

The need to ensure that young drivers follow the rules of the road are more than ever necessary. Ottawa lags behind the rest of the province in providing facilities for driver education at the high school level.

About 40 per cent of Ontario high schools will make driving courses available this fall. In Ottawa such courses will be provided at only four of the 17 high schools—the Technical High School, Gloucester, Champlain and Rideau. This is an improvement over the situation which existed during the past term, when driver training was given at three high schools. But the Collegiate Institute Board is still not placing enough emphasis on driver education. Perhaps the time has come to make driving courses part of the regular program throughout the Ottawa high school system, rather than regard it as an extra-curricular subject as is now the case.

Oratorical Distortion in Civil Rights Debate

THE record of the recent civil rights debate in the House of Representatives is acrid with emotional reaction to the summer's racial disturbances. An analysis of the record suggests that many of the American people, if they are accurately represented in the House, have been led by this reaction into a tragically dangerous misunderstanding of the country's racial dilemma.

Purser

Southern representatives throughout the debate tried to steer attention away from the Negro plight, to present America as a country plunged into a chaos of lawlessness. "The people of America are crying for law and order," shouted Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina. "They are tired of mob rule, tired of riots . . . and tired of being threatened by a militant, well-organized and well-financed, sneering, demanding minority. The American people—the vast majority—are patient, but their patience is at an end."

Few white Americans have, in fact, ever seen a genuine "riot." There have been mobs; but there is no "mob rule." The Negro minority does not set out to threaten anyone — but it has a lot to demand, a lot to sneer at, and a lot to be militant about. It is not well-financed; it is significantly poorer than the white majority. The outbreaks of violence have been evidence of lack of organization rather than the reverse. And if the patience of "the vast majority" of Americans is at an end, what does Mr. Rivers think of the patience the Negroes have endured for a century?

The debate showed a tendency among House members to equate demonstrating with rioting, and non-violence with violence, and to ignore casual questions. Rep. John Dowdy of Texas demonstrated the latter point: "Let there be a riot, for instance, and the questions immediately raised are . . . how to improve the life of the rioter so he will have something else to riot about."

The real question raised is how to improve life in the riot area. Not everyone in a riot area is a rioter. Most are cowering at home. And the purpose of improvement is precisely so there will not be anything to riot about.

Rep. John Buchanan of Alabama equated civil disobedience—a method of combatting injustice that has been respectable in American history since Thoreau—with its opposite: "rioting, looting improve life in the riot area. Not and lawlessness."

Rep. Robert Duncan of Oregon, who may be elected senator from that state in November, injected a little reason into the proceedings. "The country," he said, "is faced with a refusal by a minority group to any longer tolerate what has amounted to a refusal by the majority to accord them rights all other Americans have anjoyed for years. This refusal by the minority has assumed the proportions of a revolution. America should have long since recognized these inequities, and, thereby, the deaths and injuries to Negroes and whites alike and the destruction of property, might have been averted. We did not."

Relatively few Duncans spoke up in the debate. More speakers took the tone of Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, who said that "the current riots and disorders are the biggest single threat to the peace and security of the United States." Not, you will note the conditions that breed riots and disorders.

The Civil Rights Bill of 1966, which was finally passed despite the poor floor showing by its supporters — a showing prompted by general fears of conservative charges of "condoning violence" during the current election campaign — deals with interference with citizens' rights, among other provisions. It provides penalties for actual or attempted injury, intimidation or interference with any person because of his race when that person is seeking to exercise his constitutional rights.

Debate on this section of the bill provided the highest emotional point of the whole lengthy civil rights wrangle. It ended with passage of an amendment offered by Rep. William Cramer of Florida, which provides penalties for anyone crossing or sending mail across state lines to "incite, promote, encourage, or carry on . . . a riot or other violent civil distrubance."

House liberals had to acquiesce in this amendment to get the "protection of rights" section passed at all. To the liberals, the Cramer amendment could be interpreted as referring to Ku Klux Klansmen, members of the American Nazi Party, etc. For it is true that the really ugly moments of racial violence this summer have come from whites — in Chicago, and in Baltimore. In the latter city a genuine out-of-state agitator, a white man named Connie Lynch, directly incited white mobs to do violence against Negroes. And rarely from Negroes has been heard the mass race hatred emanating from the lips of white Chicagoans trying to preserve their "white ghettoes."

But to Southerners, the Cramer amendment is hopefully aimed at the Martin Luther Kings and other civil rights leaders who do not advocate violence. Violence often follows in their footsteps, but they do not incite it. Yet many southern congressmen, during the debate, pretended that the peaceful and legitimate civil rights leaders incited the violence inflicted on them by whites. The "he who casts the first stone" philosophy does not prevail among this group. Negro rights have been denied for years. Negroes at last stand up and protest. Whites react violently. And the Negroes get blamed.

Where race is concerned, this is still a crazy, mixed-up country.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

There are many interesting things to see if you go for a drive out along the Sooke Road.

As you dip down under the shadow of Mt. Metchosin you will find the red alders and the western maple are still very green and lush. The hard nut-like cones of the alder are thick on the twigs.

Some of the trees are sixty feet high or more and the trunks are clean and straight. Here the mosses hang heavy on the old maples. The samaras or seed often have four nutlets in a cluster.

Stop and look up the rock face of the mountain. See how rugged it is in places. One wonders just how the fir trees are able to grow and thrive on such a steep slope.

In the ditch beside the road there are a number of spots where the cattails are tall and growing in profusion. The long lance-like leaves wave in the wind.

Here and there you can find plumps of goldenrod with masses of golden blooms. These pyramids of tiny flowers were once used as brilliant yellow dye.

The pollen from this plant is said to cause hay fever, but this does not hold true.

Wandering along this little valley, McKenzie Creek runs through several tiny green pastures where one can see black sheep grazing, providing a scene of serenity.

There are many places where you can see very old cedar stumps that were cut many years ago. In them you can see the holes made to hold the "springboard" on which the old time loggers stood to cut the tree.

Some of these old stumps have now grown a crown of other shrubs, such as the salal and the red huckleberry. Close by, the stumps of Douglas fir have almost rotted away and in many places are covered with the creeping blackberry.

GLURP Power Struggle Reported in Ottawascow

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWASCOW—The Central Committee of the Glorious Liberal Universal Revolutionary Party (GLURP) is being wracked by a new power struggle rooted in policy differences on economic matters, foreign observers agreed here today.

Waring

In the three years and four months since GLURP destroyed the personality cult of the former prime minister, Diefenbaker, its achievements have fallen short of its promises. Most notably the Central Committee has failed to implement radical proposals to foil the alleged machinations of "U.S. imperialistic capitalism." Those who proposed to use all the resources of national embyrosocialism against U.S. corporate imperialism have either been purged or relegated to positions of no consequence, including the ministers Gordon and Lamontagne.

While GLURP was in the throes of this convulsion, what official sources called "rightist counter-revolutionary elements" in the semi-autonomous semi-republic of Quebec (SASRQ) were attacking the Central Committee's decisions with "pseudo-dialectic arguments based on the outmoded pre-revolutionary constitution." These revisionists were eventually routed by party activists who withdrew their support, but not before their activities had encouraged what the party press called "misguided individuals who attempted to create conditions for establishment of a bourgeois neo-nationalistic state by such hooliganisms as bombing mail boxes."

The Toronto Red Star hailed Chairman Pearson's victories over both the radical activists and the SASRQ revisionists as proof that "the heroic leader of the glorious April Revolution is infallible." But within a year the ideological conflict was resumed by Gordon activists who seek a rededication of GLURP to the principle of "militant opposition to Yankee capitalistic imperialism."

These activities, discordant with party policy as laid down by Chairman Pearson, were soon matched by disaffection by military rightists. The defence minister Hellyer reacted swiftly, and a half-dozen admirals and generals were purged. The admiral Landymore, a ringleader in the revisionist cabal, now works on a farm tending cattle.

★ ★ ★

The resurgence of activist opposition to party policy was fed by the former minister Gordon's book, "A Choice for Canada," which despite the fact that it has not been banned is widely read among intellectuals. Fears that Gordon's views might prevail broadened a personality conflict between Thatcher, the local party leader in Saskatchewan (SASK.) and Chairman Pearson.

Rumors have been confirmed that Thatcher attempted to organize opposition to GLURP, and even to dissociate the whole western region from the Central Committee.

As the Winnipeg Workers Press put it, "Some attempt to excuse Thatcher's brazen activities in terms of his opposition to the former minister Gordon. This is palpably a red herring, as only recently Chairman Pearson, with his usual inspired insight and enlightened action, smashed a plot by the Gordon activists that would have deprived citizens of their undeniable right to pay more than 6 per cent interest on bank loans."

Foreign observers believe that much of the dissension and conflict within GLURP is caused by the ambitions of several party members to succeed Chairman Pearson. However, it can be stated on good authority that Chairman Pearson is in excellent health. When it was suggested to him recently that he go jump in the river and swim nine miles, he laughed it off as too easy. Instead, he went fishing.

Research Project—How to Be Rude Without Really Trying

By ART STOTT

AMONG my earliest recollections of family training is the memory of constant repetition by my parents of a single theme. "If you can't be anything else," they told me, and kept telling me, "be courteous." "Good manners," they held, "cost nothing." "There is no substitute," ran another version, "for consideration of others."

Stott

It is my hope that the lesson they read me had some effect. But with advancing years and increasing crotchetiness, I've come to question the absolute accuracy of their dictum. Good manners do cost something and courtesy can create undue wear and tear on the human spirit.

So now, paraphrasing the title of a successful play, I'm considering research on the subject: "How to be rude to people without really trying."

I embark on the project with considerable regret. But it occurs to me that practising courtesy is something like playing friendly tennis. You bat a little courtesy across the net and the receiver returns it to you—if the game is to be friendly. The trouble occurs when you find that a large number of people aren't interested in being friendly. They just want their own way and t'hell with anybody who may object to them having it. The result isn't gentle pat-ball.

★ ★ ★

In recent years I have noted, without really studying the procedure, how a number of men adjudged successful have been able to overcome the waste of time and the emotional strain imposed by the practice of courtesy.

Three highly effective methods—methods which can be mastered without really trying—are simple demonstrations of disinterest. You are talking to a person, explaining a particular point and trying to arrive at a solution to a problem which will spare another's feelings.

Technique No. 1 on the part of your intended listener is merely to walk away.

Technique No. 2 can be used even while sitting down. You're again talking to a person with the same intent as in Illustration No. 1 above. He closes out the conversation merely by picking up a magazine and reading it.

Technique No. 3—also practised while sitting—demands a little of his time. Instead of looking you in the eye while you're speaking, he looks at a point an inch and one-half above your right eye, focussing his gaze sharply. You forget what you're saying and wonder what he's looking at so intently. So you excuse yourself hurriedly and walk away to examine the area one and one-half inches above your right eye to see if you've laid a smudge over it, or are about to give birth to a small boil there.

All three methods have a continuing effectiveness. They solve his problem immediately by shutting you up. Of more lasting importance, they convince you that he isn't particularly interested in anything you have to say—so you cease imposing on his time in future, realizing that what concerns you is of no consequence to him.

★ ★ ★

The virtue of these forms of being rude to people without even trying is that it preserves the dignity of the practitioner. There is no unseemly exchange of epithets—not even the implication of the old vaudeville patter man's "Get away from me boy, you bother me."

I would like to have the courage to use these devices instead of burning up energy to cover my exasperation at times. But the habits ingrained in childhood are hard to cure.

Just when I'm ready to walk away from a dialogue—or monologue—pick up a magazine and read it while someone is talking to me, or work the gimmick of staring at the spot one and one-half inches above my visitor's right eye, the admonitions of boyhood recur. "If you can't be anything else, be courteous."

In addition, I have the unhappy weakness of realizing that the person talking to me is a human being and is usually saying something that is important to him, no matter how silly it sounds to me. So I at least try to appear to be listening. Sometimes I learn something and I avoid a guilt complex which, to my mind, should be the automatic wages of those who can be rude without really trying.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

The governments of both Canada and the U.S. were wrestling this week to cope with new inflationary pressures on their economies.

As a long and costly airlines strike neared an end in the U.S. the commercial banks and federal reserve board raised interest rates to tighten up credit.

The government insisted the economy is healthy, but administration officials admitted the president's wage-price "guidelines" have gone out the window.

An increase in the price of steel and the airlines settlement both exceede the guideline limits.

The commerce department urged both management and labor to exercise restraint in the coming months to help curb inflation.

The New York stock exchange skidded to new lows for the year and fear of inflation was given by analysts as the main reason.

●

In Canada the cabinet was called into special session to deal with a rail strike threatened within the next two weeks.

Prime Minister Pearson said the government would take steps to head off the strike if a settlement is not reached through negotiations before the deadline.

Either way the 120,000 railway workers are expected to receive a healthy wage boost which will lead to further price increases across the country.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker blamed the government-imposed settlement in the St. Lawrence Seaway strike this spring for touching off the current inflationary spiral. He urged the government to introduce a set of wage-price guidelines to hold it in check.

●

There was another serious clash, the second in a month, between Israel and Syria on the Sea of Galilee.

Israel accused Syria of firing from shore at a stranded Israeli fishing boat and a patrol vessel which had come to its rescue. In an ensuing airfight the Israelis claim to have shot down two Syrian MiGs.

The Syrians claimed more that 50 crew members of Israeli military boats were killed as three vessels were sunk and eight other set afire.

A United Nations truce team once again managed to bring about a cease-fire.

●

The U.S. House Committee on Un-American Activities opened new hearings into groups opposing the Viet Nam war and immediately ran into turmoil.

First an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer succeeded in getting a court injunction holding up the hearings and then, after another judicial panel had upset the ruling, had himself hauled out of the committee room and arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

Seven other lawyers stalked out of the hearings in protest.

The harassed chairman of the committee said he intended to introduce legislation to make it a federal crime to send aid to the Viet Cong or attempt to impede troop and ammunition movements in the U.S.

Opponents of the war who take such action are "yellow-bellied cowards," said Rep. Edwin Willis of Louisiana.

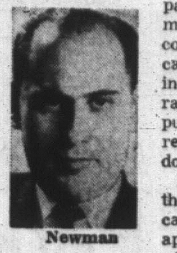
Containing Canadian Inflation Is Government's Fiercest Test

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—In this fortieth month of its stewardship, the Pearson government finds itself facing the severest test of all: can it contain the fires of inflation threatening the Canadian economy, or will the Prime Minister stoke them higher by once again yielding to irresistible forces in settling the impending railway strike and other demands on the treasury.

The problem here is not just the maintenance of consumer prices at a reasonable level, though that's important enough for a government pledged to a war on poverty. But more than that, the outcome of the government's battle with inflation will determine once and for all, whether the Liberals really possess the will to govern this country.



Newman

As a result of the administration's past economic blunders, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp is now in a position uncomfortably like that of Donald Fleming, his unhappy Conservative predecessor, who failed to impose a sane fiscal policy on his prime minister. Then, the trouble was that John Diefenbaker regarded economics as a black art fit only for eggheads.

More Interested In Escaping

Now the problem is that we have in Lester Pearson a prime minister more interested in escaping uncomfortable confrontations than in applying tough solutions to urgent problems.

Four decisions, now before cabinet, will provide an accurate measure of the government's determination and capacity to deal seriously with inflation. If the government yields to these four requests for funds, it will involve the expenditure — through pay increase and government handouts — of about $1.2 billion in the next year. Failure to resist these demands would therefore give a sharp upward twist to the inflationary spiral already endangering the short-term future of the Canadian economy.

The four decisions are these:

1. How to deal with the impending strike of 120,000 railway workers whose wage demands total nearly $200 millions. The cabinet must find a way of keeping the trains running, while backing away from the precedents it set when prime ministerial intervention last spring granted wage increase of 33 per cent for the Montreal stevedores and 37 per cent for the seaway workers.

These settlements were hailed as great political victories, but it's now obvious that no examination of their economic implications was even attempted. One reason the government is in such deep trouble with the railways is that like its predecessor, it has failed to implement the recommendations of the Macpherson royal commission on transportation. That report, tabled more than five years ago and ignored ever since, offers an intelligent basis for rationalizing Canada's railway system.

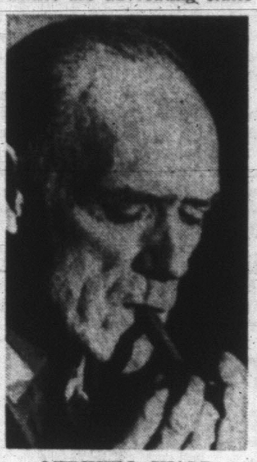
Pension Boost Poses Problem

2. What to do about the $30-a-month increase the Government promised to Canada's 1.1 million old age pensioners in the dying days of the last parliamentary session. The Conservative opposition forced the government's hand on this issue, before cabinet had an opportunity to think through how the $225 million package might be financed.

3. Whether or not to proceed with the $340-million-a-year (in federal contributions) medicare program to which the Liberals also pledged themselves in the last session — this time, under pressure from the NDP. Provincial dissatisfaction with the terms of the medicare offer would give the Liberals a good excuse for backing off, but in that case there's a strong possibility that the NDP would force a showdown at the next session by holding up supply bills.

4. How to deal with the 14 per cent pay hike Paul Hellyer feels he must have to help stem the hemorrhage of trained personnel leaving the armed services (a 14 per cent pay boost for the existing military establishment would cost about $80 millions.) Because Hellyer has tied the increases to his newly unified rank structure, he may well put his job on the line if the requested raise is turned down.

During the discussion of these and related matters in cabinet, a split has become apparent between ministers who supported modified versions of the requests and others who urge a tough stand against more spending. In effect, the two factions of cabinet are advocating either controlled inflation or a policy of economic deflation. The trouble with deflation as a policy is that it's too crude an instrument and could cause serious unemployment (unfortunately, there is no such thing as controlled deflation.).



MITCHELL SHARP
. . . in hot spot

One approach to restraining inflation (now being investigated by the Economic Council of Canada) is that Ottawa establish a set of "incomes policies" which would attempt to keep pay and incomes increases across the nation in line with the expansion of the economy's productive capacity. But no industrialized nation which has proclaimed such "incomes policies" has found them very effective. Even as compact and unitary a state as the United Kingdom couldn't make its "incomes policies" stick without compulsion.

Too Decentralized For the Policy

Furthermore, most economists in Ottawa agree that Canada is both constitutionally and structurally too decentralized an economy for an "incomes policy" to be effective, even on a compulsory basis. ("Who, for example," asks one of them, "is going to prevent W. A. C. Bennett from making a generous settlement with B.C. woods workers on the eve of a provincial election campaign?").

Despite these serious drawbacks, there's a strong possibility that the Liberal government will shortly issue its own set of anti-inflationary guidlines. This way at least, the national interest will have been defined.

Inflation has become an occupational hazard of Liberal governments in very much the same way as high unemployment seems to plague Conservative cabinets. It was the serious threat of inflation in the spring of 1957 that caused Walter Harris to table a budget which, despite its $258 million surplus, gave the old age pensioners a boost of only $6 a month, and cost the Liberals the election that followed.

When the Liberals returned to power, in the spring of 1963, they attempted to offset the high unemployment of the Diefenbaker years with a Kennedy-like promise of "getting the economy moving again."

That part of Walter Gordon's first budget which survived was full of expensive measures to accelerate the country's economic expansion. But the economy was already rolling, partly because of the boost in exports which followed the Diefenbaker government's devaluation of the dollar the previous spring.

Growth Greater Than Expected

The Liberals, like the Conservatives before them, added massive new expenditures to the federal budget, and always the economy's growth turned out to be faster than they expected. (The 1964 budget estimated an increase in the Gross National Product of 5.5 per cent; which turned out to be 8.9 per cent. The 1965 budget predicted a 7 per cent jump, which turned out to be just over 9 per cent.)

Finally in August of 1965, the prime minister, worried about the overheated economy, announced a cut-back in government spending, and urged private industry to do likewise. But a month later he hit the election trail, scattering hockey arenas, causeways and various other capital projects across the country, thus negating his own policy.

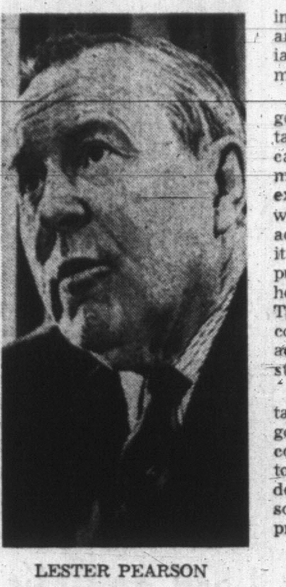
During the campaign, Mitchell Sharp sent a letter to his constituents in Toronto-Eglinton proclaiming that a majority government was essentail because of "the tough decisions which must be taken to ensure steady economic progress. These decisions must be taken without delay or Canada will suffer."

Tough Decisions Never Identified

Though Sharp never identified his tough decisions, it's now apparent that he was thinking of some strong anti-inflationary measures. But when the government was returned, Liberal policy makers, apparently shocked into immobility by their minority mandate, did nothing about inflation or any other economic problems.

Then on Feb. 21 this year, representatives of the International Monetary Fund arrived in Ottawa, looked over our national accounts and in private sessions with several ministers, cautioned against inflation.

The first Sharp budget, which followed on March 29, took up this warning. It raised taxes (through a special 5 per cent refundable levy on business profits); pledged a 10 per cent cut on government construction (amounting to $34.8 millions) and called for a halt to new government spending programs. This was a relatively mild dose of anti-inflationary medicine, but Sharp hoped it would reduce capital expansion by at least $300 millions.



LESTER PEARSON
. . . has he the will?

It's now obvious that the budget failed as an effective anti-inflationary instrument. Capital expenditures by governments (pushed by the provinces) are up 11.9 per cent at mid-year; capital spending in the private sector is up 23 per cent.

Part of the trouble seems to be that Sharp's budget ignored the largest components of the rise in the consumer price index. Of the 3.4 per cent increase in the index over the past year, a full 2 per cent has been accounted for by climbing food and housing costs. In the case of food, higher prices are due to world-wide shortages, droughts, the bad hog cycle and rapid population growth. Housing costs have been rising, because construction is an industry that most immediately feels the impact of tight money.

It seems obvious that the government will now have to take action in the area of capital spending. Because much of private industry's expansion is in large projects which can not easily be adjusted to longer timetables, it's Ottawa which will have to pull back drastically on its heavy construction spending. This will take more political courage than the Pearson administration has demonstrated to date.

But if it is serious about tackling inflation, the federal government will have to cut construction outlays, put tough restraints on wage demands and defer at least some of its new spending programs.

There is no easy way out.

Clear Warning Against Inflation

The clearest warning about what could happen has come from Douglas Fullerton, president of Fullerton, Mackenzie and Associates, the Ottawa investment consultants. Fullerton pointed out in a recent article published in the Financial Times of Canada that the effects of increases in costs have hardly begun to work themselves through our price structure.

"One hesitates to predict the precise moment at which these price factors will make themselves felt," he wrote, "but it is not unreasonable to suggest that when the centennial of Confederation rolls around on July 1, 1967, Canada will be at the point of experiencing not a joyous celebration of our birth but an economic crisis that may be as severe as anything we have experienced since the Great Depression of the 1930s."

Stability, Cost of Living Among Canadian Concerns

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

High at the top of the list of Canada's most urgent needs is a stable government, according to about a third of the voters.

(This concern over Canada's need for a better government was also revealed in a recent study when the public was asked to name the greatest problem facing Canada.)

Today's question is couched in lighter vein but the answers are dead serious: "There used to be a humorous saying that what this country needs is a good five-cent cigar. But quite seriously, what do you think this country needs most?"

"New leadership . . . younger men in government . . . more dedicated men in politics . . . more stable government," say 32% of the people.

Other needs mentioned by Canada's adults include:

"Higher wages . . . price controls or a decrease in the cost of living . . . more grants to education . . . more development of industry . . . more religion and discipline in family life . . . more employment . . . better understanding between management and labor . . . a reduction of strikes," and, finally, "a need for national unity."

A couple of cigar-smoking respondents said they would happily settle for "a good five-cent cigar."

Whichever Way Water Arrives
—You Need a Technician

If you cross the Prairies this summer—or if you come from the Land where the wheat is grown—two structures will be familiar: the grain elevator and the community water tower.

Both are landmarks for almost every town and village on that vast golden plain.

Not that they are unknown on the evergreen coast.

There's a grain elevator at Ogden Point—though of somewhat different design to the Prairie sentinels.

There are water towers, too. One, once the primary supplier of water for Victoria, is now just a neon-lit landmark.

Another, in the shadow of the University of Victoria, used to supply a farm at Sinclair and Finnerty.

Water for Greater Victoria, city or house, is in plentiful supply from pressure mains; the gravity-feed tank is a thing of the past.

But the journeyman technician isn't.

We still need him to handle the water by whichever method it arrives at the house.

Lord and His Great Power Subject of Science Talk

"Great is our Lord, and of great power: His understanding is infinite." This well-known verse from Psalm 147 is the Golden Text for this week's Bible lesson-sermon on "Mind" to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday.

Included among the explanatory readings from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will be these lines: "Nothing is new to Spirit.

"Nothing can be novel to eternal Mind, the author of all things, who from all eternity knoweth His own ideas. Deity was satisfied with His work.

"How could He be otherwise, since the spiritual creation was the outgrowth, the emanation, of His infinite self-containment and immortal wisdom?"

FUNERAL LITURGY TO STRESS FORGIVENESS, NOT FIERCENESS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Church has started — with Vatican approval — an experiment with its funeral liturgy. It stresses the forgiveness of sin rather than the fierceness of death.

The new liturgy guidelines, already in effect in some archdiocese churches here, state that the mass is the only mandatory text that must be used at adult funerals.

Adventist Eyes Expanding Role

DETROIT (AP) — A soft-spoken, reflective man who sees an expanding role for the church in the modern world is the new leader of the 1,600,000-member Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Robert H. Pierson, 55, previously head of Adventist missions in Africa, was elected world president of the church recently by delegates to the world conference of Adventists.

"Naturally, I was surprised," Pierson said after his election.

"When a responsibility like this is thrust upon one all of a sudden, it makes one feel a great dependence upon the Lord."

Pierson succeeds Reuben R. Figuhr, world president for 12 years whose main principles — "evangelization, publishing and medical and educational programs around the world" — Pierson says he plans to follow.

Pierson, now a resident of Salisbury, Rhodesia, was born in Brooklyn, Iowa, the son of Adventist parents. His father was president of a bank.

Author of 13 religious books and numerous articles in Adventist publications, Pierson has two sons.

He entered the service of his church in 1933 and moved to India two years later. Named pesident of the church's south India mission in 1941, he returned to the United States in 1942, serving as a pastor in Washington and had a half-hour radio broadcast nightly over a New York City station.

He headed the church's West Indies union from 1944 until 1950, then moved to a similar post in South Asia. After further service in the Kentucky-Tennessee and Texas conferences, he became in 1958 president of the Trans-Africa division.

"The church is not going to slow down," Pierson said. "If anything the tempo will increase. That's the indication all around the world."

Priests Building Motors

BARCELONA, Spain (Reuters) — Four young Roman Catholic priests who want to work as hard as their parishioners are assembling electric motors in a workshop here and donating their state salaries to charity.

The priests surround their work in secrecy and refuse to talk to reporters. But Catholic sources report that they are living solely on the earnings of their workshop.

They are said to have thought of the idea after deciding that the recent Vatican council declarations constituted a call on the clergy to get closer to the lives of working people.

The Archbishop of Barcelona, Gregorio Modrego, visited the workshop and granted temporary permission for the four to continue their labors as long as they could also carry out their church duties properly.

ALLOWED IN FRANCE

Last November the Vatican council voted in favor of a cautious go-ahead for resumption of the worker-priest experiment. Pope Paul had already allowed it to be revived in France for an experimental period of three years.

The original movement started in 1943 during the German occupation of France. It ended in a religious upheaval and a Vatican ban in 1959. One of the aims had been to reduce Communist influence among the workers.

But some priests were reported to have taken office in Communist-dominated unions and some had taken part in strikes.

When the movement was started again in France last October, priests were forbidden to hold union office, although they were told they could be ordinary members.

Group Demands Cross Removal

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Witnesses testified in a circuit court here this week that a 55-foot cross, which is lighted on a hill above Eugene during the Christmas and Easter seasons, should be removed because it has religious overtones.

Dr. Alfred Bloom, an assistant professor of religious history at the University of Oregon, said there was no evidence that the cross has only artistic or decorative value.

"The cross is a symbol of the power of God and can be interpreted in no other way in the Christian religion," said Bloom, who added that he would prefer that religious symbols be kept off public property.

RELIGIOUS SYMBOL

James Witzig, a psychologist for the Lane County health department, testified that the cross on the hill "represents a profanation of the cross which is a religious symbol to me."

"It makes me uneasy that the protective neutrality of the state isn't being observed," he said.

Dr. Dirk Ten Brinke, head of the science department at South Eugene High School, said the city of Eugene—which has approved the cross—is interfering with religion.

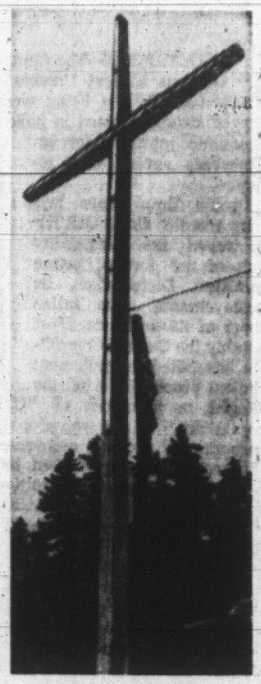
"One should be free to hold any view he wishes without the interference of government," he said.

FRUSTRATING

A parade of witnesses of diverse religious backgrounds has testified before Circuit Court Judge William Fort that the presence of the cross was frustrating, offensive and restricting to them.

Fort is hearing (without a jury) a suit brought more than a year ago by a group of 10 citizens, headed by Unitarian minister Carl Nelson, which seeks to have the cross removed.

The controversial symbol was erected, and anchored in eight tons of concrete, by a group of local business firms in 1964. City council issued a permit a month after it was constructed.



EUGENE'S CROSS . . . offensive?

His 'Search' Led To Life of Addict

PLANO, Ill. (AP)—Ron's a hippie from New York's Spanish Harlem. At 23 he's been to Europe twice and across the U.S. several times. He's been an artist, a playwright, a poet and a musician.

"I've always been searching," he said. "That's how I got started on dope."

Gordon's a Negro from Chicago's South Side. At 33 he has "been in more institutions than I can say."

One is the federal hospital for dope addicts at Lexington, Ky., where he has been a patient four times.

"In the neighborhood where I grew up, the drug addicts were the successful people," he said.

Together with 25 other addicts living in a house in Plano, a rural community of 4,000 about 70 miles west of Chicago, Ron and Gordon are trying to kick their habit "through Jesus."

They've tried other things—psychiatry, medicine, voluntary commitment to institutions—but none has helped.

Both are sure Addicts for Jesus, a group founded in New York with the belief that accepting Christ is the only way to cure addiction, is the answer for them.

Gordon left the house once, went back to Chicago and back to dope. But he returned three days later.

"I'm sacred out on the street," he said. "This is the first place I've ever felt safe."

Ron has been off dope for as long as a year at a time, only to get hooked again, each time worse than before. Then an acquaintance directed him to the Faith Tabernacle of Chicago's North Side, where Rev. Devore Walterman "recruits" addicts.

Mr. Walterman says:

"For those who place their faith in God, God takes the place of the drug. We're able to help about 80 per cent of those who come to us."

Sight of Aged, Sick Locates East Train

HANNOVER, West Germany (AP)—You get a glimpse of what the Iron Curtain means when you watch the trains from East Germany roll in.

It's always easy to tell the platform at which such trains are expected. It's the one with nurses in starched uniforms and volunteer workers leaning on wheelchairs.

Here in Hannover you can witness the scene daily at 2:28 p.m., when train D136 from Leipzig, East Germany, arrives.

Behind the softly humming electric locomotive a long string of green painted cars comes to a slow, screeching halt. Passengers crowd the windows. Most are old and withered.

They are pensioners from East Germany.

For many years after the end of the Second World War the Communist authorities of East Germany allowed only a privileged few to leave the country legally. Meanwhile, millions fled to West Germany and into West Berlin. To stop this exodus of manpower the Communists in August, 1961, threw up the Berlin wall.

ALLOWED VISITS

Three years later pensioners were allowed to visit relatives in West Germany for four weeks each year. If the pensioners chose to remain in the West they were no loss to the working force.

With few exceptions the pensioners come into West Germany by rail, and scenes like the one in Hannover are repeated wherever trains from East Germany stop.

The smartly dressed Germans on the platform crane their necks as the cars roll by, seek out faces and wave frantically when they recognize someone. Many women break into tears.

The doors open and the oldsters begin their slow descent.

The men with the wheelchairs pick up an oldster here and there and push him toward the concourse past knots of embracing people.

Aftr a six-minute stop train D136 glides out, bound for Cologne. Most long-distance trains in this country stop for only one minute at stations but the management seems to have made an exception in the case of the "oldster expresses."

Driver Avoids Collision; But Not Fine

Harlin Jackson, 1003 Lodge, was fined $40 in traffic court Thursday for careless driving in a written judgment delivered by Magistrate Byers.

The conviction followed an accident on the Pat Bay Highway at a simulated traffic island north of Elk Lake.

The collision occurred between cars following the accused as he made a left turn. Jackson's action constituted careless driving, the magistrate ruled.

FAREWELL EMBRACE from one of two young gorilla "foster children" was given Lester Bulgrin, supervisor of Milwaukee zoo. He's tended their wants for seven years but now they are so big even their love can be dangerous and Bulgrin can no longer enter their cage. (AP Wirephoto.)

Race Riots Warning Sounded by Johnson

KINGSTON, R.RI. (AP)—President Johnson, stumping across New England in campaign style, today said achievement of full rights and opportunities for American Negroes "will avail us nothing if our society is torn by violence and discord."

The president turned to civil rights and racial rioting as he began the second day of his five-state tour with an address at a convocation at the University of Rhode Island.

In a prepared speech he said: "The poor suffer twice at the rioter's hands: First, when his destructive fury scars their neighborhoods; Second, when the atmosphere of accommodation and consent is changed to one of hostility and resentment."

In a series of stops in upstate New York Friday, Johnson pledged to "take the profit out of poverty," announced an intensified effort to end pollution in the Great Lakes and said the United States was standing up for freedom in Viet Nam. He drew large, cheering crowds along the way.

At the university, Johnson said the American Negro "has made great gains in the past decade behind the banner of peaceful protest."

He added:

"We have begun to act—at last—to open real opportunities for the American Negro, and to help him to achieve them.

"We shall continue, multiplying and enlarging our efforts. Yet they can succeed only in conditions of civil peace. And civil peace can exist only when all men, Negro and white alike, are as dedicated to satisfying their responsibilities as they are to securing their rights."

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the Junior Bridge Club's game held this week were:

North-South—1. (tie) Elizabeth Laidlaw and Mabel Ness, Frances Watts and Bill Lamb. 3. Ann Roylance and Helen Tregellas. 4. Kay Clark and Gladys Cropp. East-West—1. Dick and Doreen Morriss. 2. Muriel and Rand Dierks. 3. Jean and Homer Kolb. 4. Howard Darwson and Min Milburn.

PM Blamed For Causing Rail Dispute

RED DEER (CP)—Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, blamed Prime Minister Pearson Friday for causing a possible national rail strike by intervening in previous strikes.

Mr. Thompson charged the prime minister's "appeasement policy" gave Quebec dock workers and Seaway employees large increases that led to a "wage explosion" across the country.

High wage demands resulting from these earlier settlements of about 30 per cent are too much for Canada's economy to bear, Mr. Thompson said in an interview.

He warned a contiunation of the trend toward higher wages will place Canada by next year in the same situation Britain faces in its wages and price-freeze austerity.

Mr. Pearson must deal firmly with the current labor crisis or Parliament must be called into emergency session, Mr. Thompson said. He added Parliament should take a close look at the entire matter of labor-management relations.

LIP SERVICE

"If unions begin going to the government for settlement, they must quit paying lip service to the concept of free collective bargaining."

New labor laws are needed, he said. The trend seemed to be towards more government intervention in wage disputes, with the result negotiations drag.

Mr. Thompson predicted an emergency session of Parliament would lead to settlement of the rail-strike threat for wage increases considerably less than the 32 per cent employees are seeking.

He will leave for Ottawa tonight partially because of the current labor situation, Mr. Thompson said.

Pilots Fight Without Names

SAIGON (AP) — Many U.S. pilots flying missions over North Viet Nam are insisting that their names be kept out of the newspapers.

They fear hostile telephone calls to relatives or reprisals if they are captured.

Military headquarters in Saigon abides by the pilot's wishes in any news releases concerning action over the north.

The most recent case was the air force pilot who shot down a MiG-17 Thursday. His name was withheld at his request.

This policy dates back to the Korean conflict when many of the pilots fighting in MiG-Alley did so anonymously or under assumed names as far as news releases were concerned.

In Korea the motives varied. Many pilots did not want their families to know they were in combat. Some simply opposed publicity. Others did not want anything on record if they were taken prisoner.

MOTIVES SIMILAR

In Viet Nam the motives, in the order of their importance, are:

—Fear of telephone callers berating the airmen's families.

—Fear of reprisals if they are taken prisoner.

—Dislike of publicity.

—Those who don't want their families to know they are in combat—such as pilots whose wives are expecting babies or who have wives or relatives who would be upset by this knowledge.

The telephone calls and the war-prisoner aspects, however, are the overriding factors.

Authorities in Saigon believe that many of the telephone calls are not the work of cranks but are usually an organized effort by Communists, fellow-travellers or others opposed to the war in Viet Nam.

Such calls have evoked bitter sentiments from practically all U.S. pilots in Viet Nam, as well as most servicemen here.

Hanoi's recent threats to try downed pilots as war criminals was also a serious factor in the thinking of many pilots asking for anonymity.

The number of such flyers is not known. However, it is a significant figure.

Small Gains Recorded In War for Tolerance

NEW YORK (AP)—A survey published this week shows white prejudice against the Negro has not substantially lessened in the last three years in the United States.

The survey was conducted by Newsweek magazine which sent polling teams — including 113 Negro interviewers—throughout the U.S. to question 1,059 Negroes and 1,088 whites fron varying backgrounds.

Some survey results:

—About 88 per cent of the whites object to having a Negro family next door. (It was 51 per cent in 1963. It is 69 per cent in the U.S. south now.)

—About 46 per cent of the whites would be against their teen-age children dating Negroes.

—About 16 per cent of whites in general and 42 per cent of southern whites object to sitting next to a Negro in a restaurant, 21 per cent and 56 per cent, respectively, to using the same restroom; 16 and 44 per cent to sitting beside a Negro on a bus; 28 and 54 per cent to trying on clothing a Negro has tried on.

—About 63 per cent of whites believe all Negro demonstrations are bad. (It was 53 per cent three years ago.)

—About 50 per cent of whites believe Negroes have looser morals than whites.

—Two of every three Negroes questioned (three out of four in the south) believe their situation has improved in public accommodations. But for the majority, housing remains a sore point.

Target Shoots Back In New Army Test

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP)—The U.S. Army has developed a target that shoots back to test the effect of enemy fire on a soldier's marksmanship.

Scientists say that results indicate the return fire measurably affects the shooter's accuracy, but they wouldn't release any details.

The study was made at the Aberdeen proving ground by researchers of the U.S. Army human engineering laboratories.

The army modified a semi-automatic carbon dioxide-powered BB gun with a shortened barrel to reduce muzzle velocity and accuracy. The gun, situated just in front of a pop-up target, is fired electrically every half a second, beginning 1.3 seconds after the target is raised. It continues to fire until the target is hit or lowered.

Soldiers were protected by padding covering sensitive areas although they still could be stung by the pellets. They also could hear the pellets striking a backstop behind them.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Gary Wilcox of Victoria, publisher of the Victoria Folio of Stars and the B.C. Folio of Stars, which is scheduled to go to press in a few weeks, has announced plans for an amateur art and poetry contest in co-ordination with a Vancouver radio station.

The contest which is now open to any resident of B.C. is the first such contest ever sponsored by any radio station.

It's easy to enter and the rules are simple so anyone with any ability what-so-ever has got a good chance of topping the whole thing.

The rules include: The theme of the art piece or poetry must be concerned with the field of entertainment;

The length of the poetry entries must be between four and 10 lines;

All entries must be done with black India ink.

Well, that's about all there is to it. So get busy—the deadline is Sept. 3 and winning entries will be published in the B.C. Folio of Stars later in September.

The address: Radio CKLG, 1006 Richard St., Vancouver.

Talented Director Coming Here

Arriving within the next few days, to join the staff of Bastion Theatre as an associate director and instructor is Eugene Gallant, a National Theatre School graduate of the French language division. Mr. Gallant was born and educated in New Brunswick.

After graduation from the University of Moncton in 1960, he was one of the first students to be accepted in the technical section of the National Theatre School in Montreal.

His extensive experience has included stage management, set building and painting for Le Theatre duNouveau Monde, Le Stella, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, and Stratford Festival.

Mr. Gallant was company manager for Les Jeunes Comediens (the Canadian Players French company) on their last cross-Canada tour, which brought him to Victoria in March this year.

He has spent this summer attending a session on theatre and mime with Jacques Lecoq in Stratford, in conjunction with the National Theatre School.

Success of Bastion's inaugural summer session of theatre school (an enrolment of 90 youngsters from six to 17 years of age) assures a large enrolment when fall classes commence Sept. 26.

Instructors for the drama classes will be Stuart Baker, Anthony Burton and Eugene Gallant.

Classes will be held at 1322-A Government Street.

Successful Cemetery Plot Salesman

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Kaye Stevens, red-haired bombshell of the nightclubs, had an earlier career as probably the most successful teen-age cemetery plot salesman in the United States.

"I got used to money at a very early age," remarked the young singing comedienne. "I was just turning seven when I won $7.50 in an amateur contest — and I gave it all to the church."

When she was 14 her father, a Cleveland, Ohio, mechanic, died, and she had to go to work in earnest. Kaye, a self-taught singer who also plays bass, drums and guitar, soon was making $150 a week.

But the girl is a hard worker. On graduating at 16 from high school, she wanted to find something to occupy her days. She answered an ad requiring an "ability to meet people."

"The job was selling cemetery plots, and I loved it," said Kaye. "I wore a black dress and black-rimmed glasses and made myself up to look a mature 22.

"I made a minimum of $500 a week. Whatever you do, be good at it — that's my motto.

"It lasted a year and a half. Then I quit it for a job singing in Buffalo at $125 a week. That doesn't seem like good business, but it was what I wanted to do. Besides, we had sold all the lots in that cemetery, and I'd have had to find another one."

There followed several years in which she toured the country with a lounge trio and had a brief fling at the movies, during which she appeared in The Interns.

Miss Stevens got her big break when she responded to an urgent call to replace ailing Debbie Reynolds in a Las Vegas spot.

Kaye now romps about U.S. nightclubs, kissing some 500 bald men on the pate each year, and gets up to $20,000 a week for her singing chores.

She puts the stamp of her own talent in every feature of her act. She writes much of her own material, arranges songs, designs her own glamorous wardrobe, and even works with the engineers on lighting problems.

Kaye has a warm breezy personality, a fine voice, and is able to blend sentiment and comedy well. Her own childhood idol was Danny Kaye.

She believes firmly in a planned life. Step by step, she hopes to appear in a Broadway musical, try a television series of her own, and go back again to Hollywood, this time as a star.

Horsemen Anticipate Large Entry

A big post entry is expected at Garden City Horsemen's Club competition trail ride in the "wilds" of Mt. Douglas starting at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The ride starts from Parkside Acres, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Linfield, 1533 Ash Road, and will be under the chairmanship of Colin Springford.

There will be three classes, junior up to 14; intermediate, 14 to 18, and senior.

Riders will be started at two-minute intervals over a course of natural obstacles through the undeveloped part of Mt. Douglas Park. There will be a judge at each obstacle and points will be totalled at the end of the contest.

Trophies and ribbons will be awarded, and a late lunch will be supplied each contestant.

Proceeds from the ride will be given to aid handicapped children.

MURRAY McALPINE

Murray is a veteran of innumerable shows including a 38-week stint with TV in Seattle. He is a grand folk-singer but is also tops in items from Musical Comedy. As well as appearing in the Butchart Gardens sparkling revue "JUST FOR FUN" in a number of different items, Murray performs in the Tuesday evening Scottish Night at the Gardens. The tremendously entertaining revue "JUST FOR FUN" may be enjoyed from the great Butchart Gardens stage any Monday, Wednesday or Friday, 8:30 p.m., during the month of August and early September.

NORTH BREEZES
Once we told a dinner guest he looked sophisticated. He drew himself up haughtily and replied, "Sir, I never touch the stuff." So we don't use the word much any more.
But we hear it applied to our stellar entertainment duo, Rosalie and George, who charm our IMPERIAL guests five nights a week (Sunday and Monday excepted).
Now Oxford says to sophisticate is to "spoil the simplicity or purity or naturalness." When you hear Rosalie sing to George's piano ramblings you'll agree the purity and naturalness and simplicity shine through. We prefer to refer to them as "just plain terrific."

Delegates Begin Study of Reports

TORONTO — Francis Bacon's adage that reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man, could well be the motto of commissioners to the United Church of Canada's 22nd general council at Waterloo next month.

Commissioners (delegates) numbering around 400, half lay and half clergy, have already begun to study the reports of committees and commissions.

"It is an exacting responsibility to be a commissioner to general council," says Rev. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the general council and chairman of the agenda committee.

"It demands the discipline of studying the reports, acquaintance with the issues to be decided, and dedication to the Church and to her Lord."

Dr. Long also states that the 22nd Council may be one of the most important in the life of the United Church of Canada.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Two important announcements were made this week, affecting the musical life of the city. In both cases the possible repercussions are infinite.

The move of the Victoria Symphony Society headquarters from its present position in the School of Music building to Dunlop House on the Lansdowne Campus is far more than a physical relocation.

It became clear months ago that the expansion of the school would make it necessary to find a new home for the symphony but no one could have quite foreseen the good fortune that would attend the move.

Essentially, presence of the symphony offices on the campus means an affiliation between the symphony and the new Fine Arts Department of the university.

★ ★ ★

With wise administration on both sides, so that the Symphony Orchestra's identity as a civic organization remains clear, this can only be an advantageous liaison all round.

Without wisdom in controlling the situation there does exist a possible danger of the symphony becoming too much involved with the average concept of a university atmosphere charged with esoteric culture.

I'm speaking now of course from the point of view of the average pleasure-seeking concert goer from whom the symphony has principally been oriented, to whom, in a sense, it has belonged.

However, I am certain the only changes symphony patrons are likely to find in the foreseeable future will be for the general betterment.

"In the view of the University of Victoria," says University President Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor, "one of the most important institutions in the city is the symphony.

"The very presence of a good symphony in a city means all developments of music are flourishing," he comments.

The musical life thus engendered by the symphony makes the city important and attractive to creative people, Dr. Taylor points out.

It is his feeling that the university is responsible to the community and that the symphony will strengthen the services the Department of Fine Arts can provide for the community, that convinces me that all is well in the drawing together of the two institutions.

The appointment of new music faculty members at the university will in many cases contribute to the quality of the orchestra and, it is to be hoped, says Dr. Taylor, that the university's future top music students will have an opportunity to play with the orchestra in course of time.

"In fact there will be a constant and mutually beneficial interaction," he foresees.

★ ★ ★

John R. Meredith, president of the Victoria Symphony Society, agrees with this view.

"While the Symphony Society executive is most appreciative of the interest the University of Victoria has shown, this arrangement is certainly not a handout," he says. "There are mutual benefits."

Mr. Meredith, incidentally, is delighted with the new group of enthusiastic people who have joined the symphony board.

There is no doubt that their presence has made possible the putting into practice of an efficient and excellent plan for apportioning the duties and responsibilities of the organization from the president down.

★ ★ ★

The seond item of good news is the strong indication from the School of Music that a vocal department will get under way this fall.

Stanley Hoban, it is understood, will be responsible for this, visiting the school three times a week from his home base in Seattle.

Mr. Hoban was the very able director of the vocal workship conducted by the Northwest Region of the National Association Teachers of Singing at the Empress Hotel this week.

It is satisfactory to be able to report that the 80 out-of-town members of NATS, meeting for the first time in Canada and off campus, generally agreed that this was the "best ever."

"This is my 12th workshop," Sister Claudia of Mrylhurst College, Oregon, told me, "and it has been without doubt, the most stimulating and delightful."

It was memorable for me also. I shall never forget the vivid commentaries of Gwendolyn Kolofsky that have made me more than ever conscious of the high art of accompaniment and the possible depths of identification of the pianist with her music.

I shall never forget, for instance, hearing her comment on the Scarlatti-like character of accompaniment of the French chanson by saying that "my fingers always feel thinner when I'm playing French songs."

Neither will any of us forget the teaching demonstrations of Hubert Kockritz nor his marvellous lectures on phonetics.

Nor the teaching demonstrations of the Chamlees and the thrilling soprano voice of Ewan Mitton who had been their student from age 19 until she established her professional career.

The NATS workshop stirred some ideas and enthusiasms among Victorians that I am certain will bear fruit in the quite near future.

First Visit To West For Company

A visit to Victoria of Les Feux-Follets, Canada's national dane ensemble, will be jointly sponsored by the Hudson's Bay Company and the Centennial Celebrations Committee.

A professional company of 65 dancers, Les Feux-Follets will be making its first visit to Western Canada during January and February, 1967.

CASTING MEET SET

A casting meeting will be held Friday, Sept. 2 at 8 p.m., at St. Luke's Parish Hall, Cedar Hill X-Road, for the fall production, Pool's Paradise.

Anyone interested may attend or obtain further information by phoning 477-4400.

Director is Mrs. Jo Pepper, who says that some of the same characters appear in Pools Paradise as were involved in See How They Run, but that this new play is in no sense a sequal to the other.

Production will be in mid-November.

New officers for the Players, elected at a recent meeting, are Cmdr. H. Lukey, president; Fred Horner, vicepresidet; Mrs. Linda Rodger, secretary, and Peter Key, treasurer.

Armed Youth Surrenders, Girl, 13, Okay

FITZWILLIAM, N.H. (UPI)—A husky and heavily armed former mental patient surrendered without a struggle to police Friday after being found beside a rural road with the 13-year-old girl he allegedly abducted Thursday from her nearby Winchendon, Mass., home.

Both the captured youth, Steven H. Caouette, 18, and the girl, Marie Couture, appeared to be in good condition, police said.

Though carrying a loaded, 22-calibre rifle and a hunting knife, Caouette offered no resistance, authorities said.

Old Gowns To Tell Their Story

In their forthcoming event, Vintage Victoria, which is a sort of musical charade, members of Victoria Theatre Guild have written lyrics and drafted satirical skits to illustrate certain bits of local history connected with Avis Walton's gown collection.

The gowns are not the only original things in the show. Some of the members are too—namely those taking part in roles they had in the vintage days of the Guild back in 1932.

Mrs. Walton narrates the history of each dress, who wore it and where.

The commentary covers Chinese costumes and cotton frocks, dragged over the Oregon and Barkerville trails and ranges to rich stuffs made in Europe and brought around the Horn.

She is assisted by Joan Guest and abetted in a miniature production in mime by Leslie Allen, who directs a flashback to an old Guild play.

Performers include Ken Bostock, Peggy Walton Packard, the Robertsons, Al and Mimi, and many well-known locals who model the gowns.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

Swirling, Shifting Mists of Color Highlight Exhibition

By ROBIN SKELTON

Arnold Burrell's one-man show at Pandora's Box provides a most welcome opportunity to take a thorough look at the work of a painter who has only shown one or two works in mixed exhibitions during the last few years.

Skelton

The first thing one notices about Mr. Burrell is his romanticism and his love of subtle color modulations. Indeed, several of his finest works contain no definite forms whatsoever but consist of swirling and shifting mists of color.

One or two of these are so close in feeling to Turner's later and least figurative work that it is hard not to label Mr. Burrell as a latter-day impressionist.

I find myself, also, thinking from time to time of Manet, and of Sam Francis and Rothko.

This is not to suggest that Mr. Burrell's vision is not his own; I only wish to indicate that his work is soldly based in an established and still vital tradition.

'Sensuous Power Is Formidable'

Look at the subtle torrid Orange Landscape; its sensuous power is formidable. Look at the several small works on the theme Wind from Outer Harbor and notice just how precisely and delicately the colors flow into and counter each other.

These works, like the large oil, Wind from the Inner Harbor, are filled with the sense of movement and yet remain contemplative rather than dramatic.

There is something dreamlike about the deliberate formlessness of the moving tones; the longer one stares, the more mysterious and moving the picture becomes.

Not all Mr. Burrell's successes are lacking in formal definition, however, though all are certainly romantic and contemplative in mood. The small Landscape is quite definite in its manipulation of both form and color.

The mauve, grey-green, yellow, white, and the various blues are beautifully balanced against each other, and the paint is handled with great feeling for its tactile values.

This work does, perhaps, tremble on the edge of being too decorative to have staying power, but the similarly handled Moon-Tide, perhaps because it is largely composed of browns and greys, looks to me like a real winner.

Night Landscape, too, is definite in form as well as hauntingly evocative.

It is when Mr. Burrell turns from Turneresque impressionism to more decisive manners that he loses his grip.

The two Swamp Place pictures are no more than adequate; they have little power and are not fully composed.

The reed-shapes are handled without subtlety and the total effect is somewhat dull.

Large Oil Pleasing in Color

The large oil, Abandoned City, though pleasing in color, fails because of its composition.

The city is presented in a series of vertical forms which combine together to make a sort of folding screen.

This screen seems to be infinitely extendable to both left and right; there is no reason why the painting should not have gone all round the room.

Moreover, there are too few events within the picture area to prevent his feeling of infinite extension dominating my reactions.

In My Backyard is similarly organized, and contains several dead patches. It seems that once Mr. Burrell attempts a critical rather than a meditative mood his muse deserts him.

I am more than convinced of this because the self-consciously symbolic Necklace of Death with its Sutherlandesque approach to three forms, and the equally intellectualized Forms in a Pool are really no better than exercises. I recognize what they are doing, and how they are doing it, but I cannot feel any compulsion behind them.

The bird pictures, somewhat reminiscent of Alistair Bell, appear to me to be no more than examples of whimsy, though the bird sculptures are a little more interesting.

It seems to me that Mr. Burrell in this show presents us with a number of really superb and deeply felt works alongside a selection of exercises and bright ideas.

He must learn to distinguish the profound from the merely inventive, and to distrust his hankering after the decorative and whimsical.

If he can do this he will certainly become a painter of real importance; he has already created works of great feeling and beauty.

I should add, also, that the prices he charges are ridiculously low. I myself bought one small oil for $15. Rush along to Pandora's Box; it's bargain time!

A SILVER MEDAL for a group of 22 ceramic works was awarded recently to the Kootenay School of Art by the jury of the 24th International Competition of Ceramic Art in Faenza, Italy. Mrs. Sara Golling, here loading the school's high-fire gas kiln, in preparation for reduction firing, was awarded a third prize of 25,000 lira.

Intimate Glance Given Into Boudoirs of Great

LONG SHADOWS! MEMOIRS OF SHANE LESLIE, by Shane Leslie. Macmillan Co. of Canada, 1966. $8.75.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Sir Shane Leslie, the author and subject of Long Shadows, is a cousin of Sir Winston Churchill, his mother and Churchill's being sisters.

He was born at the family estate of Glaslough in Ireland in 1885, and for 80 years has moved among those figures who make history by virtue of their political importance, their wealth, their intellect, or their social position.

Perhaps the most interesting passages of Long Shadows are those containing anecdotes relating to Churchill. They are amazingly frank, intimate, and often amusing.

HANDLED WITH TASTE

Churchill's early unpopularity, the tragic decline and death of his father, and the frustrated romance between Churchill's mother and Count Charles Kinsky are all handled with taste.

Leslie also gives the reader intimate glances into the mansions and boudoirs of the great of late Victorian and Edwardian Europe.

The scandalous death of President Faure of France in the arms of Madame Steinheil, a lady of easy virtue, is recounted in all its sorded detail. The lady subsequently, according to Leslie, went on to achieve respectability as the wife of Baron Abinger.

The wandering ways of Edward VII as Prince of Wales and King are also described, with more of the names of his female friend given that are usually found in records of his life.

It is unlikely that Shane Leslie's description of Edward VII's deathbed scene will find its way into any school histories.

The whole glittering spectacle of society before and after the First World War is presented vividly.

The salons of the three great hostesses, Bridget Guinness, Emerald Cunard and Hazel Lavery are described in great detail by one who was an active participant. Also of considerable interest is Leslie's account of the tempestuous, tormented life and marriage of Admiral Beatty, hero of the Battle of Jutland.

But Sir Shane Leslie was interested in more than the activities of the socially elite. He was a staunch advocate of Irish Home Rule, and though a layman, he was high in the councils of the Roman Catholic Church.

He described with feeling the situation in Ireland prior to the gaining of independence.

His own trips to America on behalf of Ireland during the First World War brought him into contact with President Wilson, of whom he has a very poor opinion, and with the leading Catholic cardinals and bishops of the United States.

Popes, presidents, emperors and kings, as well as princes and lesser politicians and nobility crowd the pages of these memoirs. The reader is given glimpses of a world that has virtually disappeared.

There are times when it is difficult to agree with Leslie's politics and actions, with his belief in psychic phenomena, but in spite of this, the book continues to hold one's attention.

Readers interested in the social, political, religious and military history of Europe in the first half of the Twentieth Century will find Long Shadows a valuable and entertaining addition to their libraries.

Others, interested only in the fancies and foibles of the great, will be intrigued and amused by the anecdotes that Leslie tells and the pictures that he paints.

Volume Highly Recommended

CANADA AND THE FRENCH CANADIAN QUESTION, by Ramsay Cook. Macmillan of Canada, 1966. 219 pp. Index. $4.95. (Paperback, $2.95.)

Reviewed by Dr. R. H. ROY

In the last year or two a spate of books and pamphlets have appeared on the bookstands dealing with the French Canadian "question."

Quebec's quiet revolution, so called, has also been the subject of innumerable newspaper reports, magazine articles, television programs and radio interviews.

Canada has becme aware of Quebec as never before, but it is also true that the further west one travels from Qebec, the less concern one finds with French Canada and the aspirations of the French Canadian nation.

Of all the books on the subject published, there is none which this reviewer recommends more highly than Dr. Cook's volume.

It is a collection of essays by a professor of the Department of History at the University of Toronto, and in them he analyzes the background of the quet revolution, compares the generation of today's French Canadians with the former generation, and does some plain speaking to both English and French Canadians with respect to their past hopes and expectations for the future.

If you wish to obtain a realistic view of the pertinent problem, Cook's volume will be a valuable and very readable source.

LOW LIFE IN LONDON

THE ANGEL AND THE CUCKOO by Gerald Kersh. General Publishing.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

The Angel and the Cuckoo is a story of low life in London from the turn of the century to the present. It is a world of thieves, conmen, harlots, bohemians, and a few eccentric but honorable men and women who live on the fringes of the depraved.

Perhaps the central figure is Steve Zobrany, the Hungarian restaurant owner who manages to keep his idealism intact in the face of betrayals by wife and friends; he earns the respect of the honorable and dishonorable alike, and in the end dies quietly in his bed.

VARIED LIFE

No less successful is Perp, the awesomely brilliant and malevolent centre of London crime and vice. Without virture or principles, he lives a rich and varied life well into comfortable old age.

Between these two extremes of good and evil are many characters blending the two qualities in different proportions.

One of the most complex and interesting is Alma, Zobrany's wife, only slightly tainted by two incidents of homocide in her voluptuous career.

Her infatuation for elegant bathrooms causes her to cuckold her husband. But while she is less than faithful in the flesh, she remains true in spirit; her loss of virture becomes the means by which both she and Zobrany save their lives.

INTRIGUING

It is Gerald Kersh's penchant for sardonic humor that readers find most intriguing.

This, combined with his elaborate irony suggests that in spite of his protestations that he has no serious purpose in writing, he is none the less engaged in exposing what he considers to be the hypocritical and fraudulent in character and action.

He writes with an ease and fluency that is often amusing, but just as frequently threatens to submerge the reader and character alike in a welter of words.

In addition to this verbosity, Gerald Kersh, in The Angel and the Cuckoo employs a disconcerting fragmentary style.

With little justification he shifts his tenses, his position as narrator, and his general attitude towards his subject.

Perhaps this achieves variety, but most readers will be inclined to feel that it needlessly confuses the slight plot that serves as the basis for this novel.

Mute Stones Speak Out

THE MUTE STONES SPEAK; by Paul McKendrick; Mentor; 95c.

THE GREEK STONES SPEAK; by Paul McKendrick; Mentor; 95c.

Reviewed by Susan Mayse

"The Mute Stones Speak," by Paul McKendrick is a bargain in paperback at 95c. A worthy complement to Gibbon's Decline and Fall, this volume deals with the archaelogocial aspect of research into Italian antiquity.

Treated with particular understanding and clarity are the Neolithic and Etruscan phases of civilization in Italy. Mr. McKendrick, professor of classics at the University of Wisconsin, emphasizes the importance of early Etruscan domination as an influence on the growth of the first settlement at Rome.

One of the most interesting chapters of the book gives a really extensive history of the excavations at Pompeii and Herculaneum. On the whole, The Mute Stones Speak is a unique piece of writing in the field of archaeology.

The Greek Stones Speak, the companion volume, is the less interesting of the two. Its comparative failure is due perhaps to the abundance of similar books on Greek history.

However, it gives a very good report on many of the advances in archaeology in Greece, such as Schliemann's work at Troy, and the uncovering of Mycenae.

Work Examines 'Failure Of Liberalism'

SPAIN, 1808-1939, by Raymond Carr. Oxford University Press, 1966. 766 pp. Maps. Index. $12.75.

Professor Carr's volume on Spain is the most recent addition to the Oxford History of Modern Europe.

Mr. Carr "attempts to survey the economic, social and political origins of modern Spain," and his work is, therefore, an examination of the failure of Spanish liberalism.

This is a book aimed primarily at the student and historian of modern Europe in general and Spain in particular, one which is all the more valuable owing to its excellent bibliographical essay.

It is an excellent work written by an expert in the field whose depth of learning and judicious assessments are combined with a graceful and most readable style.—R.H.R.

Book Reveals Life of Poet

THE COLLECTED POEMS OF THEODORE ROETHKE. Doubleday. $6.95.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Theodore Roethke, who died August 1, 1963, was for many years a teacher and "Poet in Residence" at the University of Washington. He was a well known, well loved figure on the campus.

His death came as a shock not only to the students and teachers of the University, but to all those who were familiar with his contribution to modern literature.

In The Collected Poems the poet's wife, Beatrice Roethke, has included all the poetry from Roethke's previous books, except for the children's poems in Party at the Zoo and two drinking or 'pub' songs which were not considered approporate for inclusion.

SIXTEEN POEMS

Also included are sixteen previously unpublished poems.

With a few minor alterations, the organization of the volume is the same as that employed by the author when the various collections of poems were first published.

Thus, on one volume, the reader can trace the evolution of Roethke's art over a twenty-five year period. Since his poorer poems, as well as his better ones are included, it is also possible to see clearly the artistic problems he faced and both his successful and unsuccessful efforts to meet these.

Perhaps the most obvious lesson one learns from an examination of the poems is that Roethke's art is imitative rather than original, at least in technique.

The poems in "Open House" of 1941 and "The Lost Son and Other Poems" of 1948 contain clear echoes of both Auden and Spender.

SHIFT OF TECHNIQUE

With his "Praise to the End" of 1951 there is a distinct shift of technique. In the nature poems are to be found echoes of Blake; in the philosphical poems, echoes of Donne and Yeats.

If Roethke cannot be described as a great original genius, readers will find in his work, at its best, a passionate intensity, a love of life, expressed with vivid precision of language, distinguished, even searing in its effect on the imagination.

Of course there are other times when Roethke leaves his readers confused by his use of the trite work, phrase, or image. Is it jocularity, irony, or a careless lapse?

Readers interested in modern literature will find Roethke's Collected Poems, in spite of their variable quality, an interesting and stimulating addition to their libraries.

Ups and Downs Of a Gambler

IT ONLY HURTS A MINUTE by Don M. Mankiewicz. Longmans, Canada, 1966. $6.95.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Only some of the readers who enjoyed Mr. Mankiewicz's See How They Run and his prize winning Trial will feel that It Only Hurts a Minute comes up to their expectations.

It is a story about a gambler and about gambling. Lew White is a compulsive gambler. As some people must steal and others must drink, he must stake money on cards, dice, horses, and turning wheels.

In fact, for him and his like, money no longer has meaning as a medium of exchange; it is merely a token itself, to be risked for other similar tokens.

Food, shelter, friends, and family are ignored and sacrificed when the urge to gamble grips its victim.

SCIENCE OF NUMBERS

Not only does Mr. Mankiewicz introduce his reader into a fascinating world which has its centre in Reno and Las Vegas, with its perimeter dotted by the race courses of southern California and Mexico, but he also demonstrates a detailed knowledge of the laws of chance and probability, as well as of the science of numbers.

Whether it be that his explanations of the ways in which professionals pick winners in horse races or his analysis of the probability of any given number turning up the winner on a roulette wheel, they are all impressively authentic, and, at times, rather technical and protracted.

Professionals may criticize his analysis of gambling in this book and amateurs may study it for hints to aid them in their own attempts.

Readers who are not gamblers and who do not follow horse races, shoot crap or play poker, are apt to find many passages too filled with the jargon of the professional to be comprehensible.

NOT ADEQUATE

Such readers will look instead for an adequate analysis of character to understand better the reason and nature of the informity plaguing the compulsive gambler, driving him on from one folly to the next. Here they will be disappointed.

The characters of It Only Hurts a Minute never quite manage to develop in such a way as to reveal their depths.

Lisa Fortune, who enters Lew White's life just when his luck is on the upswing, bows out when he begins to lose.

He believes her to be the goddess of fortune herself. Most readers will see her as little more than a cheap, attractive opportunist.

Even the psuedo-psychological explanation of luck explains nothing.

If Mr. Mankiewicz had put as much effort into his study and portrayal of character as he put into his examination of the rules and hazards of various games of chance, his novel would have made far better reading.

Accurate, Succint Account

MONTREAL AND THE FUR TRADE, by E. E. Rich; McGill University Press, 1966. 99 pp. $2.95.

Reviewed by DR. R. H. ROY

Anyone who claims to be familiar with the history of Western Canada will know the writings of Dr. Rich on the Hudson's Bay Company.

He has made the study of "The Bay" a lifetime work, and this small booklet is a condensation of his knowledge of the part played by Montreal in the fur trade from Jacques Cartier to George Simpson. The three chapters are in essence the three talks he gave at McGill as the Beatty Memorial Lectures.

His first lecture describes Montreal in relation to the French background, his second deals with the period from about 1760 to 1785, and his third with Montreal as the centre of the activities of the North West Company.

An excellent book—highly recommended.

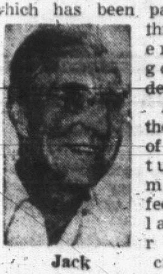
BEASTALL ADVISES:

Wide Range of Fertilizers To Satisfy Garden Crops

Feed the land and the land will feed you. This is an old axiom which has been passed down through generations of good gardeners.



Jack

Almost to the beginning of this century the method of feeding the land was rotation cropping, manuring, chalking and marling.

At the beginning of the 19th Century science began to play a more important part in our lives. Industrialization was moving ahead and the population of the world was rapidly increasing.

To meet the growing demand for food it was recognized that bigger and better crops must be more economically produced from the areas of land already under cultivation.

Science had determined that the amount of plant food in the soil limited the quantity of food a given field would produce and that production increased when the plant food content of the soil was increased.

COMPLETE FERTILIZER

Nitrate of soda to supply nitrogen, bones for phosphates, and potash salts were the first fertilizing materials. These were quickly followed by Peruvian guano, which was a complete fertilizer in itself, containing the three major plant foods — nitrogen, phosphates and potash, but not in the correct proportions to be of the greatest benefit to all crops.

Steady progress has been made in the science of feeding both land and crops. The importance of different combinations of essential plant foods to suit different soils and different crops, was soon realized and today we have a wide range of fertilizers — complete and balanced and those which will supply one or two major elements suitable to the requirements of individual crops.

MAXIMUM YIELD

To obtain the maximum yield from a garden soil we must endeavor at all times to provide an ample balanced supply of food. But this food supply must be coupled with good living conditions for the billions of micro-organisms that inhabit the soil. Humus supplies this latter condition.

Some compound fertilizers supply a small amount of humus as well as plant food. Others are mainly organic nitrogen and phosphates with chemical potash, or a combination of blended organic and chemical materials. These may be used to mix into the soil before planting or sowing and as side dressings during the growing period.

During the dry summer weather it is necessary to water the crop thoroughly before applying the fertilizer as a top dressing, and water again after it has been applied. This should also be done when liquid fertilizers are used, otherwise the food will be held in the top inch or so of soil and never reach the plant roots until the winter rains have saturated the soil.

SIMPLE FOODS

Soil acids and soil organisms act on the various complex chemicals, breaking them into simple foods the plants can use.

This makes the application slowly available to the plants. The natural impatience of man often results in several applications being given because no immediate effect is noticed and this soon leads to toxic soil conditions which plants cannot tolerate.

In all cases, to get the best from whatever fertilizers are used, good common-sense soil care is essential. Fertilizers in themselves will not grow any crop and will never remedy lack of care and attention by the gardener, nor the gardener's lack of basic knowledge.

They will, however, provide the extra yield and a more satisfactory return for the patience and labor of a good husbandman.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Time to get winter blooming pot plants started. Put freesia corms into deep pots of rich soil. Keep outdoors in cool spot until end of September.

Indoor cyclamen corms should be put into shallow pots with good drainage, very little water until rooting and top growth begins.

Cuttings of the various hydrangeas can be taken now and rooted in small pots of sand and peatmoss.

All the herbaceous perennials wich are still flowering or will bloom later can be given a light feeding of a balanced fertilizer well watered in. Sprinkling of water on surface does not take plant foods down to root area. Phloxes, perennial asters, heleniums, physostegias and rudbeckias are in this group of late bloomers.

Keep beans and peas picked and water at roots to keep up production.

Squash and marrow plants also need ample moisture at roots. The fruits of the summer kinds, which do not keep for winter, need using in their small stages. They have a delicate flavor, also production of more fruit will be continued until frost.

Turn the compost heap made in spring and early summer. Water each layer. Note the sweet smell of rich soil. This will be ready for use in fall plantings.

Watch weather for lifting onions, shalotts and garlic. They must not receive more water after ripening.

Sow final batch of lettuce seed for coldframe in winter; also prickly seed spinach, onions for early next year and purple top turnip for early winter.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Can you tell me the soil mixture and fertilizer to use for fuchsias in hanging baskets? When should I take cuttings to grow on for the next year? Mrs. L. H. J., Fairfield.

A. Fuchsias need rich soil full of humus to retain moisture. Use a mixture of three-fifths screened compost, one-fifth leafmould or peatmoss, one-fifth rather coarse sand.

Any balanced fertilizer such as the one you mention may be used after plants are growing well in spring. A little and often is ideal. Cuttings of fuchsias taken now of short side growths will soon root in pots of sandy peatmoss kept damp and a little shaded. Pot singly in three-inch pots when rooted, and keep free of frost over winter, starting into active growth indoors in March and repotting frequently to make large specimens.

Q. We have been dismayed by the number of tiny apples and apricots which have fallen. The trees were pruned and sprayed this spring, would this be the cause? Mrs. L. M., Saanich.

A. Fruit trees have set heavy crops this year and have discarded all fruits they could not ripen or fruits that have been damaged. This is known as the "June drop." Regular feeding and watering is essential to health of the trees and determines the crop they are able to carry.

Security Depends on Frame

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — It's what you don't see that counts for a lot in that new house of yours.

The home is completely built and everything looks fine. That is, from the outside.

But what about that invisible but vital part of the house the structural framework?

The security of the entire home investment depends on how well this part performs, says the Southern Pine Association.

Whether outer walls are surfaced with wood or non-wood materials, the framework, which holds your home together, is formed with lumber. And that, says the association, is where quality is most essential.

Of prime importance is the nail-holding power of the lumber because the wood structure joins and connects various house parts and is the determining factor in how the house holds up in violent storms.

"Some species of lumber have greater natural holding ability than others," the association says. "These differentials should be carefully considered in specifications. The lumber should also be properly seasoned and preshrunk before being surfaced to final size. Nails will not loosen in pre-shrunk lumber as they do when unseasoned material dries in service."

But the advantages of quality in framing don't stop there. It also assures minimum maintenance and low cost heating and cooling and has a favorable effect on retention of paint and other forms of finish on the outside of the house.

"The stabilized size and nail holding power of pre-shrunk lumber assure a snugness and rigidity of structure that protect the home against costly defects such as squeaky floors, unsightly plaster cracks and sagging ceilings," says the association. "Snug character is also essential to efficiency and economy of air conditioning."

"Engineered lumber," in which the Southern Pine industry has been a pioneer, assures proper seasoning and pre-shrinking for structural wood, the association says.

"Mathematically precise stress ratings identify structural capacities of the lumber for various spans and loads," the association says.

HOT WATER HEAT WITHOUT PLUMBING
in their Homes

For years experts have admitted that many known method of home heating either wastes about half its heat, costs too much to install or is actually hazardous to health and property. Now an amazing new development makes ideal heating available for single rooms or entire houses.

BUILDERS WILL TELL YOU that with flame type heating systems, up to 40% of the heat is lost in furnace areas, up the chimney, or on overheated ceilings or cold floors.

ARCHITECTS WILL TELL YOU that these systems can increase the cost of a house substantially because each requires either expensive plumbing systems, chimneys, separate furnace rooms or separate storage areas for dangerous fuels.

DOCTORS KNOW that extremely high temperature heating surfaces (400° F. and over) of old fashioned heaters as well as oil and gas furnaces eat up the oxygen and cause dirt and smudging of walls by scorching and burning into carbon cinders the millions of tiny cotton, wool and synthethic lint particles always present in the atmosphere of the home. Stuffy, dirty air also means trouble to skin and lungs.

For years, safety engineers and heating researchers have been seeking a medically approved method of home heating that is both safe and economical. One that would provide steady, even warmth where it is needed, without wasting up to 40% of its heat on ceilings, and cold floors. This kind of heating has finally been perfected!

WHAT SIDNEY HEIMAN FOUND IN SEATTLE

A number of years ago, Sidney Heiman, President of the Internationol Oil Burner Company, a major manufacturer of heating and cooling equipment, received a letter from a Seattle electrician who claimed to have patented the perfect heating system. He called it "Hot Water Heat Without Plumbing." The electrician and his collaborator, a plumbing contractor needed added financing, research and manufacturing facilities.

Mr. Heiman went to Seattle and here is what he found: The two Seattle men had perfected a heating unit so simple it was unbelievable.

It had absolutely no moving parts. (Moving parts mean repairs!) Mr. Heiman saw a slender casing without pipe connections! Just a simple electrical connection, a thermostat—and hot water heat!

Permanently Sealed-in Hot Water Without Plumbing

The unit itself consisted of a copper tube in which an electrical heating element warmed a special permanently sealed-in water-and-antifreeze solution. When the water was heated, it automatically circulated through the copper tube.

At the exact moment the desired water temperature was reached, the automatic thermostat cut off the current—but the hot water circulating through the length of the unit continued to release heat as needed to maintain precisely the comfortable warmth required.

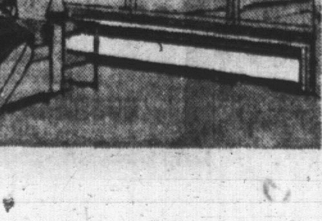
International Hot Water Electric Heat
10 year guarantee but built to last a lifetime

HERE'S WHY FLAMELESS HOT WATER HEAT IS PERFECT HEAT

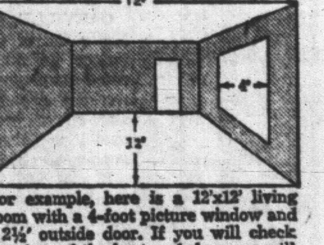
There is a softness about the heat that hot water gives. It has a luxurious natural feel which you sense immediately upon entering a room: It can't use up oxygen nor remove natural moisture from the room. It cannot produce the overdryness and irritation to nose, throat and lung membranes which is the bane of "dry" heating equipment that is unable to utilize the advantage of hot water.

Flameless International Hot Water Heat is as safe and clean as an electric light bulb. So safe, it's the only electric heater approved for use in New York City behind drapes, against doors or furniture without any limitation whatsoever. It's the perfect way to heat your home. And remember, this is premium wet electric heat, not ordinary "dry" heat.



It's So Simple to Determine The Size Heater Every Room, or Your Entire Home, Really Needs

All you need is a tape measure or a yardstick to discover how much heater length you need. Statistics show that you should put in enough heater length to equal the width of all the windows and doors in the outside wall of any room, plus a little more to cover unusual circumstances.



For example, here is a 12'x12' living room with a 4-foot picture window and a 2½' outside door. If you will check the sizes of the heaters below you will see that a single 7-foot unit will comfortably heat this big room. Now measure your windows and outside doors. Then select the size closest to the length you need from this chart.

Here Are the Sizes Available

Length	Model and Watts
4 Ft.	750
5 Ft.	1000
6 Ft.	1380
7 Ft.	1500
9 Ft.	2000

Height of all units 9½" x 3¼" deep

Now, for your home, apartment or, in fact, any heating problem whatsoever, call your own electrician to get a bid on the wiring necessary (you'll be pleasantly surprised at the low cost). Show him this ad. Ask him to re-check your figures. Tell him he can buy these revolutionary heating units at his supplier's salesroom. Remember, you need no plumbing, no ducts, no chimneys with new flameless International Hot-Water Heat. You gain an extra room in your house, if you are building, because you need no furnace room or storage tank.

National Homes Corporation, World's largest home and apartment builders features International Hot Water Electric Heat exclusively for its electric heated homes with some dealers reporting 1300 week end attendances.

"...we in the medical profession have found that coughs and colds, sore throats and sinus conditions have increased due to dried conditions in the passages. We feel these conditions are in some instances related to oxydized air after passage through high-temperature heaters.
"I am most happy to recommend the type of heat employed in the International Electric Hot-Water System..."—R. D. Bryant, M. D.

"In laying out our heating I have found International Baseboard heat my answer, because there is no piping necessary and we can still provide even temperatures of hot water heat."
—Newell E. Boon, Heating Engineer

Air Strike Effects May Last for Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All told, the record-breaking U.S. airline strike cost the five carriers involved $330 million.

A total of 67,000 idled employees lost $64 million in wages.

And businesses closely related to the airlines — airports, resorts, travel agencies — may have lost $1 billion during history's longest airline strike.

But those statistics tell only part of the story.

It may take the industry months — even years — to shake off the effects of the strike.

Fare reductions urged earlier by the government now don't appear likely for at least another year. Before the strike, it generally was conceded that the Civil Aeronautics Board (C.A.B.) was pushing the airlines toward lower fares.

The struch airlines were worried about a sizable percentage of their furloughed employees not returning. One estimated that one-third of its stewardesses found jobs elsewhere during the strike, some with other airlines. The same carrier reported that many of its top mechanics have gone to work for non-struck airlines.

Plans to purchase new equipment also may be set back. TWA already has postponed $400 million in new jet purchases, including a decision on the Boeing 747 "jumbo jet." United, with $750 million in new jet orders, could well back out of some of its optional contracts.

And the strike settlement, which demolished President Johnson's wage-price guidelines, could touch off a general round of negotiated increases with possible inflationary effects.

The airlines, peculiarly susceptible to overall economic conditions, could be headed for some economic turbulence, should inflation lead to a recession.

Passengers' travel preferences will be closely watched by all airlines when the strike ends.

American, the only transcontinental U.S. airline operating during the shutdown, is wondering how many passengers will stay with it when United and TWA begin flying cross-country again.

LOST CUSTOMERS

Eastern's popular east coast shuttle service may have lost customers to American and Northeast, which also fly the Boston-New York-Washington routes. Eastern also will have to regain traffic diverted to Delta.

TWA, United, Eastern and Northwest will get some compensation from carriers which continued to fly during the strike. The four are members of a mutual aid pact which provides a struck airline up to 25 per cent of its normal operating expenses from members whose traffic increases because of the strike.

How much the four actually will collect won't be known until the strike is over and computations can be completed. But the so-called windfall payments probably won't exceed $40 million.

WORLD BANK GRANTS HUGE LOAN TO INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—The World Bank has granted India a long-awaited $150,000,000 loan, an informed source reported Friday.

The money is the first installment of loans that probably will total $900,000,000, aimed at easing India through its curernt economic crisis, the source said.

The loan came from a bank-sponsored "aid India club" whose members are Canada, the United States, Britain, Austria, Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan and The Netherlands.

The initial loan, reported advanced on generous terms of no interest and 50 years to repay, will finance imports of spare parts and goods to keep India's industry going.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Key Issues Driven Lower

By GORDON GRANT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The relentless stock market decline, now in its sixth month, accelerated this week in Canada as prices of key issues were driven sharply lower.

The Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index, which shows investor sentiment, hit its high point of 175.60 in January, but since the second week of February has been in a steep decline. It closed the week at 150.06, close to its lowest points since April, 1964.

The most popular explanation for the decline is lack of leadership from the New York stock market which sets the pattern for action on Canadian exchanges.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which measures the Big Board's health, closed Friday at 804.62, its lowest level since June 8, 1964.

Other explanations included uncertainty about the international situation and general economic conditions, including tight money.

BANKS BATTERED

In Toronto, banks have been battered with four of the five listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange touching 1966 lows.

Toronto-Dominion was off 2½ to 57, Royal 1⅞ to 68½, Imperial Commerce 2 to 58 and Nova Scotia 1¼ to 66. Nova Scotia traded as high as 77¾ earlier in the year and Imperial Commerce 70½.

Bell Telephone was off 1¾ to 48¾, down from its 1966 high of 61. Alcan Aluminium was down 2 at 31, off from its high of 46⅛. Moore Corp., the world's largest business form maker, fell 4½ to 76¾, and IBM, fed largely by the Moore forms, sagged 9 to 361.

In papers, Great Lakes lost 2½ at 24½, Bathurst dipped 2 to 25¾, MacMillan, Bloedel 1 to 25, Consolidated 1⅞ to 36, and B.C. Forests ⅞ to 21.

Autos were weak with Ford of Canada off 6 to 146, General Motors 4 to 81 and Chrysler 1¾ to a 1966 low of 37¾.

ALSO TOOK LOSSES

Other key issues taking hefty losses were Massey-Ferguson, Salada Foods, Simpsons Ltd., Algoma Steel and Dofasco.

Base metals sagged as Inco, the largest nickel producer in the world, lost 4¼ to 87¼ and Falconbridge dipped 5⅝ to 89½. Noranda was down 2½ to 50 and Cominco 2 to 36¼.

Speculative activity was light. However, one bright spot was Quebec Mattagami which jumped 36 to 85 cents on turnover of more than 1,340,000 shares.

On Index, gold were down 4.50 to 181.81, base metals 1.47 to 90.43, western oils 4.18 to 101.92 and the TSE index 5.61 to 143.37.

Estimated volume for the week — precise volume couldn't be determined because the exchange's computer broke down Friday — was 13,353,000 shares compared with 14,390,597 last week.

In Montreal, industrials were down 6.34 to 149.32, utilities 3.76 to 113.36, banks 2.27 to 111.89 and papers .45 to 110.14.

Indusrrial volume was 825,318 shares, up from 688,562 last week. Mine trading totalled 4,654,052, down from last week's 6,062,090.

Ford to Reduce Hourly Workers

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. will reduce its number of hourly-rated employees by 254 when workers are recalled for the start-up of production of 1967 model vehicles, the company announced Friday.

It said 5,571 workers will be recalled. Those not getting called back have six months or less service.

"We are scheduling substantially increased production of cars and trucks between startup and Dec. 31," said Kenneth Hallsworth, vice-president of industrial relations.

Ford is the second car-maker to announce a reduction in its work force for 1967 models.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. said recently it won't be recalling about 2,600 employees at its Oshawa plant because of a drop in sales.

Latin America Trade Increase Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark Friday predicted the province will increase trade with Central and South American countries.

Mr. Loffmark said a current study of Latin American markets shows "enormous potential" for B.C. trade with these countries.

But B.C. must overcome barriers such as lack of credit in Central American nations and import tariffs, he said

These markets could absorb B.C. products such as luggage, wire fencing, transmission equipment, pumps, electric motors, transformers, woodworking machinery, refined vegetable oils, tallow and waste paper, he said.

Close Look At North

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Laing leaves early today for an eight-day 8,000-mile tour of the high Arctic with a coterie of the country's top business and economic leaders.

The trip through both the eastern and western Arctic will concentrate on industrial and economic development of the north. Included are parts of the desolate Arctic islands, the home of little more than seals, walruses and polar bears.

John J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada and a dozen part-time members of the council make up the main part of the travelling group.

Others to go are Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada; O. M. Solandt, chairman of the recently formed science council of Canada; A. H. Zimmerman, chairman of the Defence Research Board; S. S. Reisman, deputy minister of industry, and Claude Isbister, deputy minister of mines.

Labor leaders include Arthur R. Gibbson, vice-president and national legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Fieremen and Enginemen, and William Ladyman, international vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

TO TOUR WIDE AREA

Their itinerary takes them from Ottawa to Frobisher and Cape Dyer, easternmost top of Baffin Island, Mary River and Resolute, near the north magnetic pole, Sachs Harbor, westernmost settlement in the arctic islands, and Tuktoyaktuk, Inuvik, Aklavik, and the reindeer depot at the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

They will return via Dawson and Whitehorse, Y.T., Peace River, Alta., Pine Point and Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Churchill, Man., arriving in Ottawa Aug. 28.

During their tour, the party will examine such things as Arctic iron, lead-zinc, tungsten and gold mines, Arctic oil wells, a Distant Early Warning line radar station, shipping facilities, Eskimo settlements, and living conditions for southerners transplanted to the North.

Leading Experts Will Assess Role of Pacific

BANFF, Alta. (CP—Diplomats and politicians, businessmen and others in Canada are looking more frequently westward to the Asian nations that rim the Pacific.

At a five-day conference opening here Monday, about 20 Canadian and other authorities in a number of fields will assess this growing Pacific role.

Their meeting is the fourth annual Banff Conference on World Affairs, sponsored by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the United Nations Association and the universities of Alberta and Calgary.

Canadian involvement in the Pacific has taken many forms in recent months.

This country's former representative in China and India, Chester Ronning of Camrose, Alta., has travelled to Hanoi twice seeking a road to peace in Viet Nam.

Canadian personnel continue their role as members of the International Control Commission supervising the 1954 Geneva agreement in Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Canadian aid is going to Thailand and Malaysia.

Wheat sales to China and growing trade with Japan have prompted trips to those countries by officials, including provincial and federal political leaders.

China's nuclear weapons tests and the political upheaval in Indonesia have turned further attention on the Pacific region.

Mr. Ronning and Blair Seaborn, former Canadian representative on the International Control Commission are among those speaking at the conference.

B.C. Fruit Industry Almost Near Normal

PENTICTON (CP) — The Okanagan Valley fruit industry is almost fully recovered from the tree-damaging frost that last year almost wiped out the soft-fruit crop.

Officials of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., marketing agency for growers, say this year's harvest will almost equal that of 1964, second largest ever in the valley.

Combined with expected higher prices, they say, the big harvest will give growers a substantial return.

Apricots and peaches are being harvested the length of the valley, corn is being picked in volume in the south, the bean harvest looks promising and there is no shortage of pickers.

The cherry harvest, completed in late spring, yielded 6,800,000 pounds, almost seven times last year's output, compared with 12,100,000 in 1964.

In 1965 only five boxes of apricots were shipped. This year the agency figures to send out 800,000. No peaches were shipped last year but the 1966 yield is expected to be about 925,000 cases.

Other predictions for 1966 yields: 46,000,000 pounds of pears, 8,500,000 pounds of prunes, 4,366,000 pounds of grapes and more than 7,000,000 boxes of apples.

Of the apple crop, 5,100,000 boxes will be for the fresh market compared with only 3,900,000 last year.

Beef Prices To Climb Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. consumer complaints about beef prices appear likely to help bring about a future reduction in supplies and even higher prices.

U.S. production of beef cattle is on the decline largely because many livestock men doubt that future income prospects will be as good as those in the present market. As a result, livestock men are sending a heavy volume of calves and heifers to slaughter markets. And there have been heavier-than-normal sales of cows which have produced calves.

Thus the breeding herd is declining. So fewer calves will be produced next year and beef supplies will go down.

REDUCE HERDS

Farm officials say there are a number of factors leading the cattle industry to reduce its inventory. They include this year's reduction in cattle prices, an increase in feed-grain prices, some consumer resistance to high beef prices, expanding production of competitive pork and poultry and the rising cost of credit needed to finance cattle-feeding operations.

The department says it expects U.S. cattle numbers at the end of this year to be down one to two per cent from a year earlier.

Livestock experts say there is no substantial indication yet when the current reduction trend in cattle numbers will run its course.

Favorable prices of hogs during the last fall and winter — and even now — have been encouraging farmers to raise more hogs. As a consequence, pork supplies available in the coming fall and winter will be much larger than a year earlier.

Court Clears Texas Gulf

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge Friday cleared Texas Gulf Sulphur Company and 10 of its employees of using "inside" information to profit from stock transactions, but the company's secretary and an engineer were found guilty.

The inside information concerned an ore discovery near Timmins, Ont., late in 1963.

INSIDER TRAINING

U.S. district judge Dudley B. Bonsal found that Texas Gulf secretary David M. Crawford and engineer Richard H. Clayton violated the U.S. securities exchange act and its rules pertaining to insider trading.

But Bonsal ruled that Texas Gulf did not violate the act in issuing an April 12, 1964, news release concerning what was said to be one of the biggest copper finds on the North American continent.

CLAIM OUTLINED

The government charged in its civil suit that Texas Gulf executives were able to buy up their company's stock in advance of the news release, and then profited when the stock rose in price as news of the Texas Gulf ore find became public.

PEACE RIVER PROJECT

Records Smashed In Earth Moving

During the month of July at Portage Mountain Dam on the Peace River, more men moved more earth and rock in the sight of more tourists than in any single month since construction of B.C. Hydro's giant dam began three years ago.

Three separate records were established during the month. The size of the labor force, the quantity of earthfill placed, and the tourist count all reached new peaks.

A total of 3,500 men were employed on the Peace River project at the end of July. The largest segment, almost 1,900 men, were working in the 690-foot-long underground powerhouse that is being blasted out of the rock nearly 500 feet below the left abutment of the dam.

Above ground, record totals for fill placement on Portage Mountain Dam itself were established. During the 29 working days of July, a total of 6¼ million tons of fill were hauled, placed and compacted on the giant water barrier. On July 19, the largest single amount in a 24-hour period was recorded when 203,000 tons were placed.

A CLOUD OF DUST . . . AND ANOTHER RUN

Face expressing dismay, Sherbrooke pitcher Andre Drouin (right) watches Windsor's Ricky Campagna kick up dust while scoring in fourth inning of Friday's Little League baseball playoff at Hampton Park. Drouin bobbled relay from outfield and catcher Andre Patry (2) had no chance to put tag on Campagna. That's umpire Len Leach making sure it's all legal and proper. Windsor defeated Quebec champions 7-6 to move into today's Canadian championship final. Kelowna, B.C.'s champions, had reached final on Thursday. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Rich Rapped Ball Like Cleanup Guy

Extra-Inning Homer Sends Windsor Team Into Final

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Richard Jolicer "isn't a cleanup hitter" but he behaved like one Friday night, and for that reason Windsor wound up knocking on the door of the Canadian Little League baseball championship today.

The lanky 12-year-old provided the climax to an evening of drama to cracking out an extra-inning home run at Hampton Park to supply Windsor with a 7-6, semi-final victory over Sherbrooke.

His big clout, abruptly ending the game with the first pitch in the bottom of the seventh inning, pushed the slick-fielding Ontario champions into today's championship final against Kelowna, the British Columbia representatives who had beaten Edmonton 5-3 on Thursday.

Winners of today's game will carry Canada's flag to Williamsport, Pa., and the Little League World Series next week.

But the lad-of-the-hour Friday was Jolicer, a right fielder whom manager Cam Knowler says "is not our regular cleanup hitter."

Who is?

"Well, now, I can't tell you our secrets. See me after Saturday's game . . . I'll tell you then," the Windsor manager said.

While he may not be the No. 4 hitter, that was Jolicer's spot Friday and he certainly carried on like one. In addition to his game-winning home run, Jolicer also clouted a first-inning triple to drive in Windsor's second run of the game.

Ball Tossed by Fan Erased Double

Windsor's first tally also came via the over-the-fence route as a sun-basked crowd of over 4,500 fans sat in on the best game of the four-team knockout tournament.

Eddie, Whited, a diminutive third baseman, socked the first home run.

While the hitters made an excellent attempt at stealing the show, a pair of controversial incidents injected extra drama into the game.

The first came at the top of the sixth inning with Sherbrooke at bat and the score tied 4-4. Outfielder Richard Nicol led off with a single and was followed to the plate by Richard Aubry.

After fouling off a number of pitches, Aubry lashed a drive to right centre that was almost certainly a double. But while Windsor pitcher Ricky Chase was winding up, a fan tossed a ball — a recovered foul — onto the field. Windsor first baseman Larry Knowler grabbed the ball and plate umpire Len Leach called time while Chase was completing his windup.

It was ruled "no pitch."

Had the hit been good, Windsor would almost certainly have wound up with runners on second and third, with the "meat" of the batting order coming up.

As it was, Aubry struck out.

Left Too Soon, Sent Back to Third

The second controversial incident came in the bottom of the sixth, when Windsor went on to score the two runs that sent the game into extra innings.

Leadoff hitter Eddie Mio was safe on an error. Eddie Adamic followed with a single. Tom Lazar lined out to short, but Ricky Campagna came through with a clutch double to score Mio.

With Adamic — representing the tying run — on third and Campagna at second, Sherbrooke pitcher Andre Drouin was ordered to walk Chase and load the bases. Knowler then hit a soft roller to first base.

Aubry, the Sherbrooke first baseman, had no chance to catch Adamic at the plate and tagged first.

However, third-base umpire Griff Timothy ruled Adamic had left his bag too soon, before the pitch was made. Under Little League rules, the three runners, including Adamic, were ordered back to their original bases but the out against Knowler stood.

Thus there were two out, and the tying run still on third base.

Druoin failed to take advantage of the big break. He walked Whited to force in the tying run.

Then Jolicer took over in the next inning.

ANGLERS-TIMES DERBY . . . . . . AT INLET SUNDAY

Luck Is Important Item To Have in Tackle Box

This is the time for guessing.

Somewhere in Saanich Inlet Sunday somebody is going to hook the salmon that will bring its captor the top fishing prize in the 21st annual Handicapped Children's Salmon Derby.

Where, when and how: those are the questions.

To be sure, most expert anglers have already made plans they hope will enable them to snag the day's biggest salmon. But they are also going through the where-when-how routine because foolish is the fisherman who doesn't think hunches and luck are also going to be major factors.

And if they are combining results of former derbies with current fishing reports they might be figuring something like this:

When—Past derby winners have been landed at all hours, from just after daybreak, until shortly before the derby deadline of 2 p.m. However, there appears a good chance that Sunday's briskest fishing period will be between 8 and 9 a.m., which suggests that could be time to try a favorite spot.

WHAT'LL IT BE?

How—Various lures, fished at various depths have fooled the big ones in former derbies and a hunch this time might be that a plug, used with a planer and 200 feet of line, will do the trick. Skipping the hunches, herring strip and minnows have been getting the most play and hooking the most salmon, which makes it a better-than-even chance that Sunday's dream fish will fall for a well-presented piece of bait.

Where—Now, as the man said, there's the question. Any section of the Inlet might produce that heart-stopping strike but odds appear a mite better in a few areas. Bamberton, where big fish have been reported, is perhaps due to yield a derby winner. The Chesterfield Rock-Misery Bay section near Goldstream has been the scene of past triumphs and is always a good bet. Waters around McKenzie Bay and The Boulder should be worth a try, along with the stretch between the Deep Hole and Stone House. Also rating attention are Coles Bay and Deep Cove.

CHILDREN BENEFIT

That's the way the salmon slickers may be figuring it today, but they aren't fooling themselves. They know that the most important item to have in your tackle box on derby day is that ancient item called luck.

However, there is no guessing about one thing. Everybody who purchases a $1 derby ticket will wind up a winner because he or she will be helping unfortunate youngsters.

All proceeds from the derby, co-sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and The Daily Times, will again be divided between the Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded and the Cerebral Palsy Association.

DERBY RULES

Since the event was started in 1946 as the Solarium Derby, it has raised about $90,000 for orgainzations working with handicapped youngsters.

Regular VSIAA derby rules will apply to Sunday's event. Fishing hours will be between dawn and 2 p.m. Only salmon taken by trolling are eligible for prizes. Fish may be taken anywhere in Saanich Inlet between Goldstream and a line running from Moses Point (just north of Deep Cove) to Hatch Point on Salt Spring. An entry ticket must be surrendered with each fish weighed in.

Weigh-in stations will be located at Hall's, Holder's, Gilbert's, Brentwood and Anglers-Anchorage boathouses. Prizes will be presented at the Anchorage around 3:15.

Hourly reports of the derby's progress are scheduled to be broadcast over CKDA, from 10 a.m. until the winners receive their awards.

Although handicapped children gain the most, Sunday will also be a big day for anglers. At stake will be about 30 fishing prizes, topped by scrip awards of $150, $100, and $50.

And any ticket holder is eligible to collect the biggest prize of all—a 14½-foot boat, equipped with outboard motor, trailer and water skis.

All a derby contestant needs to make it a memorable day is a derby entry ticket, tackle, a boat and knowing where and when and how—plus a touch of luck.

Larry Jaster A Big Nothing To Los Angeles

(Times News Services)

Larry Jaster means nothing to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

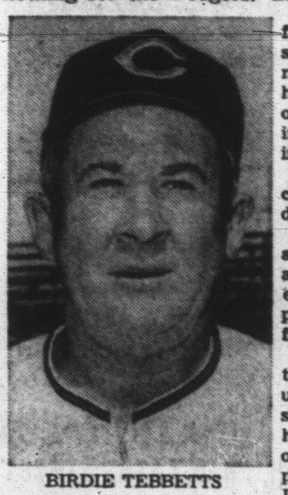
The defending World Champions have the greatest respect for the St. Louis Cardinal southpaw. It's just that whenever he takes the mound it adds up to nothing for the Dodgers. Zeros, that is.

The 22-year-old lefthander fired his fourth consecutive shutout at Los Angeles Friday night, zipping them 4-0 to run his scoreless inning streak over the Dodgers to 37, including one frame last September in relief.

Just how much better Jaster could be versus the Dodgers is debatable.

Against Los Angeles he has a perfect 0.00 earned run average while opposing the other eight clubs he is a rather pedestrian 5.46 for a 3.43 total for the entire league.

In his four whitewashes of the Dodgers, Jaster has given up 20 hits, walked six and struck out 27 men. Over-all, he owns an 8-3 record but his only shutouts and only complete games are the four facing LA.



BIRDIE TEBBETTS

In other National League action Friday, Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3, Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 8-5, Houston nipped Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and Philadelphia defeated New York Mets 5-4 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers defeated Baltimore Orioles 10-4, Cleveland beat Chicago White Sox 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota whipped Boston 2-1, Washington stopped California 5-3 and New York Yankees split with Kansas City, winning 7-5 before losing 1-0.

By losing, San Francisco remained a percentage point behind Pittsburgh in the NL race. Atlanta put the game beyond reach in the seventh when Rico Carty hit a three-run homer and Mack Jones followed with a bases-empty blast. Willie Mays and Jim Hart connected for the Giants.

Rich Allen's two-out homer in the 10th boosted Philadelphia past New York. Ken Boyer's run-scoring single put the Mets ahead 4-3 in the seventh, but Harvey Kuenn's run-producing single tied it in the ninth.

Julian Javier gave Jaster all the support he needed, driving in two runs with a single and a double.

Third Straight Jolt for Pirates

The Pirates lost their third straight game. They tied the game 3-3 on Roberto Clemente's two-run single in the eighth, but Chicago won in the 10th when Glenn Beckert singled home Gorg Altman, who had reached first on Donn Clendenon's fumble.

Cleveland Indians put manager Birdie Tebbets out as a winner. With one out in the 10th inning and the score tied 2-2, Leon Wagner banged out his 21st home run of the campaign to give the Indians their triumph over Chicago.

Twenty minutes later, Indian president Gabe Paul read the formal announcement of Tebbetts' resignation.

Mickey Lolich breezed to his fifth victory in six decisions since the All-Star break as the Tigers stunned Orioles, the American League leaders, 10-4. The Tigers left-hander now has a 12-8 season record.

STRICKLAND GETS JOB

Tebbetts Resigns As Indians' Chief

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Indians defeated Chicago White Sox 3-2 Friday night, not knowing that it was the last game of the season for manager Birdie Tebbetts.

The official announcement of Tebbetts' resignation came in the office of general-manager Gabe Paul after the 10-inning ball game.

Tebbetts is being succeeded by George Strickland, third base coach and shortstop for the 1954 pennant-winning team.

Tebbetts "will be available for the remainder of the season for special assignments and will do some scouting and contact work that will be beneficial to the club," Paul said.

"I told Gabe he would be better off—that the club would be better off," the 56-year-old Tebbetts said after the press conference.

"I want to stay in baseball," Tebbetts added.

HEALTH NOW OK

Tebbetts said the heart attack he had in 1964 was not a contributing factor to his leaving the team. He said a Cleveland doctor recently gave him a clean bill of health.

Tebbetts suffered his heart attack April 1, 1964, and missed the first part of the season. Strickland handled the managerial chores until Tebbetts returned July 9.

Strickland, 40, played shortstop for Pittsburgh Pirates before coming to Cleveland in 1952. He finished his player career in 1959. He scouted for Cleveland and then joined Minnesota Twins' coaching staff in 1962. He returned to Cleveland the following year.

SECOND FASTEST MILE

LONDON (Reuters)—Kenya's Kipchoge Keino today clocked the fastest mile ever run in Britain — three minutes 53.4 seconds—at the British Games here.

Second was Britain's Derek Graham, in 3:59.2, followed by British Commonwealth Games silver medallist Alan Simpson in 3:59.8.

Keino ran away from the international field to win by more than 50 yards. It was the world's second-fastest mile. He might have broken the world record, if pushed over the last 600 yards.

The record of 3:51.3 was set by American Jim Ryun in California in July.

After his run, Keino appeared to be completely fresh, as he trotted round, waving to the appreciative crowd.

Little League Notes

A couple of wee notes and some loud quotes from the Canadian Little League baseball tournament . . .

In addition to extensive newspaper coverage, the radio and television personnel are out in force . . . Sherbrooke's Gordon Breen broadcast Friday's game back to Quebec . . . Today's championship finale was due to be reported by Vancouver's Bill Good while former Victorian Ted Reynolds was anchoring a CBC television team.

Ricky Chase, the Windsor pitcher who went all the way for Friday's win, was previously an outfielder . . . He was converted into a pitcher at the start of the season . . . Chase walked six, struck out seven . . . Andre Drouin, his Sherbrooke rival, struck out three and issued only two walks, both in the sixth inning . . . The first pass, to Chase, was intentional.

Friday's setback was only the second defeat in two years of Little League play for Drouin . . . Denis Dussault, Sherbrooke's shortstop, is the offspring of Norm Dussault, a former performer with hockey's Montreal Canadiens.

Victoria couldn't offer more ideal conditions for the first two days of the tournament . . . The sky has been cloudless and there has been little or no wind during play . . . In addition, the four visiting managers have been lavish in their praise of field conditions at the Hampton Park . . . "I've never seen a better Little League field," Windsor manager Cam Knowler declared flatly . . . "They were supposed to have spent $20,000 on the field for the Ontario championships, but that one wasn't half as good as this one."

ARTHRITIC ELBOW . . . . . . GETTING WORSE

End of Line for Sandy?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Meteoric baseball career of Los Angeles Dodgers' Sandy Koufax might come to a premature end at the close of this season.

The two-time Cy Young Award pitcher and current 19-game winner revealed Friday that a progressive worsening of his arthritic left elbow has caused him to think of retirement.

"It's a matter of how long I can stand the pain," he said. "It's a decision I won't make until I have to."

Koufax, 30, said he first began to fear that he might be forced into early retirement when he injured the left elbow sliding into second base in 1964.

The mishap led to a traumatic arthritic condition that wasn't diagnosed until March, 1965.

"They (the doctors) said it would get progressively worse — and it has," Koufax said. "I've thought about having to quit several times when the elbow was especially sore."

Koufax explained his feelings on the matter after a story published Friday in San Jose, Calif., predicted that the Dodger star would announce his retirement at the end of the season.

Koufax would not commit himself on this point.

VICETTES WILL TACKLE TALENTED FOES SUNDAY

Victoria Molson's Vicettes senior women's softball club will take on their toughest opposition of the season Sunday when they tangle with Vancouver Labatts.

Labatts have campaigned in the Senior A Women's League in Vancouver this year and recently went 14 innings before losing 4-3 to Vancouver Merchants of the Northwest Major Women's League.

Sunday's exhibition games are scheduled for 2 and 6:30 p.m. at Central Park.

Gayle Trails by Three Halfway Through Final

From CP Reports

HALIFAX—Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver started the final 18 holes in today's 36-hole final for the Canadian Women's Open golf championship trailing Helene Gagnon of Arvida, Que., by three holes.

Winner of the Open crown in 1962, Miss Hitchens won the first hole of this morning's round but was four down starting the 18th.

Gayle trimmed the deficit to three by taking the 18th after Miss Gagnon, seeking her first national title, hit her drive into a ditch and was forced to take a penalty stroke.

Miss Hitchens, 22, and Miss Ggnon, 19, survived five days of gruelling play to reach today's 18-hole final.

Gayle's semi-final match Friday against Barbara Renwick, 23, of Vancouver, was anybody's game until the University of British Columbia graduate coupled a near-perfect chip shot with a three-foot putt to win 1-up on the 18th.

Miss Gagnon had an easier time in vanquishing Jane Blalock, 20, of Portsmouth, N.H., 5-and-3 in their semi-final match.

Miss Gagnon was shooting so well by the time she wrapped up her win on the 15th that a spectator suggested she had a chance to break the course record of 70, set in last Tuesday's qualifying round by Gail Harvey Moore of Scarborough, Ont.

She played out the 18, but narrowly missed a putt on the final green to take an unofficial 71.

CHANGED FOUR TIMES

The lead in the Hitchens-Renwick match changed hands four times, with Miss Renwick drawing even on the 17th. Both women had good drives and both were on the green in two—Miss Renwick about eight feet behind the pin and Miss Hitchens placing her approach shot only three feet from the cup.

Miss Renwick missed her putt and the game was over when Miss Hitchens holed out in three.

JUNIOR ROCKS LAUNCH BID FOR TITLE SUNDAY

Victoria Shamrocks and New Westminster Salmonbellies, the two most successful junior lacrosse teams in Canada in recent years, will open a best-of-five series for the British Columbia title Sunday at New Westminster.

Shamrocks, Minto Cup winners in 1963, won the Vancouver Island crown and Salmonbellies wrapped up the mainland championship Friday with a 15-3 triumph over Norburns.

New Westminster won the national title last year.

Sunday's opening game at Westminster will start at 2 p.m. Second game is slated for Memorial Arena Wednesday at 8 p.m. and the teams will continue hostilities in the third game next Sunday at Westminster.

TEST CRICKET

Graveney Sparks England to Lead

LONDON (Reuters) — Tom Graveney, who has scored more runs and centuries than any other English cricketer still in the game, came to England's rescue against the West Indies Friday, the second day of the fifth Test, and scored a masterly century. At the close of play, he was 132 not out.

Graveney and wicketkeeper John Murray batted magnificently throughout the afternoon and their unbeaten stand—a record for the eighth wicket by England against the West Indies—helped England to score 330 for 7, a lead of 62.

EARLY TROUBLE

Facing the West Indies total of 268, England was in trouble when it had seven wickets down for 166, but Graveney again saved his side with a painstaking innings which never lacked color. Murray matched the more experienced player.

Graveney completed his century—the second in the series—after 253 minutes and hit 13 fours. The 100 partnership was reached in 125 minutes, at which stage it was five runs better than the 1933 record set by Charlie Barnett and Maurice Nicholls at the Oval.

Scores of other matches Friday:

Derbyshire beat Warwickshire by 10 wickets. Derbyshire 281 and secondly 12 for na wicket; Warwickshire 38 and 253.

Somerset beat Worcestershire by 127 runs. Somerset 225 for 9 and 209; Worcestershire 182 and 125.

Northamptonshire beat Essex by 7 wickets. Northamptonshire 413 for 2 declared and 56 for 3; Essex 234 and 233.

Hampshire beat Middlesex by 80 runs. Hampshire 204 for 7 and 288 for 3 declared; Middlesex 176 for 9 and 231.

Nottinghamshire 337 for 6 declared and 191 for 6 declared; Leicestershire 213 and 313 for 4. Match drawn.

Ranjit Top Rookie; Gates Scoring King

Victoria's Ranjit Dillon missed nine games because of an injured toe but he still managed to lead all rookies in scoring during the 1966 Inter-City Lacrosse League season.

Appearing in 21 games, Dillon collected 71 points and might have wrested the league scoring crown away from Coquitlam ace Mike Gates if he had been healthy all season.

Gates finished on top with 102 points and Dillon's average of 3.385 points per game if maintained would have given him 101 points over 30 games.

Dillon, who was assessed only eight minutes in penalties, finished in fifth place.

NO PENALTIES

Coquitlam coach Gordie Gimple made a remarkable season as he went through the campaign without a penalty on the way to a second-place finish.

Fred Usselman of Coquitlam and New Westminster's Paul Parnell tied for the goal-scoring lead, with 51 tallies each, and took the third and fourth places.

Parnell set a new league record by collecting at least one point in all 30 games of the season.

Greek Team Big Winner In Tuna Meet

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Premier Robert L. Stanfield of Nova Scotia indicated Friday night the international tuna cup match will probably be held again in 1967 at Wedgeport and Cape St. Mary despite this year's disappointing catch of only three fish.

Speaking at a provincial government dinner ending the 1966 tournament, Mr. Stanfield said: "I certainly hope you will all be able to come back next year, if not before."

Earlier in the day the Greek angling team received the Alton B. Sharp trophy for winning this year's match with 825 points. A British Caribbean entry came second with 621 and the United States, last year's winners, third with 274. Mexico and Canada failed to score.

The three bluefins were all boated Thursday, third day of the four-day match. The Greeks caught the biggest, a 559-pounder, off Wedgeport. The Caribbeans boated a 555-pound tuna and the U.S. a 207-pounder, both at Cape St. Mary.

Each team received one point per pound of fish caught and the Greeks a 200-point bonus for the largest tuna. A second 200-point bonus for the team taking the most fish was split three ways among the Greeks, Caribbean and Americans.

Liston Invites Cassius

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, touring Europe and giving challengers a chance at his title, has been invited to Sweden by an old friend—Sonny Liston.

Liston extended the invitation after disposing of Amos Johnson in 1:48 of the third round Friday night. The invitation, however, was not a friendly one.

"I want Clay and I want him badly," Liston barked. "I did to Johnson in three rounds what Henry cooper and Brian London couldn't do in one year and they got a title fight against Clay."

Liston, the former heavyweight champ whose title was taken away by Clay, smashed Johnson to the canvas twice in the second round and finished the Medina, Ohio, fighter with a left-right combination in the third.

"It was like being hit by an axe," said Johnson, who wighed 18 pounds less than his 218-pound opponent. "He was much better than I thought. He was fearsome."

Uvic Sounds Call

The first and second division soccer teams of the University of Victoria will practise Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Gordon Head campus. All soccer players who will be attending university this year are invited to turn out.

World Marks Broken

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Don Schollander, with two world records in two nights, shared the spotlight with Pokey Watson Friday night in the National Amateur Athletic Union Swimming and diving championships.

Miss Watson, 15, an Olympic gold medalist, smashed the world mark in the women's 200-metre freestyle with a time of 2:10.5. Martha Randall of Philadelphia's Vesper Boat Club, who was third, held the pending world mark of 2:11.4.

RECORD ASSAULT

At the midway point of the meet four world records have been broken and one equalled. Only four meet records were untouched out of 14 swimming events.

Schollander, 20, smashed his own pending world mark by four seconds in the 200-metre freestyle record to John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., then regained it by whipping Nelson at 4:11.6 in the finals. Nelson again was second in the 200.

Schollander made it three gold medals down and three to go by anchoring the Santa Clara Swim Club A-team to a meet mark of 3:35.4 in the 400-metre freestyle relay, just 2.2 seconds off the world mark set by Schollander's United States team in the 1964 Olympics.

MORE CHANCES

The blond Yale economics major will anchor Santa Clara in the 600-metre freestyle relay tonight, then will go in the 100-metre freestyle and the 400-metre medley relay Sunday night.

Miss Watson came back to anchor Santa Clara to a meet mark of 4:04.5 in the women's 400-metre freestyle relay, a scant seven-tenths second off the world mark set by Miss Watson's United States team at the 1964 Olympics.

Art Wall Hartford Sizzler

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Art Wall Jr. carved out a seven-under-par 64 Friday and took sole control of the top spot with a 129 — 13 under par — at the halfway mark of the Insurance City open golf tournament.

Wall, a former Masters champion, shared the first round lead with Wes Ellis Jr. and Homero Blancas, each with a 65.

Ellis fired another 65 to put him in second spot at 130. Blancas managed an even par 71 over the Wethersfield Country Club course to fall back to an eighth place tie at 136.

The 129 total for the 43-year-old Wall is the lowest 36-hole score on the pro tour this year, beating Jacky Cupit's 131 at the halfway mark of the Minnesota Classic last month.

Julious Boros stayed close to the leaders with 65 for 132. Bruce Crampton of Australia was next at 69-65-134.

The 135 shooters were Arnold Palmer, Paul Harney, and Ed Griffiths. Palmer shot 67 and said that bursitis in his left shoulder bothered him less than it has for the past two months.

Billy Casper, U.S. Open champion and top money winner this year, shot his second straight 69 for a 138 total.

Foster Third In Car Race

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Don White of Keokuk, Iowa, won the 100-mile United States Auto Club late model stock car race Friday at the Illinois state fair, finishing 25 seconds ahead of Norm Nelson of Racine, Wis.

Billy Foster of Victoria, B.C., finished third.

INCHES FROM ACE

Fowler Leads By One Stroke

CALGARY (CP)—Frank Fowler of Calgary came within an ace of an ace Friday.

A five-iron tee shot on the 18th hole bounced off the pin and stopped an inch away. The drive left Fowler with a tap-in birdie and the second-round lead in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

Fowler finished with a 67, four under par, and a 36-hole total of 136, six under par.

In second place, just one stroke back, was Moe Norman, Gilford, Ont., with 137.

Wilf Homenuik, Winnipeg, the defending champion and first-round leader, had putting problems and ended up with a 74 for the day. He settled at 139 for 36 holes.

ALSO HAD 67s

Fowler's round was one of only two 67s Friday. The other went to Lyle Crawford, Vancouver, who tied Jack Kay, Toronto, Jack Bissegger, Beloeil, Que., and Neil Green, Calgary, for fourth place.

Of the four birdies on Fowler's card, two involved putts of inches. The other two were scored on six-footers. He used only 29 putts.

For Homenuik, the opposite was true. He used 27 putts Thursday on his way to a course record 65. Friday, he putted 41 times.

Two players tied with Norman for second place with 68 after the first round, fared poorly on the second day. Stan Homenuik, Dauphin, Man., took a 77 and Frank Whibley, Kitchener, Ont., soared to a 78.

The 54-hole tournament ends today with the winner receiving $2,000 of the $15,000 purse. The final four holes will be televised nationally by the CBC.

WHOLE FIELD QUALIFIES

The entire field qualified for the final round. Originally, the field was to be cut to the low 100 and ties Friday night.

Henry Martell, Edmonton, a two-time winner of the CPGA, won his first seniors event and left himself in a good position to pick up prize money in the main event.

Martell scored 72-71 — 143, good for a five-stroke bulge over Bill Kerr, Pointe Claire, Que., and Gerry Proulx, Cite Deux Montagnes, Que.

Martell picked up $600 for his win in the 36-hole event. Kerr and Proulx each won $375.

Third place in the seniors went to Jules Huot, Laval Sur le Lac, Que., with 74-75—149. Stan Lednard and Fred Wood, both of Vancouver, and Danny Stack, Winnipeg, were deadlocked at 150.

Former Victorian Dick Munn recovered for a 72 Friday and total of 148. Jasper Park pro Ron MacLeod of Victoria fired a 75 for 147 and Bill Goldsworthy, pro at Victoria's Cedar Hill course, did not turn in a card. Goldsworthy had 88 Thursday.

BIGGEST EVER?

Reportedly the largest salmon ever caught by sportsman off Vancouver Island was this 77-pound tyee caught Friday near Campbell River by John Saxer of Wellington. He played it 45 minutes. Previous record was 73½-pounder, but world's biggest was 92½-pounder taken in Skeena River.

Theo Earns Share Of Doubles Crown

OTTAWA — British Columbia and Ontario combined talents to capture one of three titles decided Friday in the Canadian open junior tennis championships.

Theodora Booker of Victoria and Toronto's Nancy Green collected the girls' 18-and-under doubles crown by defeating the Ontario pair of Karen Will and Jane O'Hara in the final.

Miss Booker, national 16-and-under singles queen last year, and Miss Green downed Vancouver aces Janice Tindle and Susan Eager 6-4, 10-8, in the semi-final round.

In Friday's other finals, Christine Martkowicz, Hamtramck, Mich., won the girls' 14-and-under singles and the duo of Mark Landman, Hamtramck, and Emilio Montana, Mexico City, took the boys' 14-and-under doubles.

In 18-and-under singles finals today, Mexican star Roberte Chavez was to face Richard Stockton, Garden City, N.Y., and Miss Eager was to play Miss Tindle.

SAYS COACH

Ski Squad Lacks Depth

CALGARY (CP) — Verne Anderson of Rossland, coach of the Canadian women's national ski team, Friday blamed lack of depth for a lack of success in the world ski championships recently at Portillo, Chile.

"We . . . haven't pushed our youngsters far enough," he said. "However, I think we will have this depth for the Grenoble winter games," in 1968.

Anderson arived with the 15-member Canadian team Friday.

He said Nancy Green of Rossland, who fell on her second slalom run while holding a commanding lead, was under tremendous pressure.

"If you don't perform under this pressure, then you are not skiing," he said. "But it was extremely bad luck."

Hockey Pact Gets Support

By The Canadian Press

The new agreement between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League, bringing an end to professional sponsorship of amateur clubs and control over amateur players, was greeted with guarded optimism by hockey officias Friday.

Most felt the agreement will be good for hockey if the new system is properly run.

Under the agreement, which goes into effect July 1, 1967, and runs five years:

—The pros will end sponsorship of all amateur clubs, including junior;

—Pro clubs will acquire new talent from an annual draft pool of Canadian youngsters completing their junior hockey eligibility;

—Pro clubs will not be able to deal with boys before the year of their 20th birthday;

—Various forms, including the A, B and C forms covering options on amateur players' professional services, will be eliminated;

—The CAHA will control the money a professional team will be required to pay when it drafts a player.

Bill Hanley of Toronto, secretary-manager of the Ontario Hockey Association, described the agreement as far-reaching.

"We will have to wait two or three years to see whether it is a good thing."

'Success Will Depend on CAHA'

Leyton (Hap) Emms, general manager of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and owner of Niagara Falls Flyers of the OHA Junior A, felt the agreement's success will be up to the CAHA.

"As I see it the entire burden of amateur hockey is on the CAHA. If they run their business right—different to the way they have been running things up to now—it could work out extremely well. If they don't, junior hockey will fall apart.

"In other words, the CAHA will have to assist financially the same way the pros have been doing in the past if a great many of our junior clubs are going to survive.

"This agreement has been demanded by the CAHA and various government groups. If the Junior OHA council finds that the CAHA cannot control the destinies of junior hockey to benefit the vast majority, then I believe the pros will have to make some other arrangements."

Ontario Juniors Will Carry On

Officials of several junior teams in Ontario indicated they will carry on after professional sponsorship ends.

"Junior hockey will be back on a local and probably more personal basis," said Fred Muller, president of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the OHA Junior A series. "We'll probably have to work at it a little harder now that we know any debts we accumulate won't be looked after by a professional team."

In Sudbury, Leo Gasparini, manager of Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, saw the move as a break for teams in his area going after the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy.

"This will open up the Memorial Cup to any community in Canada," he said. "We've never been able to defeat the Ontario Hockey Association because teams in the OHA were packed with the best players in Canada, including players from Sudbury brought in by their sponsors. Under this new system, we should be able to keep all Sudbury - born players at home. We'll be as good as OHA teams are."

Taking Control Away From Pros

In Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said that sponsorships will continue through the 1966-67 season. He added that if a sponsoring team had rights to a player before the agreement was reached, the team would continue to have these rights and could exercise them fully.

Lawyer Alan Eagleson, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Lakeshore and a legal advisor to several hockey players, welcomed the agreement.

"It will take some of the amateur control away from the professional hockey leagues," he said, predicting this would lead to a better balance of junior hockey across Canada.

Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he thinks the new agreement is a "big step" because the CAHA had not been achieving things it felt essential.

"Under the agreement we will be able to equalize amounts to assist amateur clubs as needed."

Juckes said that in addition to the draft price for players, the CAHA will continue to receive sums for development of hockey generally and for minor hockey.

"The development fund will partly take the place of money received from the professionals for sponsorship of amateur clubs."

Alan Ball Scores Winner

LONDON (AP) — England World Cup star Alan Ball, signed by Everton for a record £100,000 ($300,000) from Blackpool last week, scored a winning goal for his new team against Fulham as the English Soccer League season kicked off today.

Ball soon showed he was worth every penny of Everton's big investment.

He combined in some dangerous moves on the Fulham goal in the first half.

The winner came in the 58th minute.

Scott took a free kick from the edge of the penalty area and Ball, standing six yards out, drove the ball high into the net.

Tottenham Hotspur also played its costly new player, centre-half Mike England — he cost £95,000 ($285,000)—in its 3-1 win over Leeds at home.

TIED AT HALF

Spurs and Leeds, who were playing without World Cup player Jackie Charlton, were tied 1-1 at half-time after Alan Mullery put Spurs ahead and then Mike Giles tied the score.

Almost from the start, Scottish international Alan Gilzean put Spurs ahead 2-1 with a goal that went in off the post.

Jimmy Greaves got Spurs' third goal with a cleverly-directed left-foot shot in the 62nd minute.

John Cooke, Chelsea's £75,000 ($225,000) signing from Dundee, scored a brilliant winning goal in Chelsea's 2-1 win over West Ham.

Curry Appointed To New Position

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens announced Friday that Floyd Curry, former right wing player, has been appointed development co-ordinator, a newly-created position.

General manager Sam Pollock said also that Curry, 41, has been given permission to accept a coaching position at Loyola College.

Last season he handled several special scouting assignments for the Canadiens organization.

Compass Navigates To Rock-n-Roll World For Series Final

A television study of one of the many music groups that have earned Toronto a reputation as the rock 'n' roll capital of North America will be the final presentation in the summer public affairs series Compass.

The program subtitled The Ecstasy Is Sometimes Fantastic, will be seen Sunday at 10 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

Hundreds of young musicians in Toronto have formed groups and nearly all of them entertain the same ambition—to "make it to the States." The Compass program offers a profile of such a group, Jon and Lee and The Checkmates, comprising six Torontonians between 17 and 23. Riding a crest of popularity and financial success in Toronto and throughout Canada, these performers are constantly apprehensive about their fickle young fans.

Sporting shoulder-length haircuts, J L and C endure the stares of bemused passers-by on the street and trade wisecracks with them. Their musical instruments may be purchased on credit, but they drive to performance dates in a chauffeured limousine and retain a full-time valet—a status symbol for rock groups.

While performing during celebrations for the opening of the new Toronto City Hall, enthusiastic fans mauled the group and their limousine absorbed damages amounting to some $400. This necessitated another expense for future engagements—special riot insurance.

Face the Nation

Pierre Salinger, who served as press secretary to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, will be the guest on "Face the Nation" Sunday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Salinger is the author of a new book, "With Kennedy," which will be published Sept. 2. Currently a vice-president of Continental Airlines, he formerly was a U.S. senator from California, senate investigator, speech writer and reporter.

He will be interviewed by CBS News Correspondent Martin Agronsky, CBS News White House Correspondent Robert Pierpoint and Merriman Smith of United Press International, who has been called the Dean of White House correspondents.

20/20 Series

An exciting deep-sea adventure aboard a Nova Scotia fishing vessel in search of swordfish off the province's southwest coast, will be a special presentation on CBC-TVs 20-20 series Sunday at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

About 20 years ago the pursuit of swordfish was considered to be full of problems and romantic adventures, but today it's a business that uses all the advantages of modern technology.

"Although the work is just as hard, techniques have changed," says 36-year-old Captain Murray Garrison, skipper of the Adventure.

"Today we rely on high-cost electronic aids, and when you realize that the modern swordfishing vessel represents an investment of close to $100,000, you can understand why the modern fisherman is concerned with market prices, overhead costs, and the latest in electronic equipment and research," adds Capt. Garrison.

Empire Games

A two-hour, wrap-up program of the Eighth British Empire and Commonwealth Games will be telecast on CBC Sports Presents, Sunday at 2 p.m., on Channel 2.

Alex Trebek and Lloyd Robertson will interview Canadian athletes and describe the events at the Games in Kingston, Jamaica.

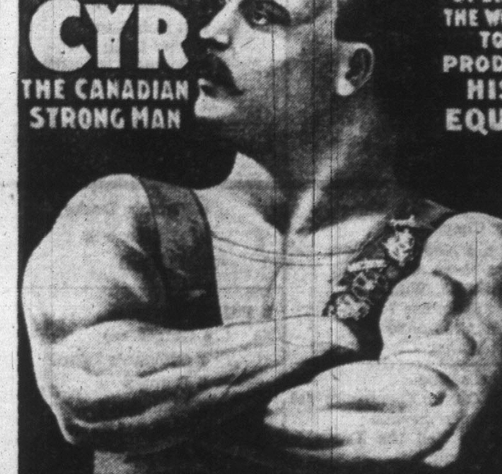
The 10-day Games comprised nine sports—swimming, fencing, boxing, track and field, shooting, wrestling, weightlifting, cycling and badminton. Canada sent 110 athletes and 70 officials.

Among the athletes selected were sprinter Harry Jerome, 15-year-old swimmer Elaine Tanner, half-milers Bill Crothers and Abby Hoffman; sprinters Irene Piotrowski and Valerie Parker, shot-putter Nancy McCredie, shooter Gil Boa and boxers Heinz Koppe and Don Paduano.

Meet the Press

For the first time on television the six top civil rights leaders will face a battery of newsmen together in a special hour-and-a-half edition of "Meet the Press" Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Guests on the special edition of "Meet the Press" will be Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Roy Wilkins, executive director, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Whitney Young, executive director, National Urban League; Stokely Carmichael, chairman, Student Nonviolent Co-ordinating Committee; Floyd B. McKissick, national director, Congress of Racial Equality; and James H. Meredith, leader of the recent march through Mississippi and the Negro who integrated the University of Mississippi.



LOUIS CYR
THE CANADIAN STRONG MAN
$25,000 CHALLENGE OPEN TO THE WORLD TO PRODUCE HIS EQUAL

A PROFILE OF QUEBEC STRONGMAN Louis Cyr—a former Montreal police officer who became a circus strongman—will be seen on CBC-TV's Eight Stories Inside Quebec on Wednesday. The program, subtitled The Ballad of Louis Cyr, traces Cyr's career during the 1880s and 1890s when he astounded the world with prodigious feats of strength and overwhelmed challengers from around the world in tests of sheer strength. It will be shown at 10:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Dead Sea Scrolls

"Shrine of the Book," a half-hour broadcast filmed in color in Israel at the repository of the Dead Sea Scrolls and other precious documents and artifacts, will be presented on "Lamp Unto My Feet" Sunday at 10 a.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

The broadcast will examine the unusual building, as well as some of its contents.

Set on a hill in Jerusalem close by the Israel Museum, the shrine houses seven of the scrolls, the Bar Kochba letters and other writing dating back to Bar Kochba's revolt against the Romans. Within the structure, the shrine itself is formed by subterranean caverns that represent the caves in which the scrolls lay hidden for centuries.

Is God Dead?

"Challenge" panel answers the popular question "Is God Dead?" Sunday at 6 p.m. over Channel 4.

This provicative question has become one of today's most controversial religious issues. Many theologians claim the issue has resulted from a culture lag, caused by those religious leaders who refuse to face up to today's problems. As a result, they maintain, fewer people are looking to their churches for help — and for some, God is dead.

A. If you carry an extension for "Theft Away From The Premises," your property in the trailer is covered up to a stated amount, against burglary, which must be evidenced by signs of forcible opening of locked doors or windows.

Critic Votes Nets to Hold Secret Agent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—All of us who cannot bear to face life without Saturday night's British series, "Secret Agent," are quietly preparing ourselves for the empty days we know will soon confront us.

With the weekly, one-hour English import once again failing to make the schedule of the coming new Video season, the best that we can do is hope that the networks will continue, as in the past, to keep the show on tap as a future mid-season replacement.

For "Secret Agent" has turned out to be American network television's top reserve entry. Twice in the past two seasons, it has filled in at mid-season or thereabouts, and both times it has been a solid winner and commanded a large and faithful audience.

VIEWERS PRAISE

If the networks should have any doubts about this, I can tell you that since it showed up again this season, I have recieved well over 100 letters from viewers and readers offering unsolicited praise, and now, of course, protesting the impending cancellation again.

This week's mail, for instance, brought a letter from Mrs. Dorothy Stewart of Orange Park, Fla., who vows that "my week isn't complete without my Saturday night excursion" with the British series.

"I am just captivated by the sophistication of this program," she adds. "They make every scene count."

Mrs. Stewart, however, is no more devoted to "Secret Agent" than are many others, among them an enthusiastic fellow named Fred Wilson, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who writes:

"Unfortunately, I understand this truly terrific show is not returning in the fall. Why? What's wrong with network executives? . . .

"Patrick McGoohan (star of the series) is a most convincing spy and the scripts are quite realistic.

"Could you please put in a good word for all of us who faithfully watch "Secret Agent" (and even the commercials too!)? . . .

OTHER COMPLAINTS

There are other letter writers, of course, and some of them are quite helpful. For example, we recently noted that the second weekly episodes of ABC-TV's "Batman" series, get higher ratings than the first on a regular basis.

Mrs. Ronald R. Black, of Perry, Ohio, writes convincingly, and with good logic: "It is not a curiosity that the ratings reveal the conclusions are watched more than the beginnings of the "Batman" stories. The fact is that everyone I know has children (myself included) who watch "Lost in Space" on another network during part one of "Batman."

And consider the problem of a lady from Gloucester, N.J., who liked ABC-TV's daytime soap opera, "The Young Marrieds"—and then:

"One Friday it left you all excited wondering whether or not Walter shot himself. On the Monday, "The Nurses" started their new time just when "The Young Marrieds" came on. There was no announcement or anything. They just dropped it. Do you think that's right? They could have at least ended it. . ."

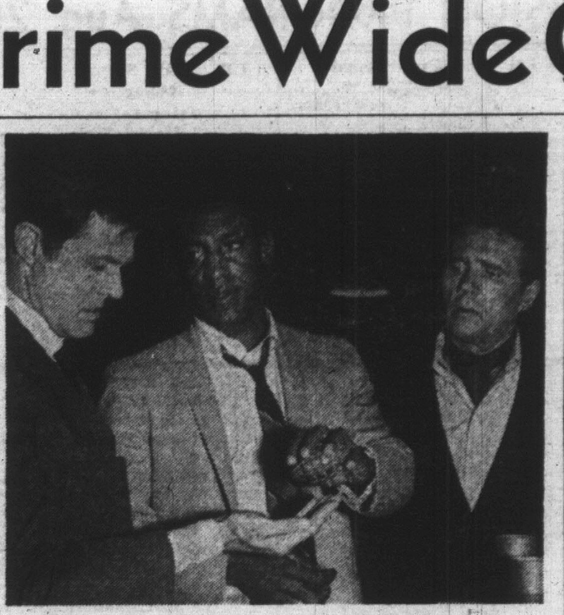
'Must See' Program On Rackets in U.S. Fills Thursday Bill



AMERICAN SECRET AGENTS, Kelly Robinson (Robert Culp, left) and Alexander Scott (Bill Cosby, center) check the explosive in a hand-grenade which a group of misguided liberals, headed by a famous American author (guest star Howard Duff, right), plan to use in an invasion of a dictatorship in "Crusade to Limbo," on "I Spy" Wednesday, at 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

Frank McGee will be the reporter for American White Paper: Organized Crime In The United States, a three-and-one-half-hour NBC News color special to be telecast Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

This extensive examination of organized crime, rated as a $40-billion-a-year industry, will cover such illegal enterprises as policy gambling, narcotics traffic, betting and loan sharking.

After an opening statement taken from remarks by President Johnson at a past news conference on the problem of organized crime, McGee will explain what the viewers will see in the special.

NBC News will preempt the network's entire prime-time schedule for this special, marking the third time in four years that it has presented a program of such scope.

Geographical centres selected for this broad examination include New York City; Los Angeles; Detroit; Chicago; Gary, Ind.; Newport, Ky.; Youngstown, Ohio; Reading, Pa.; Miami, Fla.; and New Orleans.

Representatives of law enforcement agencies which have been fighting the criminal elements on federal, state and local levels and who will be seen in the special include the following:

Senator Robert F. Kennedy, former U.S. Attorney General; Attorney General Nicholas De B. Katzenbach; the late Senator Estes Kefauver; Daniel Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission; Senator John L. McClellan; Senator Edward V. Long; Elliot Lumbard, counsel for the New York State Crime Commission; Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois State Crime Commission; Virgil Peterson, director of the Chicago Crime Commission; Mayor Robert King High of Miami, the Democratic nominee for governor; Capt. William Duffy, Chief of Intelligence for the Chicago Police Department.

Also, Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker; Chicago Police Superintendent O. W. Wilson; Aaron Kohn, managing director of the Metropolitan Crime Commission of New Orleans and Edward J. Allen, former chief of police in Youngstown, Ohio, and now chief of Police at Santa Ana, Calif.

Organized Industry

In presenting the story of organized crime in the United States, award-winning executive producer Fred Freed will have the subject defined, and will show how this industry is organized and operates, who some of its leaders are, and the problems of law enforcement.

One of the highlights of the special will be a historical presentation of some of the major underworld figures of the past and of the activities which made them infamous.

Included in the footage and stills of this portion of the special will be the development of organized crime in this country from the early 19th century to the Apalachin hearings in New York in 1957.

Century Criminals

Such news figures of the early 20th century criminal establishment to be seen in the special include Al Capone, Joey Adonis, Charles (Lucky) Luciano, Louis Lepke, Dutch Schultz, Bugsy Siegel and Legs Diamond.

In addition to film taken in key cities in the U.S., there also will be scenes from Turkey, Syria, Lebanon, Italy, France and Mexico. Film from these countries will be presented in connection with the section on narcotics traffic.

Other elements of organized crime which will be explored include fencing of stolen merchandise, prostitution, arson, scamming (the purposeful bankrupting of legitimate businesses) and murder, the by-product of all organized crime's activities.

Producers for "American White Paper: Organized Crime in the United States" are Len Giovanitti, Don Silverman and Lee Hayes.

Quebec Strongman

The heroic deeds of those high-camp, caped, comic strip, super heroes pale in comparison with the fantastic feats of real-life Quebec strongman Louis Cyr.

The saga of Cyr, whose prodigious physical strength gained him international renown in the 1880s and '90s, will be recalled on The Ballad of Louis Cyr, to be seen on CBC-TV's Eight Stories Inside Quebec series Wednesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Cyr bestrode his era like a colossus: his sturdy, 320-pound frame personified the bravest of the brave, the best of the good, and the strongest man in the world. His rugged displays of might throughout the world made him a popular hero in his native province and initiated a cult of physical culture that still exists.

Cyr was born in St. Cyprien de Napierville, about 25 miles southeast of Montreal, in 1863. As a child he developed a near mania for food. The adult Cyr downed four huge meals daily, and once demolished a 22-pound suckling pig at one sitting.

At the age of 21 Cyr joined the Montreal police force and was assigned a beat in one of the roughest districts in Montreal — an area so infested with hoodlums that many police officers refused to patrol certain streets. His relentless desire to restore law and order to this location, aided by the power of his brawny build, soon earned Cyr the reputation as the toughest cop who ever lived. He once carried four thugs to the police station without help. Within a year most of the hoodlums had fled from the area patrolled by the sinewy rookie cop.

The Titan

An extraordinary documentary comes your way in the one-hour special broadcast, "The Titan," on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12.

This documentary, narrated by Fredric March, recreates the work, life and times of the great Michelangelo. The film is at once an exciting tribute to the art of the Florentine master and an impressive tour de force in the art of the cinema.

The picture sets the Renaissance stage for Michelangelo's emergence and shows the influence of contemporaries and ancients. Shown are such masterpieces as the David, the Medici monument, the Moses, the Sistine Chapel ceiling, the Last Judgment, and the soaring dome of St. Peter's.

The narration knits together a visual story built out of piazzas, palaces, cathedrals, old maps and prints, the rugged Italian landscapes; plus the sculptures, painting, and architecture of the great master.

They Look for Sun, Fun And Miss Some Oddities

By CY FOX

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP) — Increasing numbers of North Americans are looking to the Caribbean for sun and fun.

And West Indians are trying to lure them to these lush islands with publicity drives of an intensity befitting the industry that is seen as a key to the West Indian economy—tourism.

Most of the northerners come in search of the sun. They leave their jets or ships at the big island centres and are whisked to luxuriously-appointed hotels and sun-scorched beaches.

Many, so the local people say, show no interest in anything between point of disembarkation and the ocean's edge.

Such West Indian phenomena as the long-haired Rastafarians of Jamaica — members of a "back-to-Africa" cult — escape the tourist's eye.

But some of the visitors come south for special events, such as the annual, pre-Lenten carnival in Port of Spain, the capital of the dual-island nation of Trinidad and Tobago.

For several days, they are galvanized by the blindingly colorful spectacle of thousands of Trinidadians in frantic, high-spirited parade, sporting fantastic costumes bought or often made by themselves.

LEAVE MONEY IN TILL

"Steel bands"—using for instruments expertly converted sections of oil drums—join with blaring brass ensembles to keep Port of Spain in constant, rhythmic, though non-violent, uproar.

The carnival is the island of Trinidad's biggest tourist attraction, though the compatriot island of Tobago does a brisk and more sustained trade with its bigger quantity of beaches.

Off to the northeast, in Barbados, tourism currently is edging up on sugar as the country's biggest money-maker.

In Trinidad and Tobago, at last count, tourism meant an annual $12,000,000 in income.

Barbados authorities say tourism there now brings in a total of more than $16,000,000 annually.

In Jamaica, the Commonwealth West Indies' biggest island in area as well as in population, tourism yielded about $69,000,000 in 1965 revenue for all interests involved.

All the islands reported that their visitors have been more numerous in the 1960s than in the 1950s.

Everywhere construction of hotels and tourist amenities seems to have a high place on economic development programs.

PLAN MORE EXPANSION

Local authorities quote economists as saying tourism is one of the industries providing a high level of employment. This is a vital factor in an area where unemployment is at an alarmingly high level.

Commercial sources in Jamaica say tourism there, with vast stretches of north - coast beaches still to be developed, is only scratching the surface.

The country's tourist officials have been calling for more air services between the island and outside areas, improvements in inland transportation, stepped-up staff training and more tourist amenities such as night clubs and yachting facilities.

In Barbados, the talk also is of expansion. More and extended hotels seem to be the order of the day. But brassiness of the "Miami" order, as locals like to term it, is spurned. Barbados now has the air of a quiet place admirable for those who want to rest. Older guests are much in evidence at hotels there.

The Barbados tourist board recently disclosed that the number of visitors from Canada during 1965 was 14,209, a 30-per-cent increase over the 1964 figure.

HUGE SPAN CONNECTS PROSPEROUS NORTH, IMPOVERISHED SOUTH

Peace Doves, Jets Mark Bridge Opening

LISBON (AP) — Portugal has opened the Premier Antonio Salazar bridge over the Tagus River. It is the longest in the world outside the United States.

As peace doves were released and jet fighters roared overhead, President Americo Thomaz dedicated the 3,323-foot span, the first direct connection between Portugal's industrial north and the impoverished south.

The $57,000,000 bridge was built by U.S. Steel Corp. and its subsidiaries with the aid of a $50,000,000 loan from the U.S. Export-Import Bank. In addition, $21,000,000 came from two French banks. It was finished six months ahead of schedule, in four years.

Expected to carry as many as 50,000,000 persons a year, the bridge will replace ferry and sailboats as the means of conveying traffic and merchandise across the port. There were often waits of three hours to board these.

Greatest U.S. Wildlife Sanctuary

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK — Thousands of travellers viewing the thermal wonderland of Yellowstone National Park's bubbling hot springs and spouting geysers fail to realize that they are also visiting America's greatest wildlife sanctuary at the same time.

Bear, moose, deer, elk, buffalo, antelope, bighorn, sheep — and a host of smaller wildlife and waterfowl — can be seen along Yellowstone's forests, meadows, lakes and streams.

This famous national park abounds with wild animals. And to the delight of two million annual tourists, some species are easily photographed from the roadside of the 142-mile Grand Loop Highway circling Yellowstone.

UNNOTICED BY MAN

An estimated 11,500 elk graze the park's forested plateaus. National Park Service tabulations also list the following: 400 black bear, 400 mountain sheep, 450 buffalo (bison), 1,000 deer, 250 Grizzly bear, 400 moose, and mountain lions are known to wander in and out of Yellowstone's primeval wilderness, usually unnoticed by man.

Badgers, red fox, lynx, musdrat and otter poulations are not too large. However, coyote are quite common throughout Yellowstone's 2¼ million acres.

Over 10,000 waterfowl are believed to exist in the park. This includes pelicans, great blue herons, Caspian terns, Canadian geese . . . and a large number of ducks, cormorants, and gulls. Sixty-three Trumpeter swans now live in this sanctuary. This represents an increase of 200 per cent over the 1930 census of this giant waterfowl that is so very close to complete extinction.

The threat of extinction also hangs over the massive head of the grizzly bear. Yellowstone's colony of 250 grizzlies represents a large share of all that is left of these giant, unpredictable bruins in the United States. Standing up to nine feet high in the clear mountain air, and weighing 600 pounds or more, the adult male grizzly is one of the world's most awesome, and respected animal. A Yellowstone-based scientific project is underway to prevent the extinction of the grizzly in America.

SURVIVORS

Buffalo once roamed the western prairies in herds of countless thousands. The pressure of hunters drove the buffalo into the remote wilderness areas of the Rocky Mountains. The establishment of Yellowstone National Park in 1872 helped preserve the remaining survivors from total slaughter.

Park rangers face an entirely different problem with the Yellowstone elk herds. The elk are outgrowing available forage, starving other wildlife — including its own numbers — during the park's long, bitter-cold winter. A program is now in progress to restore, and maintain, the correct elk balance.

ROCKS HAVE SPECIAL POWERS

Kuhio beach park, a part of the larger Waikiki strip, is the place where you can see and photograph "The Wizard Stones of Kapaemahu."

These four large rocks cropping up from the coral sands might look like ordinary rocks to you, but actually they contain a special mana or power.

According to Hawaiian legend, they were dedicated to four soothsayers who came to Oahu from Tahiti long before the reign of King Kakuhihewa. This fabled monarch of Oahu is said to have ruled during the time of Queen Elizabeth in England, about the 16th century.

Located on the former Cleghorn property, they had been completely forgotten until the Waikiki building for bowling was torn down.

Then, because of their unusual size for that area, the rocks made the news and their legendary past was rediscovered.

The largest weighed about eight tons and the others weighed one, two and three tons each.

Honolulu officials decided, because of their fabled mana, to retain the stones at Kuhio beach, which takes its name from the former Hawaiian Prince Kuhio.

Of course, due to great size, the stones had to be partly buried in the sands so as not to interfere with the activities of bathers on the site. Surfboards are for hire just a coconut's toss away and outrigger canoes are drawn up on the nearby sands, shaded by hala trees and palms.

Sometimes bikini-clad sunbathers perch on the Wizard Stones without even bothering to read the plaque that describes their legend-rich past.

Governor A. S. Cleghorn would probably turn in his grave at the sight, as it was in his own will, drawn in 1910, that he specified that the stones be retained on the premises without defacing.

Certainly he little dreamed that the property later would hold a bowling alley and a public beach.

Today it's doubtful if any of the Hawaiian beachboys or surfers would even know the names of the quartette of stalwart wizards whom the stones represent. Adept in the healing arts and generous in their use among the ancient Hawaiians, they were called "Kapaemahu, Kahaloa, Kapuni and Kinohi."

Canadians Travel, Spend More

NEW YORK — It may come as a shock to some United States citizens, but they are not the world's "travelingest" people. Statistics reported by in this month's issue of ASTA Travel News, official publication of the American travel agents reveals that a higher percentage of the Canadian population, in proportion to the United States population, takes foreign trips.

Canadians spend $35.20 per capita on travel, which is more than four times the $9.70 spent by U.S. citizens and higher than any other nationality in the world.

The report says Ontario agents have established a travel information centre in the Travel and Tourism Building on the Canadian National Exhibition grounds to provide information on tourist facilities for the travel-minded Canadians. The 88th National Canadian Exhibition will run from Aug. 19 through Sept. 5 in Toronto.

Three million visitors are expected during the exhibition and officials believe that a large percentage will visit the Travel and Tourism Building since it is situated just inside the exhibition's main gate.

Pick Shady Spot for Sunday

Pick a shady spot. Pour a tall, cold drink. Relax.

It's going to be hot, hot all over Vancouver Island this weekend.

Sunday, like today and Friday, will be the hottest this year. It was 80 on Friday in Victoria.

Residents of central Vancouver Island will have temperatures closer to 90.

A light ocean breeze off the Georgia Strait may cool a few fevered brows but generally winds will not be significant.

Late Sunday afternoon Mother Nature will add a touch of color to the clear blue sky with an occasional puffy cloud.

The same weak weather disturbance may result in a few more clouds over northern Vancouver Island.

The previous record hot day here this year was on June 15 when the red line on the thermometers climbed to 77 degrees. Before that it was on May 5 when it was 76 degrees.

Despite the hot days, the overnight temperatures away from the water will fall below 50 degrees.

The forest industry is probably the least happy.

Although no forest closures have been ordered in the Cowichan area, the Crown Zellerbach operation at Nitinat only worked a half an early shift Friday and the men have been put on a standby regarding resumption of logging Monday.

Jack Mumm of Duncan Local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America said because of the fire hazards the whole area is borderline, but Nitinat was the only operation which up to Friday had not continued working normally.

The situation was much worse in the Comox Valley area in central Vancouver Island where all logging operations have shut down.

The Comox Logging Division of Crown Zellerbach Ltd. pulled its logging crews from the woods Friday in the first closure of the year. A company official said the move was voluntary.

'SHOW ME THE WAY TO GO HOME'

A man who told police he was headed home but was going in the wrong direction was fined $300 in court today for impaired driving.

John Arrowsmith, 115 Ganges Cresc., was also barred from driving anywhere in Canada for a year.

His car was stopped by a Colwood RCMP officer early today after it was seen to weave over the highway centre line on nine occasions.

Strike-Lockout To Close Down More Big Jobs

Picketing Step-Up Coming Next Week

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Major construction jobs in B.C. will be hit by an expanding strike-lockout situation next week.

Arnold Smith, president of the Provincial Council of Carpenters, said today there will be a step-up in picketing at commercial and industrial sites.

"There are going to be a lot of large industrial jobs that will be affected," he said.

"But we don't want to publicize them beforehand."

Although 208 major contractors have declared a lockout against carpenters and the union has struck some jobs, only a nominal number of pickets have appeared.

This has allowed other tradesmen, who would not cross picket lines, to carry on their work.

At the same time, Mr. Smith called "utterly ridiculous" suggestions that contractors will try and have the "Okanagan Agreement" put to a government-supervised ballot among carpenters.

NO DECISION

Victoria contractor George Wheaton said no decision has been made but this move is being considered. A section of the Labour Relations Act allows either side to approach the labor minister who may direct that the offer be submitted to a vote among employers or employees affected.

Mr. Smith said "we are certainly not going to approve of it."

Carptenters at union meetings around the porvince have unanimously rejected the Okanagan Agreement.

In addition, he said, the government-supervised strike vote in June requested by the employers still hasn't been completed because some contractors haven't sent in payroll lists so mailed ballots can go out.

Council secretary Art Leam said there are 30 companies which haven't sent in payroll lists and there is nothing in the Labour Relations Act to make the companies do so.

WASTE OF TIME

Mr. Smith said a government-supervised vot on the Okanagan Settlement would meet the same rejection it did at union meetings this week and will only be a waste of time.

The 322-member Construction Industry Joint Negotiating Committee offered to settle on the basis of the Okanagan Agreement, where four rebel locals agreed to new terms called "a sellout" by Mr. Smith.

A fifth local, Grand Forks, which had accepted the new contract, has since changed its mind.

The Okanagan Agreement provides for a 51-cent hourly raise in a two-year contract, no change in working hours and the end to the union hall hiring system.

The Provincial Council of Carpenters rejected the agreement and individual locals in other parts of the province followed suit.

The union wants the 322 companies to settle on the same basis as 130 independent contractors employing 1,200 carpenters.

This provides for a 40-cent hourly raise in a two-year contract, a 37½-hour work week next year and continuation of union hall hiring.

The 322 companies have rejected this.

Locally, company lockout notices and union "locked out" pickets were withdrawn Friday from Bank Street and Royal Oak Schools in an agreement with school boards to allow subtrades to continue work.

Famed Judge To Choose Lucky Dogs

A judge of international repute will be in Victoria Sept. 9 and 10 to help pick the winners at the 44th annual benched show of the Vancouver Island Dog Fancier's Association.

Ted Gunderson of Ottawa has been selected to judge major shows through Canada, the U.S., Mexico, South America and the Caribbean Islands.

Joining him in picking the winners from an entry expected to top 200 dogs is John Devlin of Thornhill, Ont.

Entries close Monday for the two-day show at Esquimalt Sports Centre. At a benched show, the dogs are required to be on exhibit throughout each day for the public.

Judges' fees will cost the local club $800 this year.

Pinballs Pull Out Of Victoria

City police said today there are no known pinball machines in Victoria to be affected by a recent Supreme Court ruling.

The decision of Canada's senior court, reported in the July issue of Canadian Criminal Cases, has clarified an earlier decision and established that pinball machines are classed as slot machines and are therefore illegal.

"We don't know of a single machine in town," a senior police spokesman said today.

'LITTLE INTEREST'

Hospital Workers' Breakaway Decried

A spokesman for the Public Service Alliance of Canada today played down a move by federal hospital workers to join the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

S. B. Sherman, regional representative of the civil servant staff group, was commenting on a visit here by Andy Randall, secretary-treasurer of the Hospital Workers' Union at Shaughnessy in Vancouver.

The Shaughnessy workers are in the process of joining the Teamsters, said Mr. Randall, when he visited Victoria last weekend to see what interest there is at Veterans' Hospital.

"I can advise, after consulting with the branch president at the Veterans' Hospital, that there was not nearly as much interest in forming a new local as Mr. Randall might have anticipated," said Mr. Sherman.

The civil service staff associations "are well aware of the facts of life" as far as forthcoming federal bargaining rights is concerned "and it would seem that those in the Hospital Workers' Union are not."

Mr. Sherman said the legislation provides for bargaining units based on occupational lines across the entire public service and not by region, plant or institution.

"Therefore it follows that the bargaining agent will be a union that is organized along similar lines," he said.

The Public Service Alliance of Canada met this description, he added, through its membership of 115,000 civil servants.

Mr. Randall said earlier he hoped the move towards the Teamsters union at Shaughnessy would spread across the country.

BETSY ROSS WOULD TURN OVER

Better call it the stripes and stars.

That's the way they're hanging on a flagpole atop a rambling three-storey mansion at the corner of Oak Bay Ave. and McGregor.

Tenants of the house say they're flying the United States flag top to bottom as a distress signal.

"Because America's in distress," said John Warren, 19, a student at the University of Victoria.

"We want to show we're utterly opposed to their foreign policy.

"They're bombing civilians and hospitals in Viet Nam," he said.

"We've seen films."

South Island Candidates Ready at Starting Gates

A full field of candidates—except for Progressive Conservatives—is lined up on Southern Vancouver Island for the Sept. 12 provincial election.

Largest number of candidates is in the two-seat Victoria constituency.

Representing Social Credit are Works Minister W. N. Chant and MLA Waldo Skillings, an insurance agent.

New Democratic Party representatives are Rev. H. T. Allen, minister of James Bay United Church, and Mrs. Dorcas Blair, schoolteacher and local president of the Voice of Women.

The Liberals picked hospital accountant John Porteous, also chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, and engineering assistant Frank Preston.

Running for the Communists is plywood worker and party secretary Ernest Knott, while carpenter Larry Tickner is the candidate for the Socialist Party of Canada.

Voters in Saanich and The Islands will be choosing from MLA John Tisdalle, real estate salesmen running again for Social Credit; Ed Haw, financial secretary of the International Woodworkers of America here; and Saturna Island rancher James Campbell, the Liberal representative.

A head-on clash between Liberal MLA and lawyer Alan Macfarlane and Dr. Charles Ennals, Social Credit, will take place in Oak Bay. Mrs. Mira Yarwood, secretary in a local law company, is representing the NDP.

In Esquimalt, the contest is between MLA Herbert Bruch of Social Credit, a party organizer; logger John Bartanus, chairman of Sooke School Board, for the NDP; and insurance executive David Elrix for the Liberals.

Constituency boundaries have been changed under redistribution. Anyone in doubt should contact local returning officers or the registrar of voters on Gordon Street.

In addition, the former three-member Victoria cinstituency has been reduced to two seats as well as being enlarged to the north and northwest.

LAST HOUSE

At the 1963 election, under the old distribution of seats, Social Credit held Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich with the NDP second while Oak Bay continued Liberal with Social Credit second.

Whether the Progressive Conservatives will field candidates in any B.C. riding is still in doubt.

Tory party officials were to meet today in Vancouver to decide the matter. But at the last minute the meeting was cancelled due to illness of association president Stuart Fleming.

MAN HELD ON GUN CHARGE

An Oak Bay man has been charged with assaulting a police officer and pointing a firearm at him.

James Ballendine, 2020 Milton, was remanded to Monday without plea when he appeared in court today. An application for bail was denied.

The charges arose out of an incident early today involving Oak Bay Constable Robert Faith. Ballendine was arrested and spent the night in jail.

In opposing an application for bail, prosecutor John McIntyre said his information was the accused had threatened to kill his wife and then threatened to kill the policeman.

Loaded firearms were taken from the house and other charges would be laid, said Mr. McIntyre.

In appealing for bail, Ballendine's counsel, Jack Gatehouse, said the matter arose out of a drinking incident and was "very much out of character" for the accused.

Fines Are Fine But Folk Songs Bring Out the Swinger in Vince

By TERRY IZZARD

By day, Vince Miller looks like the typical businessman.

At 9 each morning he can be seen entering Victoria magistrate's court, complete with brief case and old school tie.

Traffic offenders may remember him as the official looking court recording clerk who diligently takes down what they say.

But others will remember a much different Vince Miller—the night-time Vince Miller.

The Vince Miller of the Legions and the dance halls.

For when night falls, the 27-year-old bachelor doffs his businessman's greys in favor of blue jeans.

And instead of using his fingers to write out fines, he uses them to pluck guitar strings.

Since arriving in Victoria three months ago, Vince has appeared in several legions in Victoria and Duncan.

* * *

An accountant by profession, he quickly teamed up with welder Bernie Lynch, carpenter Wally Graff and Slim Jamieson to form a beat group.

Lead guitarist with the group, he pleads guilty to singing such pop numbers as "I've got a Tiger by the Tail" though his favorite music is country and western.

Born in Brampton, Ont., he began playing Spanish guitar at the tender age of seven.

* * *

While at his last job as a bank accountant in London, Ont., he headed a group called The Country Squires.

"It gets sort of tiring working day and night," says Vince. "But I love music and my employers have never complained about my other activities."

UNION DECERTIFIED

Market Hits Back After Long Strike

The union which staged the second-longest strike in recent times on Vancouver Island has been decertified at Alberta Meat Market on Cook Street.

The market applied to the Labor Relations Board to cancel the certification granted to Local 212 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The board said certification was cancelled "because it was satisfied that the trade union has ceased to represent the employees in the unit."

The 12 employees voted 8-4 in favor of strike action after talks broke down when the market refused to sign the area agreement.

The strike started May 7, 1963, and ended in a settlement Sept. 10, 1964.

In recent times, only the 1962-1963 Woolworth strike at Port Alberni was longer, although coal miners once struck for two years in Nanaimo ending in 1914.

Victoria Man Married at Summerland

WEDDINGS ON TODAY'S CALENDAR

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place at Summerland today when Gloria Jean Tilbe became the bride of Douglas James Okerstrom. Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Tilbe of Summerland and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Okerstrom, who travelled from their home at 2060 Newton Street, Victoria, for the ceremony.

Arrangements of gladioli and dahlias in white and fall shades decorated Summerland United Church for the afternoon ceremony at which Rev. P. K. Louie officiated. The autumn colors were repeated in the gowns and bouquets of the attendants.

Mr. Tilbe gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown she had designed. It was floor-length in white bonded linen, fashioned on A-lines with scoop neckline and belled sleeves. Appliques of hand-made floral lace trimmed the sleeves and front of the gown. Appliques also enhanced the train which swept from the shoulders. A headpiece of white roses and lily of the valley held the four-tier chapel veil. Her cascade bouquet was of white pom-pom chrysanthemums and talisman rosebuds.

..Maid of honor, Miss Florence Johnson, Summerland, and bridesmaid, Miss Susan Skinner, Prince George, wore identical A-line gowns of duchess satin in autumn copper shade. Toning veiling trimmed their rose headpieces of the same satin. Accessories were en tone and their cascade bouquets contained pom-pom chrysanthemums in yellow and bronze.

A yellow frock, styled on similar lines, was worn by flower girl, Brenda Lemke, Abbotsford. Chrysanthemums in autumn shades were in the basket she carried.

Robert McGraw, Victoria, was best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with white ribbons, centred with a yellow rosebud, by Antony Cairns and Lawrence McCann, both of Victoria.

Fall-toned flowers set the decor at the Rosedale Room of the Summerland Royal Canadian Legion Hall for the reception and luncheon that followed. The three-tier wedding cake was topped with an arch of wedding bells, surrounded with lily of the valley.

TOASTS NIECE

W. E. Lemke, North Vancouver, proposed the toast to his niece's happiness.

For travelling outfit, the bride chose a white two-piece suit, trimmed with white crochet lace; celery green accessories, the hat having a flattering picture brim. Pink rosebuds en corsage completed the picture.

After a honeymoon trip through the southern part of the province and the United States, the couple will make their home at Port Moody.

Rodowski-Williams Vows Exchanged

Following their wedding, this afternoon, in St. John's Anglican Church, Mr. and Mrs. Dietrick Otto Paul Rodowski will travel on honeymoon to Europe, highlighted by a trip to West Berlin to visit the groom's mother, Mrs. Edith Fritz Spandau.

The bride, the former Margaret Christabel Williams, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Williams, 2987 Glen Lake Road. Rev. Peter Isles officiated at the ceremony and Mr. Williams gave his daughter in marriage.

John H. Nixon played "Westminster Hymn" when the bride entered St. John's church, and the congregation sang "Now Thank We All Our God" during the signig of the register.

The bride's floor-length gown of peau d'elegance was highlighted with a band of lace around the empire waistline. The bodice featured a jewel neckline and elbow-length sleeves, bordered with lace. A train of Chantilly lace extended from the shoulders. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion misted from a tiara of seed pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of white roses and flame-colored gladioli. Fulfilling the traditional "something old" was a blue and white crystal necklace, which was also "something borrowed" from her grandmother.

Yellow chiffon over taffeta formed the ballerina-length sheath gown worn by matron of honor Mrs. G. Vigers. Her headpiece was a yellow rose with yellow illusion net. She carried a bouquet of small white chrysanthemums and flame-toned gladioli. Only jewelry was a drop pearl necklace.

Sharon Fordham was flower girl for her aunt. Her white gown of organza over taffeta was syled similarly to the matron of honor's, with a round neckline and accented by a yellow satin ribbon with a bow in the back. Her headpiece was a ribbon bow, and she carried a basket of yellow and white daisies. Jewelry was a drop pearl necklace.

Hans Hagedorn was best man, and guests were ushered by Keith Williams.

The reception was held in the garden at the home of the bride's parents. A crocheted table cloth, made by Mrs. S. Cosbourn, was placed on the table which was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by yellow roses and silver leaves. Stan Cosbourn proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride's travelling ensemble was a wool skirt in soft blue and brown tones with a matching blouse, topped with a clutch coat. She completed her outfit with beige accessories and a blue whimsie hat topped by a blue flower.

Roberts-Smith Ceremony

Chantilly lace appliques enhanced the bodice and the hem of the white peau de soie gown worn by Shirley Katharine (Kate) Brimblecombe when she became the bride of John Charles Roberts this afternoon. Similar appliques bordered the court train which extended from the shoulders. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline and scalloped sleeves which ended above the elbow. A pill box of Chantilly lace held a chapel-length three-tier veil. She carried gardenias and stephanotis in her bouquet.

Baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Mary's Anglican Church for the service at which Rev. C. D. Blencoe heard marriage vows between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brimblecombe, 1461 Hampshire Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Roberts of Chilliwack. As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Purcell's "Trumpet Tune and Air" and Handel's "March from Occasional Oratorio" were played on the organ. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played as the newlyweds left the church.

The three attendants, matron of honor Mrs. Michael Hodding, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids Miss Jane Hassen and Miss Judy Roberts, sister of the groom were dressed alike in full-length gowns of apple green peau de soie. The lace-covered bodices featured rounded necklines and sleeves ending above the elbows. Their only jewelry was crystal necklaces, gifts from the bride. They carried bouquets of cream roses.

Winston S. Roberts was best man for his brother, and ushering the guests to pews, marked with yellow chrysanthemums, were Mr. Edwin Donald and Mr. Mel Dawson.

Fraser Shepherd proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. On the head table was a three-tier cake, decorated with a garland of roses. Master John Brimblecombe, the bride's brother, was in charge of the guest book.

For a honeymoon touring the Oregon coast and California, the new Mrs. Roberts donned a clover pink three-piece suit of jersey knit. Her accessories were bone-colored and she wore a pink velvet hat. Complementing her outfit was a corsage of a single pink orchid.

Upon their return, the couple will make their home on Richmond Avenue.

Children and animals just naturally go together in the summer months, and every day you can see youngsters of all ages around the Victoria Riding Academy, riding, grooming, or just plain loving the horses. Martini the pony takes a keen delight in all the attention he's receiving this summer from, left to right, JoAnn Murtagh, her little sister Marie, atop Martini; Helen Barnes, Linda Zabel and Carol Cox.

About this time of year, the pure bliss of not having to go to school, and the excitement of days filled with nothing but playtime begins to fade for members of the younger generation.

Toys have lost much of their charm, playmates have gone away on vacations and even the novelty of the family puppy has worn off.

Yes, now is the time when mothers are tearing their hair and frantically thinking of ideas to solve that "I don't know what to do with myself" complaint.

Don't despair, Mom!

Victoria is a virtual treasure-trove of activities for the younger set. Playgrounds provide hours of constructive recreation, through handicrafts, painting and gymnastics. Supervised "learn as you splash" classes are going daily at many of the local beaches and pools.

About this time, too, Little League baseball and minor football are in full swing for prospective athletes. And, of course there are planned hikes and bicycle trips for the more adventurous types, while churches and children's groups offer week-long and two-week summer camps.

For fun the whole family can enjoy, there are picnic grounds in and around the city, and all sorts of exciting places of natural or historical interest to see.

Victoria also boasts of areas where children can make their own fun, as shown in these pictures of youngsters just enjoying themselves.

Of course, Mom, if none of these appear to solve the problem, don't forget school begins next month.

Racing from the line of scrimmage to complete a forward pass, this young group of would-be British Columbia Lions finds a game of football an exciting way to spend a summer day. Quarterback John Green passes the ball and the teams, Roy Sinden, Bob Cove, Ricky Pipes, Steven Rogers and Bob Trabuck spring into action.

It's a strike! Young Tim Elwell, seven, finds the good old-fashioned stick, string and safety pin the best way to hook a big one in the Gorge. Brothers Tony, eight, Geoffrey, six, second and third from left, wait expectantly to view the "catch" with David Reid, even though they find the same method doesn't always bring the same results. Every summer day, Carnarvon Park playground offers a huge variety of fun ways to enjoy the sun. For energetic types, a fast game of pole-ball fits the bill, and afterward, a quick splash in the supervised wading pool is a good 'cooling-off' idea. Or, if it's just too darn' hot, relaxing and sun-tanning on the patio near the pool is the answer.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Campaigner's chest model for handsome furniture . . .

Seems just about every time we visit The Gallery at Home Furniture we spot something unique and newsworthy . . . This time it's the "Campaign" grouping of tables, commodes, chests, coffee, lamp and end tables . . . each piece of which is reminiscent of the chests for clothes and personal possessions army officers took with them when going off to battle during the U.S. Civil War . . . This furniture . . . imported, of course . . . is truly handsome . . . Solid, beautifully grained mahogany . . . adorned with antique brass corners and handles . . . Mind you, it's massive furniture . . . the kind that requires a large room as a setting . . . It's impressive and completely functional . . . There's a console commode like a small buffet, with three drawers and two compartments below . . . A handsome cocktail table . . . cube chests to serve as chairside or lamp tables . . . lamp commodes . . . a two-drawer and a four-drawer chest . . . chairside commodes, etc. . . . Every one of these has either drawers or compartments or both . . . so they not only look elegent, but you can stash all sorts of things away in them . . . which we always think is a great boon . . . no matter how large your house happens to be! . . . All of these tables and chests have casters too . . . so while they look as if they were rooted to the spot, they can actually be moved around with the greatest of ease! . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

More exciting Polly Pecks at M and E . . .

It can't be more than a couple of weeks ago since the Madam and Eve Shop got their first new shipment of Polly Peck dresses from England . . . would you believe it, they're nearly all sold? . . . Take heart though . . . there'll be another shipment early this coming week . . . and another is expected the week after . . . so there are bound to be some exciting things here from London, the swinging city! . . . Meanwhile, here are a few of the dresses we saw and liked . . . a cocktail dress with stiff white faille skirt, black velvet bodice fronted with a pert velvet bow . . . size 14 . . . A black faconne sleeveless dress with diagonal cut velvet stripes . . . sleeveless with a little roll collar . . . A sleeveless cream homespun dress that could also be worn as a tunic . . . A pink and blue angora with short sleeves, tie belt . . . a black rayon cloque sprinkled with small bright flowers . . . Also a Polly Peck suit of herringbone tweed . . . plum, gold and egg-plant mix . . . Jacket is slightly fitted with back vent and rounded front . . . not unlike a riding jacket in cut . . . skirt is slightly A-line . . . There are two of these . . . sizes 12 and 14 . . . and we also spotted plum and gold sweaters which pick out the colors of the tweed to perfection and team up beautifully with the suits . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Time to think of back-to-school outfitting . . .

Well, the season of groans and sighs is close at hand . . . groans from the youngsters who'll soon be back tackling the 3 Rs . . . (or should we say. New Math?) . . . and sighs of bliss from mothers who'll again be able to count on a little time to themselves in the course of the day. Right now, though smart mothers are busy outfitting their progeny for back-to-school . . . We encountered a number of them in Wilson's Junior Department this week . . . who with the help of Wilson's trained salespeople . . . who seem to know everything there is to know about private school requirements, etc. . . . were whizzing through their shopping in a remarkably relaxed manner! . . . Wilson's, of course, carry a complete range of school uniforms and everything else required for private schools for miles around . . . Blazers, tunics, pants, shirts, ties, socks, raincoats, berets, skirts, etc. . . . for boys and girls . . . in a complete size range . . . Many of these garments are imported from England . . . all are generously cut and made from sturdy, quality material that will take plenty of punishment! . . . Prices are down-to-earth and competitive, too . . . and even if they weren't you'd still be practising long-term economy by buying the best! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Stunning collection of fall millinery . . .

The new fall hats now on display at Miss Frith's literally had us drooling when we went in last Monday . . . We're thinking more especially of the imports by Christian Dior, Andre and Mr. Charles . . . which appear more outstanding than ever . . . but there are lovely hats in a very wide price range . . . quite reasonable . . . to medium . . . to fairly expensive . . . Velvets, velours, feathers . . . felt, furs and moufflon . . . printed and interestingly textured fabrics . . . you'll find them all . . . in colors and shapes to flatter your face and complement your fall outfits . . . A few highlights . . . a galmorous hat by Andre . . . black spotted tulle and cire . . . Looks like a big black flower . . . pretty and soft and immensely flattering . . . Another Andre hat is covered with silk petals in tones of blue and green . . . Made us think of the hats the Queen Mother often wears . . . There's a black Dior pillbox with velvet dots and jet beads sewn all over . . . A Mr. Charles black taffeta tam beautifully pleated and draped . . . Another Andre is a pillbox of silk flowers in the new and rich cranberry shade . . . Some stunning Dior turbans . . . Honestly, just looking at these gorgeous hats will give you a heady feeling (pardon the pun!) . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

If you're young and "with it" . . . paint your knees, or decorate them with a mouche (old fashioned beautyspot) in the shape of a star or heart. Or just pink them with one of those face blushers.

Purses made of snakeskin head the reptile look in fall accessories, though alligator is still king of the quality-reptile look.

Candy's grand . . . to give or to get . . .

Whenever the occasion calls for a smallish gift . . . (or even a larger one) . . . to mark an event, congratulate, commiserate, or just say "thank you for a lovely time" . . . you can't go wrong if you take or send a box of Welch's chocolates . . . Look at it this way . . . you might send flowers . . . (only so many people grow their own) . . . Liquor's chancy unless you know the donees well (they may have sworn off Demon Rum) . . . Other, more durable gift items may not happen to please . . . but Candy . . . ah, that's something everyone goes for, whether they admit it or not! . . . It's a compliment, too . . . because even if the gal who gets it happens to be dieting . . . it makes her think that you think she doesn't need to . . . follow us? . . . Of course, you don't necessarily have to give Welch's away . . . those scrumptious chocolates and candies . . . all 50 varieties of them . . . are so good you'll want to take some home for yourself and your family . . . we all need to give ourselves a treat on occasion . . And thoughtful husbands will make a practice of dropping into Welch's occasionally . . . We know a wonderful man who does this once a week! . . . Don't forget, either, that Welch's have a weekly week-end special in wrapped candies . . . On Fridays and Saturdays one of their 80c varieties may be had for just 67c a pound! . . . Welch's Candy Shop, 755 Fort St., 383-6422.

Eaton's Gift Registry handles wedding invitations . . .

It's the little things in connection with a wedding that are so time-consuming and exhausting . . . dashing around from store to store or department to department selecting this, ordering that . . . The camaraderie of the road . . .

Which is how we came to be talking with an attractive young man over coffee one day last week . . . deep in the heart of the Cariboo . . . Our 1966 VWs were parked side by side . . . so naturally we compared notes . . . "Great little cars," he volunteered, explaining that he's a salesman from Toronto who crosses the continent and covers the whole of Western Canada twice a year in his Volkswagen . . . "Bet you haven't driven 12,000 miles with yours during the past two months!" he boasted . . . We had to allow as how we hadn't . . . but our admiration and enthusiasm for Sandra . . . did we tell you that's our VW's name? . . . was in no way diminished thereby . . . She certainly behaved like a thoroughbred on the long trip into the interior . . . Oh yes, we should add that our salesman friend said he drives a Volkswagen because A) it's so dependable, and B), so economical . . . To both of which sentiments we heartily subscribe . . . and will add one more heading, C) . . . the VW is so easy and such fun to drive! . . . Wouldn't you like to own one? . . . DEAR ABBY . . .

Warn Beer Drinking Mother of Laws

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A 35-year-old neighbor woman asked our 19-year-old son if he would like to go out and have a beer with her. They left at 9 p.m. and didn't get home until after 2 the next morning. The place they went to closes at midnight, so they bought some beer to take out and went riding around.

This woman left her own children at home. Her husband is a truck driver so he doesn't know what goes on when he's away.

Our son has always been a good boy, Abby. When he came home his reaction was that of embarrassment. He said he didn't know she intended to stay out so late. How would you handle this?

UPSET MOTHER

DEAR UPSET: A 19-year-old "boy" shouldn't need a bodyguard. And if he's a "good boy", he'll have sense enough to decline her next invitation, should there be one.

I would let the woman know, however, that there are laws against contributing to the delinquency of minors, and also neglecting one's own children. Too bad there are better heads on beers than on some people.

DEAR ABBY: I have an awful problem that I'm sure many other girls have. You see, I wear braces and when my boy friend kisses me it feels like someone is hitting me in the mouth with a barbed-wire fence.

I like him a lot, but because of this it makes me dread having to kiss him. Do you have any suggestions?

KAREN

DEAR KAREN: Yes. Tell him to slow up when he gets to the fence.

DEAR ABBY: We have a lovely home and I am very particular about keeping it clean. We have a baby girl who will be starting to creep soon. My problem is my husband. He insists on cutting his toenails in the living room. I find his toenail clippings all over the living room carpet, and even on the coffee table.

I have told him I don't like it, but he does it anyway. Our baby will be creeping soon, and you know how babies pick up every little thing off the floor and put it in their mouths. It is such a gruesome thought! What should I do?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Explain to the baby (the big one you're married to) that toenail clippings can do the same kind of damage to a baby's stomach as broken glass, and he surely wouldn't leave broken glass around for the baby to eat, would he?

If that doesn't stop him, hide the scissors.

DEAR ABBY: I am being unjustly criticized by some members of our small community. You see, I am separated from my husband and I get lonesome for male companionship. So, I have formed a few friendships with some married men in town. (There are NO single men here; believe me, I have looked.)

I do have a strict rule, however. I never date a married man unless he tells me his wife doesn't care what he does. So, if I am not trying to steal another woman's husband, what is wrong with having a good time with a man who is as lonesome as I am?

CRITICIZED

DEAR CRITICIZED: A married man belongs to his wife and family whether his wife "cares" what he does or not. And there is always the heel who SAYS his wife doesn't "care" when she doesn't even KNOW.

Upcoming Engineers—Build Moveable Toys

By Penny Saver

Children are all engineers. On the beaches, their multi-towered castles rise from the sands with moats and stick draw-bridges. Building block buildings decorate play rooms. Some industrious children build roads in back yards, with the latest toy models of graders, cranes and steam rollers. One of the neighbor's youngsters devised a pulley system with a carrier in his bedroom, so that when the lights are out he can lower the toy-filled carrier when Mom think's he's sleeping.

In one shop I found a building set that will become the pride of many a youngster. This set contains blocks of tough plastic with each block fitted with studs on top which snap into holes on the bottoms of other pieces. There are many sized pieces, square blocks, rectangular, round, semi-circular and triangular, in colors of blue, yellow and red, white and black, as well as transparent pieces for windows. With these sets, you can make moveable toys, as each comes complete with wheels that have metal axles and steel bearings. The wheels have rubber tires, too.

A set, ideal for beginners, sells for $5.95. With this set, you can build a fire engine, a crane, racer, a truck pulling a trailer on a flexible hitch and scores of other toys. Your youngster will have hours of fun building the toys and just as much fun playing with them or taking them apart to build another.

The same company also produces a set of gears. When combined with the building set, machines that actually run by turning a crank can be made.

The gear set contains 12 gears, large and small wheels, large and small tires, a turn crank and swivel, all in precision detail. Price is $5.95. Some of the toys you can make are a merry-go-round, a sky ride and a windmill.

Powered motion is not out of the question with the motor that this firm has invented. The precision engine comes complete with wires, connectors and terminals for battery power. Combine this with the gear set and building set to make a moving motor car and hundreds of other machines. This motor sells for $6.95.

Detailed instructions with each set make building easy and fun. Your whole family will love creating machines with them.

Train Enhances Wedding Gown Worn For Brown-Scott Ceremony

A slight train created back interest to the floor-length gown of white peau de soie worn by Patricia Ann Scott recently when she became the bride of Richard Melvin Brown. A white lace overlay highlighted the sleeveless gown. Her bouffant veil misted to shoulder-length from a band of white and blue flowers. Pink rosebuds were in her colonial bouquet and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, the groom's gift.

Rev. J. L. W. McLean officiated at the ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, uniting the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Scott, 168 Derby Road, and Mr. Clifford E. Scott, Beaver Cove, B.C., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald N. Brown, 1651 Fairfield Road. White stocks, pink carnations and gypsophila decorated the church.

BRIDE'S UNCLE

Robert C. Duke gave his niece in marriage, and David Foster played the organ during the ceremony.

Miss Victoria Vessey was her cousin's only attendant. Her emerald green gown of peau de soie was sleeveless, and styled along A-lines. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Charles Brown, Rochester, Minn., was best man for his brother, and ushers were Jack MacDonald and Robert Brown.

At the reception following in the Sinclair Road home of Miss Sally Grears, John McRae proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Following a honeymoon trip to Vancouver, the couple is now living at 131 South Turner Street. For travelling, the new Mrs. Brown chose a white linen suit accented by a blue print blouse and a pill box hat.

Rookies to Set Sail On Missionary Voyage

By PAT DUFOUR

An American attorney, his wife and their 12-year-old son are setting out on a year-long trip around the world in a ketch-rigged 41-foot trimaran at the end of this year. To date, none of them have anything but a very casual acquaintance with port and starboard, and things nautical.

Here on a visit from Culver City, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Schneider and their son, Stephen, find nothing hazardous in the thought of setting out on a venture that would daunt many who are more seawise but less confident.

Their dearth of nautical know-how is, they feel, more than amply balanced by the Baha'i faith which spurs their journey.

Lois accepted the Baha'i teachings in 1960, her husband in 1962. The 12-month sail will be in the nature of a missionary trip to teach their faith in places off the beaten track to most travellers.

SHIPBOARD CLASSES

The Schneiders anticipate no problems in the matter of communications although both list English as their only language. "We have recordings in French and Spanish and will hold daily classes aboard."

Before his conversion Ronald was of the Hebrew faith and his wife a member of the Episcopalian Church. Now both are convinced that the "growing oneness of the world can only be achieved through the teachings of Bahaullah."

Ronald is an attorney with Los Angeles County. When he heard that the musician and composer, Russell Garcia, and his wife, Gina, were building a trimaran for a world-wide missionary trip (they're also of the same faith), he obtained a year's leave of absence so that he and his family could join them. Rounding out the crew will be Don Reed, who lives in Los Angeles.

Fittingly enough, the trimaran is called Dawn Breakers, the name given the first Baha'is who were martyred in Persia where the religion originated.

HURRICANE DAMAGE

Dawn Breakers was built at Tarpon Springs, Fla. The Schneiders had hoped to get in a little pre-cruise experience in her before now but she was damaged in the hurricane Alma, so delaying the rookies' working-up trials.

Ronald admits that his experience is limited to two or three afternoon trips in a friend's sloop while Lois confesses that the art of cooking in a ship's galley is still a mystery.

"But, I have been in a boat. The first two days I was terribly seasick but the third day I was fine."

Before they set sail in Dawn Breakers, Ronald and Lois Schneider intend to take the seamanship course which the American coastguard offers. Ronald teasingly suggests that, to get Lois in the right frame of mind for life afloat in cramped quarters, "I might lock her up in a closet for a while!"

Stephen's enthusiasm about the coming trip is almost as great as that of his parents . . . even if it's not motivated by the same religious fervor.

Like any young boy, the thought of not having to sit at a school desk for 12 months is not exactly the saddest prospect to the would-be mariner.

His school will be sending him weekly lessons which he'll return by mail. His English assignments should prove no problem.

"They told me that I'll have to write an account of what I do each day."

To date, the Schneiders have yet to get their first glimpse of the good ship Dawn Breakers.

"She'll be in Stockton, Calif., this fall and then we'll be able to start getting used to her."

The rest of Dawn Breakers' crew will carry on their missionary junket for another year after the Schneiders say good-bye to their "sea legs" and return to life ashore.

Their return to the prosaic will be softened with the anticipation of another trip to be made in 1968. This time the main "port of call" will be the Baha'i centre of Haifa in Israel. Mode of transportation, according to present plans, will be conventional.

Confident that their first sea voyage will be a successful one, Mr. and Mrs. Schneider and son, Stephen (at right), step out for a day's sight-seeing. They're accompanied by 14-year-old Richard West of San Pedro, Calif.

Robert Richter Weds Miss Susan Harvey

MINISTER'S SON TAKES BRIDE

One of this afternoon's prettiest weddings took place in St. Luke's Anglican Church when Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff heard vows exchanged between Susan Gail Harvey and Robert Gordon Richter, son of the province's minister of agriculture.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Harvey, 5230 Santa Clara Avenue. Hon. Frank X. Richter and Mrs. Richter live at 9775 West Saanich Road, Sidney.

Pink and white gladioli decorated the church when the bride entered on the arm of her father to the strains of Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

Her exquisite gown of peau de soie had a gently A-line skirt and a flowing train that extended from the back waistline. The bodice was of lace and styled with a scalloped sabrina neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The tiered veil of silk illusion net misted from a tiara of seed pearls and crystals. Pink roses and white feathered carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

Turquoise floor-length gowns, styled on empire lines and complemented with toning floral headpieces, were worn by the trio of attendants. Their cascade bouquets contained pink feathered carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Musgrave and bridesmaids were the Misses Anne Williams and Norene Bradshaw.

Frank Richter Jr. was best man for his brother and ushering guests were Daryl Plater and James Musgrave. H. Bergink was organist, playing "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The same floral decor as in the church was used to decorate the Carlton Club for the reception which followed. Alan Baylis proposed the toast to his niece's happiness.

Many out-of-town guests attended. They included Mr. and Mrs. F. Richter of Kamloops; Mrs. N. Gadberry and Miss N. Gadberry, both of Oroville, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Tweddle of Cawston; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Price with Ron, all of Vancouver; Mrs. K. Durnam, Mr. and Mrs. W. Durnam, all of Blaine, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. James Gilroy, Mrs. James Aitken, all of Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. F. Eden with John and Dorothy, all of Campbell River.

For her going-away outfit, the bride chose a dress and coat of pink wool, black accessories and white gardenias en corsage.

After a honeymoon in the Okanagan Valley, the newlyweds will make their home at 1220 Goldstream Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. King and their three sons, David, Brian and Michael, have returned to their home on Wenman Drive after a holiday at the Banff Springs Hotel and the Chateau Lake Louise. They're seen on the terrace of the Banff Springs Hotel with the 10,000-foot Cascade Mountain in the background. (Canadian Pacific photo.)

Archway of Swords Formed Today For Naval Officer and His Wife

A guard of honor, formed by the groom's fellow officers at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, made an archway of swords to greet Lieut. Marcus Livingstone Crofton, RCN, and Mrs. Crofton when they left St. Patrick's Church after their wedding this afternoon.

The bride, the former Elizabeth Jane Churchill, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Churchill, 1380 Rockland Avenue. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dermott Crofton, who were here from their home, "Winfrith" at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus." She wore an elegant princess-styled gown of lustrous silk, fashioned with a jewel neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves and a watteau train, held by two bridal roses. Tiny appliqued flowers starred the neckline, sleeves and front of the gown. The full-length veil of silk illusion misted from a dainty organdy flower headpiece. White roses and feathered carnations formed her shower bouquet.

WHITE FLOWERS

The church was decorated with white flowers for the service at which Fr. A. E. Leonard officiated. "Ave Maria" was sung during the signing of the register and the organist played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" on completion of the ceremony.

The senior attendants were gowned in turquoise blue peau de soie, their floor-length dresses being complemented with matching petalled pill box hats and shower bouquets of deep pink briar roses and feathered pink carnations. Mrs. Patrick McCarthy was matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Denny, bridesmatron, and Miss Clare Moss, bridesmaid.

The five-year-old niece of the groom, Virginia Crofton, made a charming flower girl in an empire-line gown and petalled bandeau of the same material as the senior attendants' gowns. Briar roses were in her miniature bouquet.

Lieut.-Cmdr. Patrick Crofton, RCN, was best man for his brother and ushering guests were the bride's twin brother, Jonathan Churchill; Lieut. Robert Scott, RCN, and Capt. Donald Harris.

The couple cut their wedding cake with the groom's sword at the reception which followed at Royal Roads. An all-white floral theme was used in the reception rooms.

J. W. Allan proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the interior of the province, the bride donned a wool suit of pale heather blue, teamed with black hat and accessories.

On return, the newlyweds will make their home on Wordsworth Avenue.

Auxiliary Serves Mammoth Breakfast

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Salt Spring Island Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion served 300 guests and raised $200 when it held an "all you can eat" breakfast at Ganges last Sunday morning. The affair was held in the Legion hall.

Convener Mrs. L. Loiselle was assisted by president Mrs. H. A. Emerslund and auxiliary members. Presiding in the kitchen were chefs John Sturdy, John Waterfall and Donald Fraser. They kept a steady stream of guests well supplied with ham and eggs, hotcakes and all the trimmings. Coffee was served by Girl Guides. Breakfast lasted from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Lace Appliques Add Accent to Bridal Gown

The wedding gown worn by Miss Jill Anne Smith today when she became the bride of William John Roberts was designed by the bride as a project in her final year of home economics at the University of British Columbia. The floor-length gown of peau de laine featured a bias cowl neckline and full-lengh belled sleeves. Back interest was a series of three curved bias tiers, the third one forming a semi-train. The dome-shaped headpiece held short tiers of silk illusion veil. Her cascade bouquet contained Johanna Hill roses, white stephanotis and leather leaf fern.

Coral-tone and pale pink gladioli, and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Patrick's Church for the ceremony when Fr. A. E. Leonard heard marriage vows between the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent W. Smith, 237 King George Terrace, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Roberts, New Denver, B.C. Dr. Smith gave his daughter in marriage.

FOUR ATTENDANTS

Sleeveless, A-line dresses with scooped necklines, worn by her four attendants, were designed and made by the bride in a French synthetic sheer print in late summer colors. Maid of honor, Miss Carol Smith, the bride's sister, wore the print over pink taffeta, and carried coral gladioli in her cascade bouquet. Bridesmaids, the Misses Jill Cameron, Elizabeth McIntyre and Barbara Smith, sister of the bride, wore the print over cream-peach taffeta, and carried cascade bouquets of cream-coral gladioli and leather leaf fern. Headpieces were dome-shaped caps similar to the bride's, in the dress fabric. Long white gloves and white shoes completed their ensembles.

Mr. Ted Roberts was best man for his brother and ushers were Mr. Mas Hoshino, Jun Takenaka and Mr. William Smith, the bride's brother.

The garden of the bride's parents' home on King George Terrace was the setting for the reception which followed the ceremony. Dr. A McGill proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For travelling on honeymoon to a surprise location, the new Mrs. Roberts changed into a suit of fine, green-and-navy lambswool tweed, which she had designed and made herself. The suit was complemented with a cowl-neck blouse of green silk shantung and matching hat. Her accessories were green purse, bone shoes and gloves. Completing her outfit was a cream-colored orchid corsage.

The couple will make their home in Vancouver.

FRUIT GROWER Louis Gobolos who proved that apples can be successfully grown commercially on Vancouver Island.

Central Saanich Farmer Promotes Apple Comeback

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An experienced fruit grower would like to see the Saanich Peninsula restored as a commercial apple growing centre—as it was more than 60 years ago.

Louis Gobolos, 1412 White, owner of the largest orchard in the capital region, said today apples can be grown here as successfully as in the Okanagan — the major fruit growing area in the province.

"There's no doubt about it," he said. "But the apples must be varieties suited to this climate."

He sees no reason why Saanich can not again become famous for its apples as it was at the turn of the century.

The 49-year-old orchardist who formerly operated a fruit farm in the Okanagan, has proved it can be done.

In the fall of 1959, he started to plant 3,000 trees on his 30-ace farm, situated in Central Saanich, a block north of Stelly's Cross Road.

MILLION APPLES

This year the trees are expected to yield between 5,000 and 6,000 boxes or nearly one million apples. There are about 150 apples to a box.

As the trees get older, production is expected to more than treble.

He hopes to get between 10 and 15 boxes per tree in a few years.

The varieties planted in his orchared are McIntosh, Spartan and Tydeman. His trees are semi-dwarfs.

In his opinion the Saanich McIntosh is superior to those grown in the Okanagan.

"It's flavor is better," he said. "I believe this is due to the climate. They don't like too warm a season."

RED TYDEMANS

The Tydeman is a comparatively new variety introduced from England and indications are it will become a favorite.

It's a bright red apple and is a good desert and good cooker.

Born in Saskatchewan, Mr. Globolis started fruit farming in the Okanagan as soon as he left school. He owned 35 acres and grew mixed fruits—apples, cherries, apricots.

He gave up his orchard and decided to start anew in Saanich with apples—after he had consulted both Dominion and Provincial horticulturists. They were all convinced the fruit could be successfully grown on a commercial scale on South Vancouver Island.

He recalled that before the turn of the century the Saanich Peninsula was the major apple-growing centre in the province. But it was gradually replaced by the Okanagan Valley.

'WE KNOW WHY'

"We now know why Saanich lost its hold as an apple growing district," he said. "The main reason is because the varieties on the whole were not quite suited to this climate.

"The trees became more susceptible to diseases," he explained. "Furthermore they grew larger and larger and it became uneconomical to pick them by hand."

"Today we know what varieties to grow and have the materials to control diseases, plus machines to reduce costs," he added.

Mr. Gobolos said operating his orchard is a full-time job.

"There's always something to do—spraying, pruning, harvesting, fertilizing," he said. "This spring I had 44 bee hives in the orchard to help polinization.'

SC Nomination Contest Certain

DUNCAN—The Social Credit nomination for the Cowichan-Malahat constituency will be contested Tuesday.

Patrick Rogers, circulation manager for the Victoria Press Ltd. in Duncan, will battle Cyril Craig for the Socred ticket at the nomination meeting.

Mr. Rogers will be nominated by Reeve Donald Morton, North Cowichan, who ran on the Socred ticket in 1963.

Mr. Rogers, like Mr. Craig, is switching allegiance from the Conservative party. Mr. Rogers lost the Tory nomination to Bus Matthews before the last federal election.

Asked about the switch, Mr. Rogers said: "It is a combined effort to give the riding a voice within the government."

Wreck Bay Problem Makes Strong Men Blubber

WRECK BAY—West-coast residents here have a whale of a problem and they can't come close to the solution.

A dead grey whale washed up on the sands south of Long Beach last week and its decomposing hulk is raising such a strong odor that it cannot be approached.

Several stalwart noses from Tofino got close enough to see a second sea mammal also decomposing on the same beach. It may be a sea lion.

The party retreated and they telephoned the Biological Station at Nanaimo which was expected to investigate.

DUNCAN—Lionel Dobson escaped with a cut over his right eye after flipping his car over on Maple Bay Road at about 1 a.m.

The accident happened near the entrance to Queen of Angles School when Dobson failed to round a bend.

About $1,000 damage was done to the car.

Lionel is the son of Mayor Jack Dobson of Duncan.

NORTH COWICHAN — An extremely light poll was indicated by the first hour's returns in the municipal by-election.

Between 8 and 9 a.m. only 15 people had registered their votes at the municipal hall in Duncan.

In the same period only four people voted at the Chemainus polling station and one at Maple Bay.

Four candidates are seeking to serve the remainder of the term of the late Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn.

They are Mrs. Mildred Turney, Mrs. Margaret Robertson, Stan Dyke and Gordon Lennox.

DUNCAN — Postmaster Robert Corney Friday announced changes in mail closings.

The changes are the result of the Monday introduction of mail carrier service.

The first mail from Monday to Saturday closes at 7:15 a.m. for upper Vancouver Island and mianland points.

The second mail closing during the same period will be 11:15 a.m. for points south of Duncan including Victoria, Vancouver and all mainland points.

Mr. Corney said there will be no change for the evening mail closing time which will remain at 8:30 or the Sunday time of 6:30.

MAPLE BAY — Mrs. Tom Hamilton, a Red Cross swimming instructress, said Friday all public beaches in North Cowichan should have a telephone and first aid kits.

Mrs. Hamilton's warning was prompted by an accident at Maple Bay.

Teen-ager Tom Reynolds slipped on a concrete block as he came out of the water, striking his head, but was not seriously injured. He was taken to hospital and released after treatment.

Mrs. Hamilton said professional help at the scene was delayed because someone had to run some distance to a telephone.

Experts are luckier than ordinary bridge players because they have the habit of playing their cards so as to give the best chance for success.

Opening lead—♥ K

It wouldn't be difficult at all for most bridge players to go down one at four spades. They would ruff the third heart and draw trumps. Then they would attack the clubs some way or other and would wind up losing two club tricks. Undoubtedly they would explain that they would have made the hand with a 3-3 club break but no one would be impressed.

An expert would give the hand considerable study and finally decide that the best line of play would be to draw most of the trumps but not all.

At trick four he would play his queen of spades. At trick five he would lead a low club and duck in dummy. A trump return would be most likely, whereupon our expert would win in his own hand, lead a club to dummy's king and another club back to his ace. West wouldn't follow but he would not be able to ruff in since the second trump lead would have pulled his last trump. Then South would trump his last club in dummy; come back to his own hand with the ace of diamonds; draw the last trump and claim his contract.

This line of play was not sure to succeed. It would fail if West held the long trump but in that case he would be down the same one trick he would have been down on the first line of play. He would lose his ace of clubs but be able to ruff his last club in dummy.

Suppose clubs broke 3-3? Both plays would succeed. All the expert line did was to give declarer the extra chance.

RECIPE FOR CHARM!!! TAKE 1 55-YEAR-OLD HOME ADD 1 ARCHITECT AND 1 TASTEFUL WIFE STIR CREATIVELY FOR 2½ YEARS WHAT HAVE YOU GOT?

Not as quickly as "BIBITY BOBBITY BOO" but much more magically this delightful character home metamorphosed to the charming piece of chraftsmanship it is today. The exterior is tudor, tall and stately with two granite pillars saluting the broad front staircase and granite-faced porch. The heavy door groans on its hinge to reveal a luxurious red carpeted foyer with broad white and gold staircase ascending to the bedroom area and window seat with specially made cushion and Austrian drapes. Den is showplace of home with red carpet again and wrought iron and leather furniture with matching bar backed by polished mirror wall set between lustred oak panels. Living room carpeted in white wall-to-wall is roughly 18'x21' and again has Champagne Austrian drapes and a copper dish fireplace under a broad white mantel. Chandeliered dining room is 19'x13', large enough for all your welcome guests and is only a step through the 6x10 breakfast room from the ultra modern cabinet kitchen overlooking the green, oaked rear yard. The service stairway to the second floor is ideal for kiddy traffic and opens on a broad hallway adjacent to the colonial bathroom. The master bedroom is delicious and includes a super king-sized canopied bed, built-in vanity, curtains again, and mauve wall to wall cotton Broadloom. The large closets grace this bright room and a functional fireplace that you and the kiddies can crowd on windy nights over a bedtime story. Three more good-size bedrooms and an office with plate window overlooking oak-shaded street, complete the second floor. The basement is functional in its cellar-type TV room, bunkhouse, 2-piece bathroom, and utility area. Hot water heating is carefree and efficient and domestic hot water tank is 50 gallon, glass lined, and new. The home is unmatched in every sense of the word at a full price of $39,000.00. CANADA TOUR

Officialdom Stalls Indira

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Red tape has delayed the departure to Canada of a 22-month-old female elephant, Indira, which the Mysore state government is giving to the Ontario Zoological Society.

Indira, weighing 882 pounds, arrived here after a 600-mile trip in the back of a truck from Mysore, but could not be flown out that night.

Dr. C. V. Raghavendra Rao, an elephant specialist with the Mysore forest department, was informed by customs officials that Indira could not leave India without approval from the federal finance ministry.

The frisky animal now is likely to fly Aug. 26.

Indira will tour Canada and make television appearances before settling down in Ontario.

Proceeds from her TV appearances will be donated to the Mysore government for a scholarship at the International Food Research and Technological Institute there.

Top Army Tactician Hit by China Purge

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — A list of China's leaders published Friday suggests the purge may have hit two more members of the ruling politburo, including Liu Po-cheng, possibly the Communist-ruled country's best military tactician. His name was omitted, along with those of five cabinet members.

Peng Chen, mayor of Peking, was the first politburo member to be caught up in the purge. Now it may be the turn of Liu, a member of the politburo since 1956, and Li Ching-chuan, one of the lesser-known leaders, a member since 1958.

Also missing from the list were two deputy chairmen of the national defence council, one a deputy premier, and more than 100 regular or alternate members of the central committee. Liu also was a deputy chairman of the defence council.

The list broadcast by Radio Peking was of 201 top members of the Communist party and government who shared the platform with party chairman Mao Tse-tung at a big rally and parade Thursday. Peking gave no explanation for the names left off the list.

The broadcast seemed to make plain that Defence Minister Lin Piao, Mao's "close comrade," sits at the party chairman's right hand and probably will be his successor. Lin appears to be directing the purge.

LIU SHAO-CHI
. . . bypassed

The report also indicated that Premier Chou En-lai has moved up the ladder past President Liu Shao-chi. Chou's name was No. 3, the president's No. 7. Liu Shao-chi once was considered Mao's likely successor. Lin is reported to dislike Liu Shao-chi and appears to have succeeded in putting the president on the skids.

The downfall of Liu Po-cheng, if true, could be due to his former Soviet ties and his possible opposition to putting the army into construction, farming and industry, the latest idea in China.

Liu Po-cheng got his military education in the Soviet Union and was long active in the Chinese-Soviet Friendship Association. It may have pained him to see the army losing its professional nature, for he was a military man first of all.

BOY HURLED TO DEATH IN FREAK ACCIDENT

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A two-year-old Idaho boy was killed Friday near Red Rock, 13 miles south of Prince George on the Cariboo Highway.

The boy, whose name is being withheld, was crushed beneath his parents' car in a freak accident involving three U.S. vehicles.

The accident occurred when a Utah car developed accelerator trouble and slowed down. An Idaho car immediately behind it pulled out to pass and a second Idaho car also pulled out. The second Idaho car struck the first one and overturned into a ditch.

The boy was thrown from the car and crushed.

CONTROVERSIAL ARTS CENTRE

$36 Million Price Tag Facing Federal Gov't

By BRENDA LARGE

LaMARSH
. . . must be subsidized

OTTAWA (CP)—There's no business like show business, as the song goes, and the federal government is humming along to the tune of $36,000,000.

That is the cost of the country's most controversial culture palace, the National Arts Centre, now slowly rising from a deep excavation in downtown Ottawa.

When the first curtain goes up in the 2,300-seat opera house, in 1969, it will be Canada's newest and biggest national showplace. There will be a smaller, 900-seat drama theatre, with French and English repertory companies and a studio theatre seating 300 for avant-garde productions.

At present there's just a 196,000-square-foot site which looks like a bombed-out area, ringing all day with drills, hammers and bellowed instructions.

Like most massive buildings, the Arts Centre has already split planners and park-lovers. Its site on Confederation Square used to be occupied by a small park alongside the Rideau Canal.

COSTS DOUBLED

Eyebrows were raised when a fantastic misjudgment about its cost was revealed and the estimate doubled to $36,000,000 from $18,000,000 in one jump. The final tab may run over $40,000,000.

On the other hand, the centre's direct competitors think the biggest auditorium isn't even big enough to pay its way. They are Harvey Glatt and Earl Crowe, who import most of Ottawa's commercial theatre attractions.

But Hamilton Southam, the man responsible for most of the planning, says it is artistic rather than commercial success which guides the project.

"The government isn't going to build a 3,000-seat hall so we can bring Hello Dolly here for one night. Why should the Canadian taxpayer help bail out the Broadway producers?"

Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh, federal minister responsible for the centre, backed up Mr. Southam when she told the Commons in June the government expects to have to subsidize it in the same way as it supports the National Gallery: "Exactly the same considerations should apply."

DROP CENTENNIAL PLAN

The National Arts Centre was first planned as a centennial project but has been delayed because it was discovered it would cost an extra $20,000,000 to finish by 1967.

Once it is all completed, the centre is expected to be a lively hub of all kinds of entertainment, with "facilities hitherto undreamed of," says D. F. Lebensold of Montreal, chief architect.

Besides the three auditoriums, there will be a cafe and restaurant overlooking the canal, boutique shops, meeting-rooms and offices. Outside there will be landscaped terraces suitable for open-air concerts.

There will be winter skating on the canal and yachts will be able to moor at the stage door during summer. For prosaic travellers, there is a 900-car underground parking lot.

The centre will be run by a board of directors, independent of the government by act of Parliament, although some politicians are already saying they can't believe there will be no comment, at least, from the House of Commons.

During debate on the bill founding the centre's Crown corporation, Miss LaMarsh predicted some of the play productions would be sure to create controversy, to which Conservative front-bencher Gordon Churchill retorted that he hoped they would do no such thing.

The directors should "not attempt to stir up public interest by putting on performances in the Arts Centre that are a little out of the ordinary or are calculated to make people think," he said.

"Plays carry ideas," objected the secretary of state.

U.S. DEFENCE CHIEF SCALES MOUNT RAINIER

Jet Fighters Controversy Flares Again

ESSEN (Reuters)—West Germany's air force chief today accused the Bonn defence ministry of delaying the issue of vital survival equipment for its fleet of jet Starfighters, 61 of which have crashed since 1961.

Lt.-Gen. Werner Panitzki called for a reorganization of the ministry under Defence Minister Kau-Uwe von Hassel in an interview published in Essen's newspaper Neue Ruhrzeitung.

A major political controversy has erupted in Bonn over the needle-nosed starfighters which have claimed the lives of 36 pilots.

Politicians have demanded von Hassel's resignation and the father of one pilot killed in a crash last month has filed a charge of negligent killing against the minister.

Agreement On NATO Question

BONN (AP)—Defence Minister Kai Uwe von Hassel of West Germany returned home from a five-day visit to Canada today and told reporters he and his Canadian colleague, Paul Hellyer, had reached agreement on all points concerning the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Von Hassel said they specifically agreed that NATO's defence readiness must be maintained fully despite France's withdrawal from the alliance's military setup.

He said this was the reason for his offer to Canada to move RCAF units now in France to West Germany.

The question now to be tackled was where and how to accommodate these units in the Bonn Republic.

Killed Man by Fire, Gets Life in Prison

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) A mother of nine children who told police she poured methylated spirits over a sleeping 70-year-old man and set him on fire has been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Hazel Dulcie Bodsworth, 52, was sentenced Friday for murdering retired jockey Thomas Tregenza in a Wilcannia, New South Wales, hotel where she worked as a cook eight years ago.

The prosecution said she benefited under his will.

In March this year, Mrs. Bodsworth and her second husband Henry were both imprisoned for five years after admitting the manslaughter of her first husband, Edward Baron, in 1950 so they could get married. Baron was drowned in the Murray River.

WHY ARE CARPENTERS NOT WORKING in many parts of the Province ?

Why are hundreds of carpenters not on the job throughout B.C.?

Why are they denied the opportunity to participate in B.C.'s current construction boom when their services are in such great demand?

Five locals of the Carpenters' Union in the Kamloops-Okanagan area have reached a mutually satisfactory settlement with their contractors.

This is a two-year agreement calling for 51 cents per hour increase in wages, a sensible 40-hour work week, and freedom from the restrictive union hiring hall method of job placement.

At the moment these journeymen carpenters are being paid $3.70 an hour; this will increase to $4.00 an hour next April 1.

Why can't other carpenters, now out of work because of the dispute, benefit from the contractors' generous terms?

The Construction Industry Joint Negotiating Committee, representing some 322 contractors, has offered to settle province-wide on terms similar to those reached with the five locals in the Interior.

This offer has been made formally to the B.C. Provincial Council of Carpenters, but the officers of the Provincial Council remain adamant in their demand for a 37½-hour work week.

Meanwhile, many vital construction jobs are at a standstill and urgently needed tradesmen are without employment.

The shorter work week is simply an additional, inflationary demand which is neither reasonable nor timely in view of the shortage of carpenters and the great amount of overtime work at double pay now available to them.

Much of the construction activity is in relatively remote parts of the province where contractors find carpenters unwilling to take a job unless they are guaranteed overtime; they expect 56 or even 60 hours of work a week in many cases.

Why this work stoppage?

Because the officers of the Provincial Council of Carpenters are pressing demands beyond a point the contractors are able to go in serving the public interest.

There is now no logical reason for the work stoppage to continue.

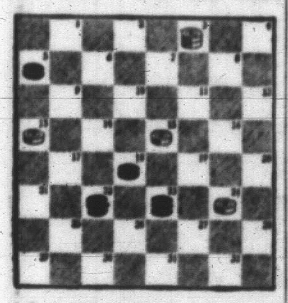
See if you can arrange the first five digits, that is, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, so that when you have positioned them correctly the first two digits multiplied by the middle digit beget the last two digits.

Answer: One three times four equals five two.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Smashing! That's the word for White's strategy in winding up the checker game at right. It's White's turn, moving up the board. Black is vanquished after five turns.

How is it done? We'll let you decide.

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper provides his solution below, if you fail.

No fair peeking below.

Solution: White 24-19, Black 23-16, White 12-8, Black 3-14, White 15-11, Black 18-2, White 3-10-17-26.

JOIN THE CHAIN, GANG

Picture this in your mind's eye: We have six pieces of chain containing five links each. We want to join the pieces to form a circle. We want to do it in the shortest time with the least work.

If it takes one minute to open a link; and one minute to close a link, in how few minutes is it possible to complete the circle?

Solution: It is possible to complete the circle in just ten minutes. That's right, ten minutes — by opening all five links of one segment of chain and using each link to connect ends of the other five segments.

FOUND MONEY A LOST CAUSE?

This old stickler is always thought-provoking. It seems Jones, a storekeeper, found a $5 bill on his way home. It happened that his wife asked him for money, and he gave her the $5. She used it to pay a tailor. The tailor give it with rent money to his landlord. The landlord paid it out in salary to his bookkeeper. The latter brought it to Jones in part settlement of an account.

The storekeeper recognized it as the bill he had found. Up to this time it had settled $20 in debts. When Jones took it to his bank to deposit it, he discovered it was counterfeit.

Has any money been lost in these transactions, and if so, who lost it?

Solution: No one loses. Had the $5 bill been good, Jones would have been a gainer.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The old country has recently issued four multi-colored stamps, each featuring a well known British bird. They are all 4d values, and are so arranged on the sheet that blocks of four show one each of the different species.

Birds illustrated are the Blue Tit, Blackheaded Gull, Blackbird, and Robin.

The stamps are double size, were designed by J. Norris Wood, and printed by Harrison and Sons. Both names appear rather prominently under the designs.

●

In last week's column the guess was made that the main usage for the new £2 Malawi stamp would be for fiscal purposes.

It turns out that this surmise was not far off the mark, for the Crown Agents have advised that the high value will be commonly used for prepaying cablegrams.

In many British Commonwealth countries the posts and telegraphs are both government monopolies, and stamps can be used either for postage, telegraph charges, or documentary fees.

The chief postal use for the £2 will probably be for sending our samples of tea by air-mail.

Cartographers must have a difficult time these days trying to keep up to date with their maps. Just the other day Bechuanaland altered its name to Botswana; and now another African colony has decided that it is time for a change, for it will henceforward be known as Lesotho.

Two sets bearing the new name may be expected in a month or two, each comprising the values 2½, 5, 12½ and 25c.

The first will be, of course, an Independence commemorative, while the other will mark the UNESCO 20th anniversary.

Thos. De La Rue and Sons have developed a notable improvement in the photogravure process, particularly as applied to stamp production.

Previously, stamps produced by photogravure, when examined by a magnifier, show rather fuzzy edges to the design, somewhat in the nature of half-tone cuts in a newspaper. Also, colors show a diluted effect owing to the coarseness of the screen.

The new process, which they have named Delacryl, uses such an exceedingly fine screen that definition is still quite sharp even under the microscope; and brilliant solid color can be produced when necessary.

U.K. Diggers Solve 1,300-Year Riddle?

SUIT claiming $83 million has been filed against Curtis Publishing Co., by Candace Mossler, blonde grandmother found innocent in the bludgeon death of her millionaire husband, Jacques. The suit alleges the current issue of Saturday Evening Post calls Mrs. Mossler a liar.

By LYNN EDMUNDS

CADBURY, England (Reuters)—The 1,300-year-old riddle of who King Arthur really was seems closer to solution after recent finds by a team of British archeologists on the site of an ancient castle here.

Relics unearthed in the ruins of Cadbury Castle, 10 miles from Arthur's reputed burial place at Glastonbury Abbey, in Somerset, give strong support to the widely-held theory that Arthur was a 6th century Roman-British general killed in a last-ditch stand against Saxon invaders.

Now the Camelot research committee, headed by the well-known archeologist, Sir Mortimer Wheeler, has announced plans for a five-year excavation on the castle site where 40 volunteers this summer found a 5th century bronze cloak, pottery, and metalwork.

Their finds point to Cadbury Castle as one of the strongholds defended by Arthur and his band of cavalrymen in 12 successful battles before their defeat by the invaders.

SEEK CAMELOT

Aftr decades of searching and supposition, archeologists are confident that they are near to establishing the geographical site of the legendary Camelot, ruled by Arthur and his knights, whose exploits fired the imagination of both medieval and modern writers.

"This is more likely to be Camelot than any other site that has been advanced," said Leslie Alcock, senior archeologist at the University of Wales. He supervised this summer's successful dig.

The proposed excavations, costing an estimated £30,000 ($90,000), may confirm a widely-held view that a daring general who taught his soldiers an advanced art of warfare and marshalled them into small cavalry squadrons was the factual basis of the Arthurian legend.

This courageous fighter, described by the 8th century historian Nenning, was killed in battle about 537 AD after 12 successive victories against the Saxons.

Glastonbury Abbey is regarded as his burial place following the discovery of two stone crosses there dating from that period and which tally with accounts in the abbey's ancient records.

BECAME A LEGEND

The romantic tales of gallant knights, cultured women, treasure-laden palaces and chivalrous jousting have been woven round the deeds of Arthur the warrior until he has become a legendary figure.

The life of Arthur's court with its formal code of honor reflects the chivalrous ideal of the 12th century. A historian of that time placed Arthur the warrior as second in command to a Roman general named Ambrosius.

The earliest story of the warrior as founder of the knightly court, friend of the magician Merlin and husband of the faithless Queen Guinevere, is part of a romantic history of Britain written by Geoffrey of Monmouth in 1147.

He helped to spread abroad a legend previously passed down from father to son, gathering embellishments on the way. It became firmly established in English literature when Sir Thomas Malory published his Morte d'Arthur in the 15th century, and Tennyson returned to it in his Idylls of the King.

'Integrating, Not Unifying' Service Trades

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—An integrated trade structure for the three armed services is essential even if unification is never completed, a spokesman for Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Friday.

William Lee, special assistant to Hellyer, was commenting on statements by former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness that action to "unify" the trade structure was a major step towards full unification of the services.

Harkness made a personal appeal to Prime Minister Pearson in a letter Aug. 11 to stop this step which he said would become effective when the cyclical pay raise for the armed forces is introduced Oct. 1.

WAITED 8 DAYS

He made his letter public Friday, after waiting eight days for a reply from Pearson.

The step toward a "unified trade structure" was in contempt of Parliament, said Harkness, because unification had not been fully dealt with by the House and the defence committee.

The prime minister's office said a reply would be sent to Harkness within a day or two, but would not be made public.

In an interview Lee said the question was one of "integrating" and not "unifying" the trade structure.

The defence department had planned for some time to have an integrated trade structure which had become necessary since the integration of commands in the services, said Lee.

332 TRADES

At the moment there is a total of 332 separate trades listed for all three services, he said, but in fact only 109 of them are actually different.

In the past, two or more of the services have often given different names to the same trade and different groupings to the men who work at them, Lee said.

"As a result people in one service would have received different salaries than those in another," he said.

Rail Staff Learning To Speak

LONDON (AP) — The British railways have hired a former radio announcer to teach their staff how to enunciate station names so that passengers will have some idea where they are going.

Station announcers in the southern region may speak with a Cockney twang, a lazy drawl from the West Indies, in the sing-song sentences of the Welsh, or mix in a bit of Scottish burr with the ultra refined tones of London's suburbs.

"Denex traitor gidyap ark wilrivat platform four," was a typical bit of information gleaned by a London Times reporter from announcements at London's Liverpool station.

A passenger who claimed to have learned the code said his guess was that the train for Gidea Park was coming in.

To attempt to break the communications barrier, officials of the state-run railway system hired Philip Slessor, former announcer for the BBC, recognized as the fount of knowledge of how English should be spoken.

GHANIAN PROBLEM

Corruption Big Enemy

ACCRA (Reuters)—Ghanaian army and police chiefs who helped to overthrow former president Kwame Nkrumah are losing no opportunity of emphasizing that their big enemy in the fight to rehabilitate Ghana is corruption.

They have asked the civil servants in the ministries for which they now are responsible to do their utmost to stamp out this evil, and other evils too.

Tough, sparsely—built Maj.-Gen. E. K. Kotoka, who played a leading part in Ghana's February coup while Nkrumah was in Peking, has told defence, health and other officials now under his control that the government administration has drifted into "immeasurable inefficiency" with its attendant evils of bribery and corruption.

He said that he will pay surprise visits and will not sit idly by if he sees lack of discipline.

"If it comes to a crisis, I would not hesitate to put offenders in the guardroom," he said.

The deputy commissioner of police, B. A. Yakubu, a big friendly officer, has told senior staff at the ministries of industries, lands, and mineral resources that instances of "sickening dishonesty" are prevalent.

"There has been much talk of bribery and corruption in the government and any evidence of this will be thoroughly investigated," he said.

Beatles Draw 19,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Beatles came to the U.S. Bible belt Friday and gave two performances that were tolerated by the city fathers, criticized by the Ku Klux Klan and rivalled by a Christian youth rally. Shrieking crowds, mostly teenagers, and a majority of them girls, jammed the mid-south coliseum in record numbers—and estimated total of 19,000.

More Join Wildcat Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the CNR said Friday night the effects of a wildcat strike by non-operating employees of the railway should "fizzle out," at least for the weekend.

Many of the estimated 3,700 men who were on strike Friday against both the CNR and the CPR would have been off the job anyway during the weekend, the CNR spokesman said.

Train services were reported continuing as usual along CNR and CPR routes.

In Montreal, Friday saw 2,400 men out at the CNR yard in Pointe St. Charles, while some truckers were persuaded not to cross picket lines at the Bonaventure express freight depot.

There were 115 electricians out at the CPR's Angus yard at Montreal and 273 repairmen and carmen off the job at the company's St. Luc diesel yard.

DRIVERS WALK OFF

In Toronto, 300 CNR express drivers were off their jobs, 50 office workers were out at the Concord freight yard and 165 in other yards.

A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said Friday night about 300 clerical workers in Toronto have voted to join the express drivers. No date was set.

A group of 30 drivers and warehousemen were off their railway jobs at London Friday and another 120 non-ops were out in Windsor.

A second strike erupted in Windsor as 100 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen went out at 12:01 a.m. today.

The BRT membership, yard crews and their foremen denied their walkout was in sympathy with that of the non ops.

Allen Lemon, chairman of the BRT's Windsor lodge, said there were no plans to try to stop trains or prevent passengers boarding them.

Sydney, N.S., reported 138 CNR men out with 90 more expected to strike today.

STRIKE NOT OFFICIAL

In Ottawa, a special eight-member cabinet committee set up Thursday to study the strike broke up for the weekend. Prime Minister Pearson has said it would not be proper for the cabinet to intervene in the walkout until all pre-strike procedures have been exhausted and an official strike date set.

The workers involved in the unofficial strikes up to Friday were a handful of the 98,000 non-operative rail workers belonging to 18 unions who have been disappointed in their bid for wage increases ranging from 55 cents to more than $1 an hour. Their present average wage is $2.22 an hour.

Bodies, Red Weapons Litter Viet Plantation

SAIGON (Reuters) Australian—forces piled on the pressure against the Viet Cong today after killing 214 Communist troops Friday in a bloody-four-hour—their fiercest on the Viet Nam war.

About 150 Australians, outnumbered eight to one, were down to their last rounds of ammunition when reinforcements reached the battle area—a rain-soaked rubber plantation 42 miles southeast of Saigon.

The operation continued today as a full-scale drive against the Viet Cong, a military spokesman said here.

(Australian headquarters in Canberra said 17 Australians were killed and 26 wounded in the engagement in Ba Ria in Phuoc Tuy province—easily the country's biggest loss in a single day in Viet Nam.)

Crumpled bodies and piles of Chinese and Russian - made weapons littered the rubber plantation today where the Australians repelled an onslaught from an estimated 900 enemy troops.

Dawn after the battle showed the extent of the carnage. Bodies — some appeared to be youths of about 17—lay everywhere, even inside the Australian lines.

Australian troops found the latest Chinese automatic rifles in perfect condition and packs made in North Viet Nam or China which were nearly new.

Many of the Viet Cong appeared to have died under shell fire. The surviving guerrillas withdrew after Australian and New Zealand artillery units moved in under cover of a tropical storm and U.S. jets dropped 35 tons of explosives and napalm firebombs.

TERRORISTS TOSS GRENADES INTO CLUB

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two Viet Cong terrorists exploded three hand grenades at the entrance of an American non-commissioned officers' club here tonight and a spokesman said 12 persons were wounded, one seriously.

The spokesman said six of the wounded were known to be U.S. servicemen. Some Vietnamese women were among a crowd within the Take Ten Club, operated by the U.S. Army for non-commissioned officers of all the services, when the explosion went off.

Earthquake Toll Could Top 3,000

THREATS AGAINST BENNETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett's scheduled appearance in today's Pacific National Exhibition parade in downtown Vancouver was cancelled at the last minute.

No official reason was given, but there were a number of anonymous telephone calls earlier to police and news media threatening Mr. Bennett's life.

The caller said an attempt would be made to kill the premier as the parade moved along Hastings Street.

The parade went ahead without Mr. Bennett.

Turkish Area Rocked Again

ANKARA (AP)—Destructive new earth tremors hit devastated eastern Turkey today, toppling 50 buildings in Erzurum City and adding to a killer earthquake's death toll reaching into the thousands.

Just before the new tremors hit, rescue workers reported counting nearly 1,000 bodies from the first earthquake and officials expressed fear the toll probably will pass 3,000.

At least two persons were reported killed in the new shock at Erzurum.

The catastrophic earthquake struck Friday. It wiped out entire villages in four provinces of Anatolia. More than 100 tremors rolled in its wake.

Rescuers Struggle In Rugged Country

The number of known and estimated dead rose by the hour as army and civilian rescue teams fought through the rugged, mountainous back country of the quake-stunned area to reach destroyed villages and towns.

Officials reported many thousands were injured.

The full fury of the quake Friday afternoon hit the town of Varto, a community of 3,000 inhabitants. "It can be said that nothing remained of Varto," a Turkish army officer reported from the scene.

The Turkish interior ministry earlier had expressed belief the quake, which levelled dozens of other villages, might have taken 1,500 lives.

Civilian officials at Varto said 816 bodies had been recovered in that area alone and they estimated that at least 3,000 persons had died in the surrounding desert of rubble left by the killer quake.

They said scores of villages around Varto had been wiped out.

A Turkish radio report said many inhabitants were buried under the wreckage, including some pupils at the Varto school, who could be fainty heard crying for help.

24 Villages Levelled to Ground

The quake struck mountain villages in four provinces near the Iranian frontier, about 650 miles east of Istanbul.

The governor of Erzuram province reported in a radio broadcast that all dwellings were levelled in 24 villages in the province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 55,000, were destroyed, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces—Erzuram, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis—rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force mounted a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzuram, largest urban centre in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks out into the surrounding mountainous country side to reach residents of ruined villages.

The quakes began at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) Friday. The newspaper Milliyet reported the tremors were "very strong" for 20 seconds and were felt in Armenia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Erzuram weather bureau said the tremors lasted five minutes.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale.

Government and army authorities in the afflicted areas said it might take weeks to get a compete picture of the death and destruction.

Communications were practically nonextistent and reports filtering in from the hundreds of villages and small communities in the predominantly agricultural region were fragmentary and conflicting.

But the quake already appeared one of the worst in recent years. The last major quake in Europe practically razed the Yugoslav city of Skopje July 26, 1963, with a final death toll of 1,100.

Officials said there was no way to tell how many residents had fled into the open countryside.

Turkish Premier Suleiman Demirel cancelled his appointments today to make an inspection flight over the stricken area. Music was banned from the Turkish radio and newspapers appeared with black borders.

There were no reports of foreign casualties. The remote area is not popular with tourists.

It was Turkey's worst earthquake since 1943 when 4,016 persons died. The biggest in 1939 killed 32,372 persons.

Gov. Mustafa Urgur Taled of Mus province said more than 2,000,000 people in the earthquake area slept outdoors on the ground Friday night.

Turkish Army units hastily put up five field hospitals and rescue teams brought in 10,000 tents.

American C-118 cargo planes flew three field hospitals, doctors, nurses and medicine to the area.

U.S. Airlines Get Planes Back in Skies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five major airlines, shut down for 43 days by a machinists union strike, smoothly resumed air service today with the walkout at an end.

There was little crowding at airports across the United States as Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United began booking passengers and sending their planes skyward.

The biggest airline strike in history ended Friday when members of the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, voted 17,727 to 8,235 to accept a three-year contract union leaders had negotiated with the airlines Monday. An earlier settlement proposal had been rejected July 31.

"The strike is now over," said union president P. L. (Roy) Siemiller as he announced the ratification vote.

The contract approval sending 35,400 strikers back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had lined up solidly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House guidelines designed to limit wage increases to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paycheques.

The airlines settlement is estimated to average slightly more than six per cent annually.

Japan Town Hit Again

TOKYO (AP) — Two fairly strong earthquakes shook the quake-ridden town of Matsushiro in central Japan tonight but no casualties were reported.

At least seven houses were damaged, railway traffic was halted and about 6,000 homes were left without electricity because of damage to power lines.

Matsushiro has been hit by quakes daily since the summer of 1965.

Bomb Explodes In Vienna

VIENNA (Reuters)—A bomb exploded in the centre of Vienna early today, but first reports said there were no casualties.

The explosion, which shattered hundreds of windows, occurred in front of the Alitalia Airline office opposite the state opera building.

The bomb was linked with the revival of terrorism in South Tyrol, but it was the first such attack in the Austrian capital.

South Tyrol, called Alto Adige by the Italians, was formerly part of the Austro-Hungarian empire but was ceded to Italy after the First World War. The bulk of its population speaks German.

Demands by German-speaking extremists for autonomy for Alto Adige or incorporation into Austria have been accompanied by frequent bomb explosions and outbreaks of violence.

Tory Leader Taken Sick

VANCOUVER (CP)—Illness of Stuart A. Fleming, 46, president of the British Columbia Progressive Conservatives, forced cancellation of a press conference scheduled for today.

The nature of Mr. Fleming's illness was not disclosed. A party spokesman said he is under a doctor's supervision.

NUDE PUSSYCAT on display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto is held by owner Mrs. Yarila Bawa who claims his baldness is a hereditary factor. Cat's ancestry is uncertain, however, although it is believed his mother was "pure" alley. Mrs. Bawa says she would like him to meet friends of his own type with a view to extending the line. FOUR OTHER MAJOR INVESTIGATIONS LAUNCHED IN BRITAIN

'God's Sake, Help!' Pleads Suspect

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP) — While hundreds of armed policemen renewed a massive manhunt around London for scar-faced Harry Roberts—wanted in the killing of three Scotland Yard policemen—four other big investigations were under way in widely separated areas of Britain.

- A headless body was found hidden on a rocky hill in Sussex. Police said: "It's murder."
- Two young girls, aged 10 and 7, were missing in suspicious circumstances from their homes in Yorkshire and Cheshire.
- A man was charged with two sensational murders in the northern town of Stockport.
- In addition, police combed wild moorland for two convicts who escaped Wednesday from a working party outside Dartmoor Jail.

The search for 30 - year - old Roberts, described by Scotland Yard as a "vicious" character who may be carrying three guns, went into its second week with police convinced he is holed up in the capital.

SOUGHT HELP

A woman friend told Scotland Yard Roberts telephoned her Friday night saying: "For God's sake, help."

Police put an armed guard at the woman's flat. "I'm sure the call came from the London area," she was quoted as saying. "Harry sounded desperate. He wanted money and food."

Friday night police ended a two-day search of Epping Forest, where Roberts had been reported hiding out, and concentrated on his old London haunts.

Roberts' estranged wife Margaret, a professional stripper who lives in the north of England, appealed to him to surrender in a published statement.

Two other men already have been charged with killing the three policemen.

The headless body was found near the Sussex town of Uckfield late Friday night after two boy scouts had reported finding a human skull in a rocky crevice nearby.

"Scotland Yard has been called in to direct the murder inquiry," said a local police spokesman.

A big search by detectives for 10-year-old Jane Taylor, missing from her Cheshire home since last Sunday, took a sinister turn with the discovery of a note pinned on some barbed wire.

It said: "To the police. Walk 50 yards north of this tree and dig. You will find something very interesting about four feet under."

Police said they found nothing at the spot indicated, but the search was intensified.

In the Yorkshire town of Darlington, house-by-house inquiries were being made in efforts to trace seven - year - old Linda Faulkes, who vanished from a wood near her home Thursday.

In Stockport, a crowd of 300 screaming women tried to attack Robert Leonard Whalley, 24, as police brought him into

Pick Shady Spot for Sunday

Pick a shady spot. Pour a tall, cold drink. Relax.

It's going to be hot, hot all over Vancouver Island this weekend.

Sunday, like today and Friday, will be the hottest this year. It was 80 on Friday in Victoria.

Residents of central Vancouver Island will have temperatures closer to 90.

A light ocean breeze off the Georgia Strait may cool a few fevered brows but generally winds will not be significant.

Late Sunday afternoon Mother Nature will add a touch of color to the clear blue sky with an occasional puffy cloud.

The same weak weather disturbance may result in a few more clouds over northern Vancouver Island.

The previous record hot day here this year was on June 15 when the red line on the thermometers climbed to 77 degrees. Before that it was on May 5 when it was 76 degrees.

Despite the hot days, the overnight temperatures away from the water will fall below 50 degrees.

The forest industry is probably the least happy.

Although no forest closures have been ordered in the Cowichan area, the Crown Zellerbach operation at Nitinat only worked a half an early shift Friday and the men have been put on a standby regarding resumption of logging Monday.

Jack Mumm of Duncan Local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America said because of the fire hazards the whole area is borderline, but Nitinat was the only operation which up to Friday had not continued working normally.

The situation was much worse in the Comox Valley area in central Vancouver Island where all logging operations have shut down.

The Comox Logging Division of Crown Zellerback Ltd. pulled its logging crews from the woods Friday in the first closure of the year. A company official said the move was voluntary.

'SHOW ME THE WAY TO GO HOME'

A man who told police he was headed home but was going in the wrong direction was fined $300 in court today for impaired driving.

John Arrowsmith, 115 Ganges Cresc., was also barred from driving anywhere in Canada for a year.

His car was stopped by a Colwood RCMP officer early today after it was seen to weave over the highway centre line on nine occasions.

Strike-Lockout To Close Down More Big Jobs

Picketing Step-Up Coming Next Week

By ROGER STONEBANK
Labor Reporter

Major construction jobs in B.C. will be hit by an expanding strike-lockout situation next week.

Arnold Smith, president of the Provincial Council of Carpenters, said today there will be a step-up in picketing at commercial and industrial sites.

"There are going to be a lot of large industrial jobs that will be affected," he said.

"But we don't want to publicize them beforehand."

Although 208 major contractors have declared a lockout against carpenters and the union has struck some jobs, only a nominal number of pickets have appeared.

This has allowed other tradesmen, who would not cross picket lines, to carry on their work.

At the same time, Mr. Smith called "utterly ridiculous" suggestions that contractors will try and have the "Okanagan Agreement" put to a government-supervised ballot among carpenters.

NO DECISION

Victoria contractor George Wheaton said no decision has been made but this move is being considered. A section of the Labour Relations Act allows either side to approach the labor minister who may direct that the offer be submitted to a vote among employers or employees affected.

Mr. Smith said "we are certainly not going to approve of it."

Carptenters at union meetings around the porvince have unanimously rejected the Okanagan Agreement.

In addition, he said, the government-supervised strike vote in June requested by the employers still hasn't been completed because some contractors haven't sent in payroll lists so mailed ballots can go out.

Council secretary Art Leam said there are 30 companies which haven't sent in payroll lists and there is nothing in the Labour Relations Act to make the companies do so.

WASTE OF TIME

Mr. Smith said a government-supervised vot on the Okanagan Settlement would meet the same rejection it did at union meetings this week and will only be a waste of time.

The 322-member Construction Industry Joint Negotiating Committee offered to settle on the basis of the Okanagan Agreement, where four rebel locals agreed to new terms called "a sellout" by Mr. Smith.

A fifth local, Grand Forks, which had accepted the new contract, has since changed its mind.

The Okanagan Agreement provides for a 51-cent hourly raise in a two-year contract, no change in working hours and the end to the union hall hiring system.

The Provincial Council of Carpenters rejected the agreement and individual locals in other parts of the province followed suit.

The union wants the 322 companies to settle on the same basis as 130 independent contractors employing 1,200 carpenters.

This provides for a 40-cent hourly raise in a two-year contract, a 37½-hour work week next year and continuation of union hall hiring.

The 322 companies have rejected this.

Locally, company lockout notices and union "locked out" pickets were withdrawn Friday from Bank Street and Royal Oak Schools in an agreement with school boards to allow subtrades to continue work.

Pinballs Pull Out Of Victoria

City police said today there are no known pinball machines in Victoria to be affected by a recent Supreme Court ruling.

The decision of Canada's senior court, reported in the July issue of Canadian Criminal Cases, has clarified an earlier decision and established that pinball machines are classed as slot machines and are therefore illegal.

"We don't know of a single machine in town," a senior police spokesman said today

Famed Judge To Choose Lucky Dogs

A judge of international repute will be in Victoria Sept. 9 and 10 to help pick the winners at the 44th annual benched show of the Vancouver Island Dog Fancier's Association.

Ted Gunderson of Ottawa has been selected to judge major shows through Canada, the U.S., Mexico, South America and the Caribbean Islands.

Joining him in picking the winners from an entry expected to top 200 dogs is John Devlin of Thornhill, Ont.

Entries close Monday for the two-day show at Esquimalt Sports Centre. At a benched show, the dogs are required to be on exhibit throughout each day for the public.

Judges' fees will cost the local club $800 this year.

Among dogs expected to enter from the western provinces and northwestern states is a champion Old English Sheepdog from Seattle, Driftwood's Oliver Twist, owned by John and Rosemary Murphy.

'LITTLE INTEREST'

Hospital Workers' Breakaway Decried

A spokesman for the Public Service Alliance of Canada today played down a move by federal hospital workers to join the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

S. B. Sherman, regional representative of the civil servant staff group, was commenting on a visit here by Andy Randall, secretary-treasurer of the Hospital Workers' Union at Shaughnessy in Vancouver.

The Shaughnessy workers are in the process of joining the Teamsters, said Mr. Randall, when he visited Victoria last weekend to see what interest there is at Veterans' Hospital.

"I can advise, after consulting with the branch president at the Veterans' Hospital, that there was not nearly as much interest in forming a new local as Mr. Randall might have anticipated," said Mr. Sherman.

The civil service staff associations "are well aware of the facts of life" as far as forthcoming federal bargaining rights is concerned "and it would seem that those in the Hospital Workers' Union are not."

Mr. Sherman said the legislation provides for bargaining units based on occupational lines across the entire public service and not by region, plant or institution.

"Therefore it follows that the bargaining agent will be a union that is organized along similar lines," he said.

The Public Service Alliance of Canada met this description, he added, through its membership of 115,000 civil servants.

Mr. Randall said earlier he hoped the move towards the Teamsters union at Shaughnessy would spread across the country.

South Island Candidates Ready at Starting Gates

A full field of candidates — except for Progressive Conservatives—is lined up on Southern Vancouver Island for the Sept. 12 provincial election.

Largest number of candidates is in the two-seat Victoria constituency.

Representing Social Credit are Works Minister W. N. Chant and MLA Waldo Skillings, an insurance agent.

New Democratic Party representatives are Rev. H. T. Allen, minister of James Bay United Church, and Mrs. Dorcas Blair, schoolteacher and local president of the Voice of Women.

The Liberals picked hospital accountant John Porteous, also chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, and engineering assistant Frank Preston.

Running for the Communists is plywood worker and party secretary Ernest Knott, while carpenter Larry Tickner is the candidate for the Socialist Party of Canada.

Voters in Saanich and The Islands will be choosing from MLA John Tisdalle, real estate salesmen, running again for Social Credit; Ed Haw, financial secretary of the International Woodworkers of America here; and Saturna Island rancher James Campbell, the Liberal representative.

A head-on clash between Liberal MLA and lawyer Alan Macfarlane and Dr. Charles Ennals, Social Credit, will take place in Oak Bay. Mrs. Mira Yarwood, secretary in a local law company, is representing the NDP.

In Esquimalt, the contest is between MLA Herbert Bruch of Social Credit, a party organizer; logger John Bartanus, chairman of Sooke School Board, for the NDP; and insurance executive David Elrix for the Liberals.

Constituency boundaries have been changed under redistribution. Anyone in doubt should contact local returning officers or the registrar of voters on Gordon Street.

In addition, the former three-member Victoria cinstituency has been reduced to two seats as well as being enlarged to the north and northwest.

LAST HOUSE

At the 1963 election, under the old distribution of seats, Social Credit held Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich with the NDP second while Oak Bay continued Liberal with Social Credit second.

Whether the Progressive Conservatives will field candidates in any B.C. riding is still in doubt.

Tory party officials were to meet today in Vancouver to decide the matter. But at the last minute the meeting was cancelled due to illness of association president Stuart Fleming.

MAN HELD ON GUN CHARGE

An Oak Bay man has been charged with assaulting a police officer and pointing a firearm at him.

James Ballendine, 2020 Milton, was remanded to Monday without plea when he appeared in court today. An application for bail was denied.

The charges arose out of an incident early today involving Oak Bay Constable Robert Faith. Ballendine was arrested and spent the night in jail.

In opposing an application for bail, prosecutor John McIntyre said his information was the accused had threatened to kill his wife and then threatened to kill the policeman.

MORE CHARGES?

Loaded firearms were taken from the house and other charges would be laid, said Mr. McIntyre.

In appealing for bail, Ballendine's counsel, Jack Gatehouse, said the matter arose out of a drinking incident and was "very much out of character" for the accused.

UNION DECERTIFIED

Market Hits Back After Long Strike

The union which staged the second-longest strike in recent times on Vancouver Island has been decertified at Alberta Meat Market on Cook Street.

The market applied to the Labor Relations Board to cancel the certification granted to Local 212 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The board said certification was cancelled "because it was satisfied that the trade union has ceased to represent the employees in the unit."

The 12 employees voted 8-4 in favor of strike action after talks broke down when the market refused to sign the area agreement.

The strike started May 7, 1963, and ended in a settlement Sept. 10, 1964.

In recent times, only the 1962-1963 Woolworth strike at Port Alberni was longer, although coal miners once struck for two years in Nanaimo ending in 1914.

Quake Kills Thousands In Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — More than 100 new earth shocks rolled across eastern Turkey today in the wake of a village-wrecking earthquake whose toll rose into thousands of dead and injured.

One sharp new tremor brought down 50 already damaged ancient buildings in Erzurum City, centre of the disaster area, killing two persons.

By nightfall rescue workers reported finding the bodies of nearly 1,500 victims of the catastrophic earthquake that hit Friday. In the Varto area alone, workers counted 1,042 bodies and worked feverishly clearing debris from where the schoolhouse once stood.

Muffled cries of children came from beneath it.

A multi-nation rescue operation was under way.

In early afternoon today a sharp earth shock hit Erzurum, centre of the earthquake disaster area. Fifty already damaged buildings fell in heaps of dust and broken stone.

Rescuers Struggle In Rugged Country

The number of known and estimated dead rose by the hour as army and civilian rescue teams fought through the rugged, mountainous back country of the quake-stunned area to reach destroyed villages and towns.

The full fury of the quake Friday afternoon hit the town of Varto, a community of 3,000 inhabitants. "It can be said that nothing remained of Varto," a Turkish army officer reported from the scene.

The Turkish interior ministry earlier had expressed belief the quake, which levelled dozens of other villages, might have taken 1,500 lives.

Civilian officials at Varto said 816 bodies had been recovered in that area alone and they estimated that at least 3,000 persons had died in the surrounding desert of rubble left by the killer quake.

They said scores of villages around Varto had been wiped out.

A Turkish radio report said many inhabitants were buried under the wreckage, including some pupils at the Varto school, who could be fainty heard crying for help.

24 Villages Levelled to Ground

The quake struck mountain villages in four provinces near the Iranian frontier, about 650 miles east of Istanbul.

The governor of Erzuram province reported in a radio broadcast that all dwellings were levelled in 24 villages in the province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 55,000, were destroyed, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces—Erzuram, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis—rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force mounted a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzuram, largest urban centre in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks out into the surrounding mountainous country side to reach residents of ruined villages.

The quakes began at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) Friday. The newspaper Milliyet reported the tremors were "very strong" for 20 seconds and were felt in Armenia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Erzuram weather bureau said the tremors lasted five minutes.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale.

Government and army authorities in the afflicted areas said it might take weeks to get a compete picture of the death and destruction.

Communications were practically non-existent and reports filtering in from the hundreds of villages and small communities in the predominantly agricultural region were fragmentary and conflicting.

But the quake already appeared one of the worst in recent years. The last major quake in Europe practically razed the Yugoslav city of Skopje July 26, 1963, with a final death toll of 1,100.

Officials said there was no way to tell how many residents had fled into the open countryside.

Turkish Premier Suleiman Demirel cancelled his appointments today to make an inspection flight over the stricken area. Music was banned from the Turkish radio and newspapers appeared with black borders.

There were no reports of foreign casualties. The remote area is not popular with tourists.

It was Turkey's worst earthquake since 1943 when 4,016 persons died. The biggest in 1939 killed 32,372 persons.

Gov. Mustafa Urgur Taled of Mus province said more than 2,000,000 people in the earthquake area slept outdoors on the ground Friday night.

Turkish Army units hastily put up five field hospitals and rescue teams brought in 10,000 tents.

American C-118 cargo planes flew three field hospitals, doctors, nurses and medicine to the area.

Japan Town Hit Again

TOKYO (AP) — Two fairly strong earthquakes shook the quake-ridden town of Matsushiro in central Japan tonight but no casualties were reported.

At least seven houses were damaged, railway traffic was halted and about 6,000 homes were left without electricity because of damage to power lines.

Matsushiro has been hit by quakes daily since the summer of 1965.

Bodies, Red Weapons Litter Viet Plantation

SAIGON (Reuters) — Australian forces piled on the pressure against the Viet Cong today after killing 214 Communist troops Friday in a bloody-four-hour battle, their fiercest of the Viet Nam war.

About 150 Australians, outnumbered eight to one, were down to their last rounds of ammunition when reinforcements reached the battle area—a rain-soaked rubber plantation 42 miles southeast of Saigon.

The operation continued today as a full-scale drive against the Viet Cong, a military spokesman said here.

(Australian headquarters in Canberra said 17 Australians were killed and 26 wounded in the engagement in Ba Ria in Phuoc Tuy province—easily the country's biggest loss in a single day in Viet Nam.)

Crumpled bodies and piles of Chinese and Russian - made weapons littered the rubber plantation today where the Australians repelled an onslaught from an estimated 900 enemy troops.

Dawn after the battle showed the extent of the carnage. Bodies — some appeared to be youths of about 17—lay everywhere, even inside the Australian lines.

Australian troops found the latest Chinese automatic rifles in perfect condition and packs made in North Viet Nam or China which were nearly new.

Many of the Viet Cong appeared to have died under shell fire. The surviving guerrillas withdrew after Australian and New Zealand artillery units moved in under cover of a tropical storm and U.S. jets dropped 35 tons of explosives and napalm firebombs.

TERRORISTS TOSS GRENADES INTO CLUB

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two Viet Cong terrorists exploded three hand grenades at the entrance of an American non-commissioned officers' club here tonight and a spokesman said 12 persons were wounded, one seriously.

The spokesman said six of the wounded were known to be U.S. servicemen. Some Vietnamese women were among a crowd within the Take Ten Club, operated by the U.S. Army for non-commissioned officers of all the services, when the explosion went off.

Bennett Out Of Parade After Threats

'Kill Premier' Calls Received

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett's scheduled appearance in today's Pacific National Exhibition parade in downtown Vancouver was cancelled at the last minute.

No official reason was given, but there were a number of anonymous telephone calls earlier to police and news media threatening Mr. Bennett's life.

The caller said an attempt would be made to kill the premier as the parade moved along Hastings Street.

The parade went ahead without Mr. Bennett.

The premier had been expected to lead the parade, but PNE president Capt. Harry Terry rode in the first official car.

In the second car were Mayor and Mrs. William Rathie.

A police spokesman said he knew nothing about Mr. Bennett having been withdrawn from the parade. He said the premier appeared on the official reviewing stand.

The spokesman confirmed there had been threats on Mr. Bennett's life but declined further comment.

The anonymous male caller said Bennett would be shot as the parade was moving along Hastings Street.

The premier later laughed the threat off, saying he doesn't worry about such things.

Police officers stood near Bennett throughout the parade and if he worried he didn't show it.

Several times, costumed paraders pointed fake guns, and even a bow and arrow, in his direction, but he didn't bat an eye.

U.S. Airlines Get Planes Back in Skies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five major airlines, shut down for 43 days by a machinists union strike, smoothly resumed air service today with the walkout at an end.

There was little crowding at airports across the United States as Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United began booking passengers and sending their planes skyward.

The biggest airline strike in history ended Friday when members of the International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, voted 17,727 to 8,235 to accept a three-year contract union leaders had negotiated with the airlines Monday. An earlier settlement proposal had been rejected July 31.

"The strike is now over," said union president P. L. (Roy) Siemiller as he announced the ratification vote.

The contract approval sending 35,400 strikers back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had lined up solidly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House guidelines designed to limit wage increases to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paycheques.

The airlines settlement is estimated to average slightly more than six per cent annually.

U.K. Diggers Solve 1,300-Year Riddle?

SUIT claiming $83 million has been filed against Curtis Publishing Co., by Candace Mossler, blonde grandmother found innocent in the bludgeon death of her millionaire husband, Jacques. The suit alleges the current issue of Saturday Evening Post calls Mrs. Mossler a liar.

By LYNN EDMUNDS

CADBURY, England (Reuters)—The 1,300-year-old riddle of who King Arthur really was seems closer to solution after recent finds by a team of British archeologists on the site of an ancient castle here.

Relics unearthed in the ruins of Cadbury Castle, 10 miles from Arthur's reputed burial place at Glastonbury Abbey, in Somerset, give strong support to the widely-held theory that Arthur was a 6th century Roman-British general killed in a last-ditch stand against Saxon invaders.

Now the Camelot research committee, headed by the well-known archeologist, Sir Mortimer Wheeler, has announced plans for a five-year excavation on the castle site where 40 volunteers this summer found a 5th century bronze cloak, pottery, and metalwork.

Their finds point to Cadbury Castle as one of the strongholds defended by Arthur and his band of cavalrymen in 12 successful battles before their defeat by the invaders.

SEEK CAMELOT

Aftr decades of searching and supposition, archeologists are confident that they are near to establishing the geographical site of the legendary Camelot, ruled by Arthur and his knights, whose exploits fired the imagination of both medieval and modern writers.

"This is more likely to be Camelot than any other site that has been advanced," said Leslie Alcock, senior archeologist at the University of Wales. He supervised this summer's successful dig.

The proposed excavations, costing an estimated £30,000 ($90,000), may confirm a widely-held view that a daring general who taught his soldiers an advanced art of warfare and marshalled them into small cavalry squadrons was the factual basis of the Arthurian legend.

This courageous fighter, described by the 8th century historian Nenning, was killed in battle about 537 AD after 12 successive victories against the Saxons.

Glastonbury Abbey is regarded as his burial place following the discovery of two stone crosses there dating from that period and which tally with accounts in the abbey's ancient records.

BECAME A LEGEND

The romantic tales of gallant knights, cultured women, treasure-laden palaces and chivalrous jousting have been woven round the deeds of Arthur the warrior until he has become a legendary figure.

The life of Arthur's court with its formal code of honor reflects the chivalrous ideal of the 12th century. A historian of that time placed Arthur the warrior as second in command to a Roman general named Ambrosius.

The earliest story of the warrior as founder of the knightly court, friend of the magician Merlin and husband of the faithless Queen Guinevere, is part of a romantic history of Britain written by Geoffrey of Monmouth in 1147.

He helped to spread abroad a legend previously passed down from father to son, gathering embellishments on the way. It became firmly established in English literature when Sir Thomas Malory published his Morte d'Arthur in the 15th century, and Tennyson returned to it in his Idylls of the King.

GHANIAN PROBLEM

Corruption Big Enemy

ACCRA (Reuters)—Ghanaian army and police chiefs who helped to overthrow former president Kwame Nkrumah are losing no opportunity of emphasizing that their big enemy in the fight to rehabilitate Ghana is corruption.

They have asked the civil servants in the ministries for which they now are responsible to do their utmost to stamp out this evil, and other evils too.

Tough, sparsely-built Maj.-Gen. E. K. Kotoka, who played a leading part in Ghana's February coup while Nkrumah was in Peking, has told defence, health and other officials now under his control that the government administration has drifted into "immeasurable inefficiency" with its attendant evils of bribery and corruption.

He said that he will pay surprise visits and will not sit idly by if he sees lack of discipline.

"If it comes to a crisis, I would not hesitate to put offenders in the guardroom," he said.

The deputy commissioner of police, B. A. Yakubu, a big friendly officer, has told senior staff at the ministries of industries, lands, and mineral resources that instances of "sickening dishonesty" are prevalent.

"There has been much talk of bribery and corruption in the government and any evidence of this will be thoroughly investigated," he said.

Beatles Draw 19,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Beatles came to the U.S. Bible belt Friday and gave two performances that were tolerated by the city fathers, criticized by the Ku Klux Klan and rivalled by a Christian youth rally. Shrieking crowds, mostly teenagers, and a majority of them girls, jammed the mid-south coliseum in record numbers—and estimated total of 19,000.

Rail Staff Learning To Speak

LONDON (AP) — The British railways have hired a former radio announcer to teach their staff how to enunciate station names so that passengers will have some idea where they are going.

Station announcers in the southern region may speak with a Cockney twang, a lazy drawl from the West Indies, in the sing-song sentences of the Welsh, or mix in a bit of Scottish burr with the ultra refined tones of London's suburbs.

"Denex traitor gidyap ark wilrivat platform four," was a typical bit of information gleaned by a London Times reporter from announcements at London's Liverpool station.

A passenger who claimed to have learned the code said his guess was that the train for Gidea Park was coming in.

To attempt to break the communications barrier, officials of the state-run railway system hired Philip Slessor, former announcer for the BBC, recognized as the fount of knowledge of how English should be spoken.
